NATION RUSHES SCRIP ISSUANCE TO KEEP TRADE, INDUSTRY GOING

Today

Now Comes the Scrip Era.
Some Questions Come With It.
Roosevelt's Fine Beginning.
Good Times Will Return.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, March 6.

SHORT OF active calamity, the most unpleasant thing is UNCERTAINTY. A missionary held by cannibal islanders wants to know what decision the cannibal cook will reach. Today, with all banks closed by official order, in 48 states, big businessmen and little everyday men would like to know what will happen.

WE SHOULD BE grateful, for we at least know now that the depression has run its course, at least on the surface. We are like the little boy who has swallowed castor oil and is glad that it has gone down.

Money will be provided, scrip in some states, clearing house certificates in others. And business will go on, with some kind of money, and good money. For awhile the old-fashioned, despised silver dollar will look like something to be treasured. But all money is only somebody's promise to pay, a government's, a bank's or an individual. No money is better than the name on it, or better than the credit of those who declare it "worth" so much an ounce. The money that you will get in exchange for your check, or as pay for your work, will be as good as any money you ever got. Only at first, as it is a new kind of money, be a little careful about counterfeits. This advice is for business men especially.

NOBODY REALLY knows anything about money. It is a mystery like electricity. Men use it, deal in it, and do not understand it.

Judge William Doran, of Los Angeles, told this story today:

"A man found a $10 bill with an unusual ink spot on it. He used it in paying a tailor's bill. The tailor paid his grocer. The grocer paid his hired man. The hired man paid his rent, the landlord used the money to pay a bill for the individual who had originally found the $10 note.

"That individual noticing the same ink spot, mused philosophically, then took the $10 bill to his bank. The banker said: 'This is a counterfeit, and under the law I must destroy it,' and did so. But the man who originally found it was no worse off than he had been.

"And that counterfeit $10 bill had paid $50 in other bills, perfectly satisfactorily. The bills were all settled satisfactorily and the $10 bill was back in the bank and destroyed as a counterfeit."

Think about that.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S inauguration speech encourages many.

It is the habit of the Roosevelts, as you learned from the late Theodore, to say things emphatically and it is reasonable to expect increasing emphasis as Franklin D. Roosevelt goes deeper into his job.

You may hear him say:

"More than twenty thousand million dollars are hidden away in bonds issued by the United States government. These thousands of millions are idle. The owners, avoiding active use of their wealth, draw from taxpayers nearly one thousand million dollars a year in interest. These bonds represent our real 'hoarding.' I am going to end half of it, call in ten thousand millions of bonds, that now bear interest, and exchange for them perfectly good money, with the government's good promise to pay, save four hundred millions a year in interest for the people, and let the owners of the nice new money put it into circulation, and break the depression."

AND YOU MIGHT hear the new President say:

"The big men of this country have been allowed to put their money into tens of billions of dollars worth of securities and draw billions a year in income on which they pay NOT ONE CENT to the government of the United States. I am going to change that. The country that taxes a grocer's little earnings, a professor's salary, or the small sum that a widow has inherited from her husband for the protection of her children, should also tax a man who has twenty or more millions of securities now tax-free, paying not a cent to the government that protects him in the possession of that wealth and the enjoyment of that income."

One who should know declares that returns on all securities are taxed in England and in France.

They do more than merely talk about democracy.

The idea of scrip, or clearing house certificates used as money, is not new.

The Howell Iron Works at Allaire, New Jersey, issued its own paper money and workers found it satisfactory. Hundreds of other factories have done the same.

The new home-made money raises questions.

Will the government take scrip or clearing house certificates in payment of income tax? Will it accept checks on banks, where you have an account, and cannot draw it out?

What about money to pay street car fare? Will government manufacture plenty of nickels and trade them for scrip?

IN ALL THE DOUBT, there is one thing certain. Make a note of it. All this will pass away, as other troubles have passed, the great depression

CERMAK DIES OF WOUND

MIAMI, Fla., March 6. — (AP.) — Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago died here at 6:57 a. m. today, the victim of an assassin's bullet which Giuseppe Zangara fired in an attempt on the life of President Roosevelt.

Immediately, Florida justice moved against Zangara, already under 80 years' sentence for his attack on Mr. Roosevelt and the wounding of three of the five persons he shot down at a public reception in Bay Front Park the night of February 15.

State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne called into session the Dade County grand jury, which had been recessed, to consider an indictment of first degree murder against the assassin.

REPORT OF INQUEST

An inquest into the death also was ordered to fulfill legal requirements in presenting the case to the grand jury. At an autopsy, the bullet from Zangara's gun was removed from Mr. Cermak's body, and Dr. E. C. Thomas, county physicial, said death resulted from "gangrene of the right lung," punctured by Zangara's bullet.

The family, including Mr. Cermak's three daughters, all present at the bedside when death came after 19 days of suffering from the wound complicated by colitis, pneumonia and gangrene, retired to the Miami Beach home of Dr. Frank Jirka, a Cermak son-in-law, and one of the attending physicians.

They, with many other Chicagoans, will board a special train at 6 p. m. today to accompany

3 DIE IN FIGHT WITH MANIAC

CLEVELAND, March 6.—(AP.)—An apparently demented man shot and killed two men today before he was slain by neighbors and police who pursued him several blocks as he ran, firing wildly.

Eight other persons were wounded.

The man dashed from his home on the West Side and began shooting at pedestrians. Louis Kalley, a tailor, fell, fatally wounded. Next the gunman killed Roy Neal, 38, a street car inspector.

Police and neighbors, who armed themselves with shotguns and revolvers, took up the chase and several blocks later the gunman, who was identified as Herman Klink, was brought down.

Pinchot Caught By Bank Holiday

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, said last night that when he proclaimed the Saturday-through-Monday holiday in his state, he had exactly 95 cents in cash to his name.

Jobless Hurt In Capital Battle

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—At least three were injured and 20 arrested today in fighting between police and demonstrators at about the time President Roosevelt was telling District of Columbia Commissioners he did not object to any parade that did not interfere with normal traffic.

The fighting broke out when a group of whites and Negroes set out from a meeting hall on Eleventh street to march to the District Building to demand larger relief allowances and equal treatment of whites and Negroes.

They had been warned by Inspector Albert J. Headley that they would not be permitted to parade, and as they proceeded in the face of the warning were charged by police assembled along the line of march.

Banners carried by the demonstrators ,demanding $5 weekly relief allowances and equal treatment of Negroes and whites were seized in the police rush and more than a score went down or were captured in the rush of flailing clubs.

Attorney Ejected At Riot Hearing

Attorney Arthur I. Zeiger was forcibly ejected from Magistrate Leo Rothenberg's court room today during the hearings of 23 persons arrested in Saturday's Communist demonstration. Rothenberg ordered Zieger to be taken out when he asked questions the court considered irrelevant.

Seven reputed leaders of the disturbance were held for court for inciting to riot, and among the others, Mrs. Adell Preshold, 40, of 3170 Brighton road, was held over pending an investigation. She denied she was a member of any Communist organization.

Pomerene Boomed For Walsh's Place

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Gov. George White, of Ohio, today will present the name of Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to President Roosevelt for Attorney General to succeed Homer Cummings when he resigns to become Governor General of the Philippine Islands.

King George's Cold Interrupts Program

LONDON, March 6.—(AP.)—King George was suffering from a slight cold and the queen was forced to go alone yesterday to the art gallery in the Royal Academy. The king attended services at the chapel in the palace.

The King was better this morning, it was stated at Buckingham Palace, his cold following the normal course. It was considered unlikely he will hold the levee set to occur at St. James' Palace tomorrow. The Prince of Wales will substitute for him.

Nation's Leaders Pay Walsh Last Tribute

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Urgent cares of state were laid aside today while America's officialdom gathered at the flower-banked bier of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana in the Senate Chamber to pay him a last reverent tribute.

President Roosevelt and members of his Cabinet—in which Walsh would have sat had he lived—headed the list of notables who sat silently near the silvered bronze casket and joined his widow in mourning his passing.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore and Bishop John McNamara, of Washington, the auxiliary bishop of the Baltimore diocese, officiated at the impressive Catholic funeral ceremonies. About them were other church dignitaries in the full robes of their rank.

In a brief eulogy of the distinguished legislator, who had served in the Senate 20 years before his death early Thursday, Archbishop Curley said of him:

"The beloved Senator from Montana deserves a eulogy, but he needs none. He loved and served his God. He loved and served his fellowman."

By the side and near the head of the casket sat the sorrowing widow, the former Senora Nieves Perez Chaumont de Truffin of Havana, to whom the Senator was wed a few days before his death.

The body was to leave Washington at 3:50 p. m., for interment rites at Helena, Montana, Thursday, after a funeral service in the Catholic cathedral at Helena.

SCRIP PLAN FOR CITY RUSHED

Trade and Industry Here Functions Normally

A series of informal conferences between Pittsburgh bankers today was responsible for a rapid crystallization of plans for issuance of scrip. Final announcement was possible some time during the night after conference with Treasury officials in Washington, D. C.

Meanwhile, every source of money in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County was closed, with the exception of the Postal Savings System. It did business as usual.

Merchandising and industrial organizations were functioning normally, although some businessmen were resorting to unique methods of meet-

BULLETIN.

HARRISBURG, March 6.—(INS.)—Formal extension of Pennsylvania's two-day bank holiday to conform with the four-day national moratorium will be proclaimed tonight by Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

The Governor wired his Capitol office here today from Washington, stating that "upon arrival in Harrisburg tonight I shall issue a further declaration extending the banking holiday in Pennsylvania to and including Thursday in conformity with the President's proclamation."

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, March 6.—Gov. Pinchot apparently has abandoned a previous and unexpected intention of appearing before the Legislature tomorrow to deliver a special message on unemployment relief.

From Washington, where Mr Pinchot today is attending the Governors' conference called by President Roosevelt ,it was learned the Governor for the next few days intends to devote all his attention to the banking situation

He is represented as feeling that an appearance before the Legislature now without reference to the bank holidays would cause comment, and he wishes to say nothing on the subject until President Roosevelt and Congress have worked out federal legisla-

Move to Free Nine At Scottsboro Trial

SCOTTSBORO, Ala., March 6.—(AP.)—A surprise motion to quash the indictment against nine Negroes charging an attack on two young white girls, delayed action on another motion for a change of venue as cases of seven of the Negroes were called for trial in Jackson Circuit Court today.

King Carol Suffers From Severe Cold

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 6.—(AP.)—King Carol is suffering from a severe cold accompanied by a cough. His physicians said the cold was not dangerous, but advised the king to remain in bed the next few days.

Outline Of Scrip System

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 6.—A text book or questionnaire intended to answer many questions puzzling citizens was worked up here today in connection with the bank holiday. It follows:

What is clearing house scrip?

It is a promissory note of the banks that are members of the clearing house association and is issued by them as a money substitute.

Where will it be issued?

At the banks.

What will it be issued for?

Present plans are for payroll checks and against deposits in banks closed by the holiday. It also will be exchanged for currency.

In what denominations will it be issued?

SILVER FOR CHANGE

Will scrip be issued in denominations low enough to replace silver currency or small change?

No. Present plan is to use silver for change.

Will scrip be accepted for purchases by the butcher, the baker, the grocer?

Yes.

Will a check, presented at a bank, be cashed in scrip?

Yes, if the check is the depositor's and he has an account in the bank.

Will the banks be open to issue scrip?

Yes.

On the expiration of the holiday will the bank give dollars for the scrip?

They did in the past.

Where will pay checks be cashed?

At the banks.

Will pay checks be cashed only in scrip?

Present plans are not definite, but expectations is that scrip, and in some cases, cash, or part cash and scrip will be used.

SCRIP SECURITY

What security will be behind scrip?

Liquid bank deposits, government securities and other sound assets of the banks.

Is there any danger that its value will fall below that of regular money?

In the past depressions, when scrip was used, money brought a premium no higher than 4 per cent over the clearing house

No Dimes, John D. Gives Caddy $1

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., March 6.—(INS.)—There were no glittery gift dimes in the pocket of John D. Rockefeller today, but the 93-year-old multi-millionaire tipped his caddy boy with a crisp $1 bill as he ended his regular daily golf round. His comment on the national financial situation was:

"We must be hopeful for the best."

ROOSEVELT SHUTS ALL BANKS FOUR DAYS; EMBARGOES GOLD

Associated Press.

The nation's banks were shut today, but behind the scenes plans for resuming business went steadily forward with prospects that at least some money or a good substitute would be available tomorrow to keep the nation's trade moving.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt called off all appointments in order to devote his entire attention to the emergency banking problems.

Secretary Woodin, of the Treasury, announced banks would be reopened if necessary to permit payment of payrolls. He said that where possible payment would be made with Clearing House certificates or scrip issued by local banks, but where no such exchange means was available he would authorize the issuance of cash.

The New York Clearing House Association had available many bales of scrip and it was regarded as probable the banks would be opened for payment of certificates on a rationed basis tomorrow morning. Throughout the country other cities were planning scrip issues.

The American four-day bank holiday and the embargo on gold exports put a stop to dollar quotations in the markets of the world and everywhere a close watch was being kept on New York and Washington.

POSTAL SAVINGS OPEN

Postal Savings Banks were accepting deposits and allowing withdrawals.

Although the banks were not handing out any money, the government mint at Philadelphia was operating as usual. Twenty dollar gold pieces and pennies were being minted.

Representative Rainey, the next Speaker of the House, summoned a Democratic caucus for Wednesday to set up the controlling Ways and Means Committee for the special session on Thursday.

The governors of the New York Stock Exchange decided to keep the exchange closed until further notice.

Two states — Minnesota and New Mexico — announced their intention of petitioning the federal government for permission to reopen their banks.

Everywhere the attitude of the people was one of "watchful waiting."

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Immediate steps to lighten hardship caused by the nation-wide bank shutdown was promised today, Secretary Woodin, of the Treasury, asserting that banks would be reopened if necessary to permit payment of payrolls.

He explained that where possible the payrolls would be met with clearing house certificates or scrip issued by the local banks, but where no such exchange was available he would authorize the issuance of cash to meet the emergency.

The Secretary said the issuance of clearing house certificates to be used in the place of cash would be local in each instance, as would be scrip.

One of the first efforts of the administration, he said, would be to work out a plan so that the use of checking accounts would be unhampered and this medium of business could go forward as usual.

SAFE BOXES OPEN

Woodin said that safety deposit boxes and the postal savings would remain open during the banking holiday.

Woodin and his aides, the leaders of Congress and President Roosevelt himself were working hard at plans for action at the earliest possible moment.

Congressional leaders divulged that President Roosevelt is going to ask the special session of Congress on Thursday to affirm the steps he has taken in the financial crisis.

Vesting himself with war-time powers under the "trading with the enemy" act of 1917, President Roosevelt last night had ordered a four-day national banking holiday and had placed an embargo on exports of gold.

This embargo does not mean that the United States has gone off the gold standard, Secretary Woodin said:

DRAFT REGULATIONS

At the Treasury, the officials concentrated on drafting regulations to put into effect the four-day bank closing proclamation of the President.

Representative Rainey, next Speaker of the House, summoned a Democratic caucus Wednesday to set up the controlling Ways and Means Committee immediately.

He and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, both indicated immediate action on whatever the President recommends for the emergency, with a probable recess then for a few

Pittsburgh Meets 'Holiday' Calmly

Financial Pittsburgh today calmly prepared to take whatever steps necessary to meet the needs of the community during the banking holiday. Business men, informed early today of the President's proclamation, announced their willingness to help meet the emergency in every possible way.

Railroads here had authorization to declare a holiday on payment of freight charges by shippers with established credit. The announcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission waived a law forbidding railroads to extend credit.

Several of the large downtown banks were making change for regular patrons this morning. Some limited this to small amounts, while others said they were prepared to meet any customer's requests for change.

Hotels here were not allowing travelers with established credit to be stranded because of financial difficulties. They are accepting checks for the amounts of bills from persons who are known. The hotels are not cashing checks.

Several downtown department stores were ready to meet their payrolls in cash. Merchants were prepared to accept Clearing days to work out a general program.

The President summoned about him the governors of many states for immediate co-operative plans with the national government.

At the Capitol, Senator Robinson said he understood the immediate legislation to be brought up at the special session Thursday "will be looking toward the use of clearing house certificates by banks that are in moratoria to the extent of their liquidity and authorization of a segregation of new deposits."

Robinson added:

"I am not advised that it is expected a reorganization of the general banking system will be attempted in connection with the emergency measures referred to."

POINTS INVOLVED

Senator Pittman (Dem.), of Nevada, said three points were involved. The first was the stoppage of "destructive withdrawals" from banks. That, he said, had already been accomplished for the time being by the President's proclamation.

The second point, he said, was to furnish a supply of emergency currency by issuance of clearing house certificates based on the liquid assets of the banks. This would be taken care of at the special session.

The third goal, likely to be reached at a later session after the emergency program is adopted, was described as more permanent banking legislation based on the Glass reform measure which passed the Senate last session but died in the House Banking Committee. This legislation also may include provision for guarantee of re-deposits in the banks.

BANK PROCLAMATION

Then the President met with Congressional leaders. Close to midnight came the proclamation declaring a banking holiday.

In an accompanying statement, the President said:

"It is in the best interests of all bank depositors that a period of respite be provided with a view to preventing further hoarding of coin, bullion or currency or speculation in foreign exchange and permitting the application of appropriate measures to protect the interests of our people."

SIX NOMINEES CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—The Senate in special session today confirmed six Roosevelt appointments, including that of William Phillips of Massachusetts, to be Undersecretary of State.

Other nominations approved were: Wilbur J. Carr, of Ohio, and Raymond Moley, of New York, assistant Secretaries of State.

Former Representative William F. Stevenson, of South Carolina, and T. D. Webb, of Tennessee, for the Federal Home Loan Bank board.

The Senate adjourned after acting on the nominations.

The decision to send the nominations up today was made by President Roosevelt while he sat in the President's room off the Senate Chamber after he attended the funeral services for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana.

Democratic and Republican leaders grouped about him and agreed to confirm the appointments right away because of the emergency character of the nominations.

House certificates, should they be issued. Department stores in general continued to offer complete credit facilities. One department store had laid in a large stock of food to give its customers with charge accounts an opportunity to buy food products on credit.

Relief agencies here will continue to issue food orders during the banking holiday, according to S. E. Claney, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board. Claney said:

"Harrisburg will undoubtedly make some arrangement to deal with them. We'll continue to issue the orders and we don't anticipate any difficulty with grocers."

Checks which did not clear through the Pittsburgh Clearing House Saturday will be held up until the Clearing House again begins to function, which will probably be Wednesday or Thursday it was said today by officials of that body.

Sums of money forwarded by telegraph were limited to $100 by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies. Neither company is accepting checks. The limit to the amount which the Postal Telegraph will wire under normal conditions is $10,000, according to G. W. Grimes, city superintendent.

Postal savings and postoffice money order business were conducted as usual, pending instructions to the contrary, Postmaster George B. Anderson said.

Approximately 2,500 city employes are without their pay for the last two weeks of February, owing to bank holiday, according to Louis Glesenkamp, City Paymaster. City Treasurer R. W. Thompson plans to meet bankers today, in an effort to make some arrangement for them, it was reported at the Treasurer's office.

The county will continue to issue checks to pay its obligations, County Treasurer Robert S. Cain announced today after conferring with Controller Robert G. Woodside. The county has several millions on deposit and employes whose pay was delayed will receive checks. Any other arrangements for payment would have to be made by the County Commissioners, Cain said. The Commissioners are to meet tomorrow.

The Federal Reserve Bank here was closed to business, not even a change window open. Officials declared they did not plan to make change, unless so instructed from Washington.

Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh announced that extra squads of police have been placed on duty during the banking holiday. He said:

"We will have extra squads of police working during the present situation, particularly throughout the banking section. There will be emergency crews at all police stations."

Several grocery firms hastily arranged to come to the aid of employers whose payroll funds are tied up by the bank holiday with the idea of food certificates to supplement cash. Butler, Kroger and Atlantic and Pacific Stores are offering food orders good at all branches.

after Waterloo, the horrible calamity of the black death in Europe, the "Hundred Years' War," the "Seven Years' War," the "Thirty Years' War," all the other wars and all the other panics.

REAL WEALTH is in things, not in printed slips of paper, green or yellow. The things are all here, the prosperity that we are bemoaning will come back, greater than ever.

AND AGAIN the millions of little people will forget all about their government and all about their problems. A handful of big people will begin printing again tens of millions of shares of worthless stocks. The little man that steals a hat will go to jail. The big man that prints the tens of millions of worthless shares of stock will go to Europe.

If a bill of large denomination is offered in a purchase, will the change be in scrip or currency?

Scrip for a dollar or over, and currency for change under a dollar.

How long is scrip likely to last?

Its use in past depressions extended over a period of a month.

Will the scrip of one state be good in another?

Not necessarily.

Can persons making bank deposits in currency demand that they be repaid in currency?

Under President Roosevelt's proclamation deposits made since the declaration of the moratorium are to be placed in trust and payable in full on demand of the depositor.

When the use of scrip is finally abandoned, what agency will redeem it?

The banks that issued it, and they in turn will cash it at the Clearing House, obtaining release of their securities pledged as collateral for the scrip.

POSTAL SAVING SYSTEM OPEN

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Postal savings withdrawal demands will be honored in any amount, Third Assistant Postmaster General Frederic A. Tilton, announced today. He said:

"The savings department of the Postoffice Department will remain open for the reception and paying of this federal feature. We will remain open indefinitely. We are as strong as the United States treasury."

Deposits with the postal savings division of the Postoffice Department aggregated $942,540,200 on January 31, the date of the last report. This represented an increase of $42,301,474 over the December total.

Martin Insull Case Postponed to Mar. 16

TORONTO, March 6.—(AP.)—Extradition proceedings against Martin Insull, former utilities official of Chicago, were adjourned today until March 16.

LABOR URGES BARTER PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Decrying the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as a failure, the American Federation of Labor today suggested a national system of barter backed by the federal government as a means to meet the present financial crisis and check the forces of deflation.

The plan, advocated by Fred I. Kent, New York banker, is included in the monthly survey issued by the Federation. The A. F. of L. said it would be possible to begin production of absolute necessities by the aid of federal resources, used to underwrite loans when necessary.

The survey said:

"The fate of the nation is in the hands of the new administration; whether we are to go on downward to unknown depths or start back to normal living will depend upon the statesmanship of our new leader."

HOOVER URGES SUPPORT FOR PRESIDENT

Asks Co-operation In Bank Crisis; Mourns Cermak

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—From his apartment high in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, Former President Herbert Hoover today called for "whole hearted support" of his successor's plan for meeting the banking and economic crisis.

Mr. Hoover said:

"The President's proclamation should receive the wholehearted support and co-operation of every citizen."

This brief word was given to newspapermen by Lawrence Richey, Mr. Hoover's secretary, in response to inquiries as to what the Former President thought of President Roosevelt's action.

Mr. Hoover did not amplify his statement publicly nor give out any opinion as to the various details of the Roosevelt plan.

Earlier, when informed of the death of Mayor Anton Cermak, victim of an assassin's bullet, Mr Hoover expressed through Richey, his sorrow at the tragedy.

Aside from these brief public words, however, Mr. Hoover remained inside his hotel, very much a private citizen attending to personal matters. He planned to remain inside his hotel throughout the day. He called in to confer with him Edgar Rickard, New York financier and a friend for many years, Perrin Galpin, and Ray Sawtelle, directors of the Belgian Relief Association and the American Relief Association, both founded by Mr. Hoover.

He also visited during the morning with various friends and acquaintances, who called principally to pay their respects to the ertswhile Chief Executive.

PLANS TO ISSUE SCRIP HERE RUSHED

Leaders Confident of Quick Action For Relief

The scrip plan receiving the most favor here would involve issuance of certificates by a group of bankers separate and distinct but made up from the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association.

NEW MONEY

These men, acting as trustees, would issue the new money after banks had deposited with them such of their assets as were considered acceptable securities.

It is not probable that any scrip will reach the public here until Wednesday morning.

In Pittsburgh alone, it is estimated, scrip equal to about 25 per cent of bank deposits will be needed.

This is roughly estimated at $150,000,000—one-quarter of the calculated $600,000,000 deposit liability of Pittsburgh banks.

Acceptable as security would be, under the plan sketched by New York bankers and likely to be a model for the Pittsburgh certificates, in the words of the New York prospectus:

"Securities of acceptable value, including bonds, stocks, bills, notes receivable, obligations for the payment of money or any other assets...."

Banks drawing scrip from the issuing group would give, with their security, their certificate of indebtedness, or promise to pay on demand, in amount equal to the amount of scrip issued to them, bearing a 4 per cent interest charge.

Possibly the biggest question facing the bankers busy in drafting the scrip plans is what to do about small country banks.

Many of these are not members of the Federal Reserve system nor of any clearing house.

But many of the small banks would be forced to pledge assets of their own communities—notes of local men, for instance—which could hardly be appraised from a distance, regardless of their good liquidity. Some delay is anticipated in putting scrip at the disposal of these small institutions.

The matter of exchanging scrip with other cities and making Pittsburgh scrip good elsewhere will probably be handled through the Federal Reserve banks.

Clearing House action, consent of banks not affiliated with the Clearing House, approval of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland and, finally of the Treasury Department is necessary before scrip is issued. This and the printing will probably require until Wednesday.

It was considered possible that, even with the issuance of these certificates, deposits will only be paid on a restricted basis. The percentage of that restriction had not been determined today.

Meanwhile the unusual liquidity of assets in banks here was mirrored in the quiet reception of news of the extended holiday by Pittsburgh business. Under the terms of the President's proclamation of last night, banks here may, besides issuing scrip, reopen their doors to accept new deposits to be kept in trust accounts, payable 100 per cent on demand.

BANKS CLOSED

Although the banks were closed today in observance of the national and state holidays, employes of practically all institutions reported for duty in order to take steps which may be found necessary to prepare for a resumption of business on a restricted basis later in the week.

A. E. Braun, president of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association and president of the Farmers Deposit National Bank, declared last night that he could make no statement until the meeting of the association is held today.

James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company said:

"We can't take any steps until we have further details from Washington and New York. There are several things that need clearing up."

NORMAL OPERATION

The use of clearing house certificates here would permit fairly normal business operations in spite of the bank holiday.

Certificates of this type were widely used in Pittsburgh and other cities, during the panic of 1907. Their adoption permitted the uninterrupted conduct of business.

The fact that the banks were able to meet abnormally heavy demands from frantic depositors even after the closing of the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve made it impossible for them to withdraw their surplus cash or to borrow on their holdings of government securities, is interpreted as further evidence of their strength.

Rich Beg, Actors Sing for Dinner In Coin Shortage

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Quips, grins and tall stories were on the lips of Americans today as they went to a well they had not tapped since war days.

Even before President Roosevelt, clothing himself with the powers of a war-time law, took quick steps preparing the way for scrip, the idea of scrip was racing through the country, and communities in many scattered sections were arranging to have it printed.

Tales of millionaires beseeching butlers for a spare dime, of folk with $100 bills being snubbed by change-guarding clerks, went the rounds. Ladies who used to talk about their operations now had a new topic—of how that nasty grocer man would not give them change for $20 when they bought a 10-cent can of beans.

From the top to the bottom of the social scale, people facing inconvenience grinned and bore it. Former President Hoover, just a few hours out of the White House, found himself with only a small amount of cash—but was getting along.

OAKIE ISSUES SCRIP

At Dallas, Tex., Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray, musical comedy artists, arranged to pay their hotel bill by singing for other guests.

A New York hotel, finding itself short of cash, sent a messenger to churches to gather the contents of collection plates. Business on Broadway boomed as some theaters accepted checks for tickets. Subways had a plentiful supply of nickels for the time being, but were considering what to do about scrip. You can't put it in a turnstile.

PASTOR BANS COLLECTION

The pastor at Union Methodist Episcopal Church made a big hit with his congregation Sunday by canceling usual collection. He told the congregation:

A Pasadena hotel, besieged by millionaires without the price of a shave, started to print its own scrip.

Automat managers debated a weighty problem—how to prevent people from changing $5 bills into nickels and then going out without eating.

Police in many cities arranged to allow people to place their money in station houses for safekeeping.

Broadway restaurant gets bright idea of offering meals in return for postage stamps, which proves great idea except no one has huge supply of postage stamps.

STATE CHIEFS BACK ACTION OF F. R.

Governors Approve Banking Holiday, Gold Embargo

WASHINGTON, March 6. (AP.)—Hearty accord with the four-day banking holiday and gold embargo declared by President Roosevelt was expressed today by the Governors summoned to confer with him.

The conference appointed Govs. White, of Ohio; Green, of Rhode Island, and Buck, of Delaware, to confer with the Secretary of the Treasury and submit a resolution of approval.

Appearing personally before the conference, President Roosevelt related to the governors the action he had taken. The governors in their brief discussion voiced hearty accord.

MR. ROOSEVELT SPEAKS

After outlining his own views of the conference agenda, which included the subjects of curtailment of taxation and federal unemployment relief, Mr. Roosevelt left the conference, and went to the executive offices for an inspection of his working quarters.

Gov. Pollard, of Virginia, was elected chairman of the conference and after passing over the first subject of the agenda, a duplication of state and federal taxes, the conference took up the question of federal aid for the unemployed.

URGES MILLIONS IN NOTES

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, representing Gov. Ely, said Massachusetts felt that federal relief should come after state and local relief had virtually been exhausted and that even then the government aid should not be direct, but should be made through state or municipalities.

Then Gov. Ross, of Idaho, presented a plan to put men back to work through the issuance of $20,000,000,000 in none-interest bearing federal notes.

Many of the governors were unable to be present because of the crises developing in their states and sent representatives. Those present in person included Pinchot, of Pennsylvania; White, of Ohio; Wilson, of Vermont; Miller, of Alabama; Ross, of Idaho; Moore, of New Jersey; Schmedeman, of Wisconsin; Conner, of Mississippi; Green, of Rhode Island; Herring, of Iowa; Scholtz, of Florida; Laffoon, of Kentucky; Kump, of West Virginia; Winant, of New Hampshire; Buck, of Delaware; Brann, of Maine; Allen, of Louisiana; Blackwood, of South Carolina, and Pollard, of Virginia.

tion dealing with the fiscal situation.

Though it was not generally known, Mr. Pinchot had intended when he went to Washington to return to Harrisburg in time to address the Legislature Tuesday. Information that he intended to speak again on relief, the subject of a message only two weeks ago came as a surprise as it was understood his next appearance before the Assembly would be on the subject of utilities.

The Governor has learned officially that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will allocate no additional relief money to Pennsylvania until the state appropriates more funds for relief. State funds will be exhausted within the end of this month, and unless legislation is rushed through within the next three weeks there will be nothing for relief the first of April.

Mr. Pinchot intended to emphasize the gravity of the situation in his message to the Legislature. He intended to stress the need of inaugurating the commissary plan throughout the state, asserting that unless this plan is followed the state cannot finance relief under any conditions.

It was not until last night that he definitely decided to refrain from speaking to the legislators tomorrow. First draft of his speech has been prepared, and he hoped to work on it this afternoon and tonight.

When he learned the President was planning a four-day bank holiday he issued a statement in Washington that Pennsylvania would conform to regulations in effect in other states, and decided to devote all his attention to the financial question. It is possible he may not return to Harrisburg until tomorrow.

Meanwhile state officials have arranged to be in constant touch with him in Washington, even during the progress of the conference with the President.

The President's Proclamation

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 5.

The full text of President Roosevelt's proclamation on the banking situation follows:

WHEREAS there have been heavy and unwarranted withdrawals of gold and currency from our banking institutions for the purpose of hoarding; and

WHEREAS continuous and increasingly extensive speculative activity abroad in foreign exchange has resulted in severe drains on the nation's stocks of gold; and

WHEREAS these conditions have created a national emergency; and

WHEREAS it is in the best interests of all bank depositors that a period of respite be provided with a view to preventing further hoarding of coin, bullion or currency or speculation in foreign exchange and permitting the application of appropriate measures to protect the interests of our people; and

WHEREAS it is provided in section 5 (B) of the Act of October 6, 1917, (40 Stat. L. 411) as amended, "That the President may investigate, regulate, or prohibit, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, by means of licenses or otherwise, any transactions in foreign exchange and the export, hoarding, melting, or earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency ;" and

WHEREAS it is provided in Section 16 of the said Act "That whoever shall willfully violate any of the provisions of this Act or of any license, rule, or regulation issued thereunder, and whoever shall willfully violate, neglect, or refuse to comply with any order of the President issued in compliance with the provisions of this act, shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $10,000, or, if a natural person, imprisoned for not more than 10 years, or both ***;"

NOW, THEREFORE I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in view of such national emergency and by virtue of the authority vested in me by said Act and in order to prevent the export, hoarding, or earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency, do hereby proclaim, order, direct and declare that from Monday, the sixth day of March, to Thursday, the ninth day of March, Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-three, both dates inclusive, there shall be maintained and observed by all banking institutions and all branches thereof located in the United States of America, including the territories and insular possessions, a bank holiday, and that during said period all banking transactions shall be suspended.

During such holiday, excepting as hereinafter provided, no such banking institution or branch shall pay out, export, earmark, or permit the withdrawal or transfer in any manner or by any device whatsoever, of any gold or silver coin or bullion or currency or take any other action which might facilitate the hoarding thereof; nor shall any such banking institution or branch pay out deposits, make loans or discounts, deal in foreign exchange, transfer credits from the United States to any place abroad, or transact any other banking business whatsoever.

During such holiday, the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President under such regulations as he may prescribe, is authorized and empowered

(A) to permit any or all of such banking institutions to perform any or all of the usual banking functions,

(B) to direct, require or permit the issuance of Clearing House certificates or other evidences of claims against assets of banking institutions, and

(C) to authorize and direct the creation of such banking institutions of special trust accounts for the receipt of new deposits which shall be subject to withdrawal on demand without any restriction or limitation and shall be kept separately in cash or on deposit in Federal Reserve banks or invested in obligations of the United States.

As used in this order the term "banking institutions" shall include all Federal Reserve banks, national banking associations, banks, trust companies, savings banks, building and loan associations, credit unions, or other corporations, partnerships, associations or persons, engaged in the business of receiving deposits, making loans, discounting business paper, or transacting any other form of banking business.

Courage! First Lady's Message to Nation

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—In the first White House press conference that a President's wife has granted, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that the "time is one that requires courage on everybody's part—and common sense."

Asked for an expression to the women of the country, in recognition of the national crisis, Mrs. Roosevelt first declined on the ground that it would be presumptuous, but later pressed by the correspondents, she said:

"Women's duty is exactly the same as the men's duty. The time is one that requires courage on everybody's part—and common sense."

Mrs. Roosevelt came to the conference carrying a box of candied orange peel which she passed around before seating herself. The newspaper women formed a circle on the floor around her feet. The conversation was principally about the procedure to be followed in her Monday conferences.

Life Insurance Paid Despite Bank Holidays

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Bank holidays in the various states are not affecting the payments of the life insurance companies to policyholders and beneficiaries, it was said today by the president of one of the leading life companies.

Checks are going forward, as usual, it was said, but the companies cannot guarantee their immediate conversion into cash because of the temporary suspension of banking operations.

Policyholders who have reached the end of their period of grace before payment of premiums need not fear the loss of their policies, it was asserted by another official regardless of what may happen in the banking situation, unless it is determined that they have or had not sufficient funds to their credit either in closed banks or unpaid pay checks to meet the payments at the time of the occurrence of any personal emergencies.

CERMAK DEAD; MOVE TO INDICT ZANGARA FOR MURDER

MAYOR LOSES 19-DAY FIGHT FOR LIFE

Special Train to Take Assassin's Victim Home for Funeral

the body to Chicago for funeral services and burial in the National Bohemian Cemetery.

The Mayor, who rose from an immigrant Bohemian boy to become Mayor of the nation's second largest city and to take high ranks in the councils of the national Democratic party, will rest beside his wife who died in 1928.

Miami joined in the general sorrow at the death of the Chicago Mayor. Mayor R. B. Gautier issued a proclamation declaring a period of mourning this afternoon between 5 and 6 p. m., at that time the funeral cortege will move to the special train accompanied by uniformed units of the Mahi Shrine Temple and the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps.

The special train will arrive in Chicago at 10 a. m. Wednesday, March 8. It will proceed via the Florida East Coast, Atlantic Coast Line, Central of Georgia and Illinois Central railroads.

FAMILY AT SIDE

Mayor Cermak's death followed a series of complications against which the Chicago executive had rallied valiantly time after time.

The family and close friends were at the bedside. Mrs. Floyd Kenlay, a daughter, was holding one of her father's hands when he died. Vivian Graham, a granddaughter, held the other. Mrs. Richey Graham, a daughter, said:

"Oh, he wanted to live so much."

Mrs. Frank Jirka, another daughter, added:

"He fought so hard. He didn't want to die."

Mayor Cermak had previously rallied after three crises in his condition. Colitis, threatened heart failure and pneumonia beset him in quick succession just as his physicians had begun to believe he would recover from the bullet wound.

Physicians still were optimistic Saturday, but that night gangrene appeared in the right lung and he grew steadily weaker. A third blood transfusion was performed yesterday in an attempt to save his life and an attempt to check the gangrene was made, but the Mayor did not respond. He lapsed into a coma last night and shortly after midnight physicians said death was a matter of hours.

The Mayor died peacefully. He never recovered from his coma. Father Sidney Morrison, of St. Bartholomew's Catholic Church, Chicago, had been praying at Cermak's bed for a time before he died.

Cermak's Homeland Mourns His Death

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, March 6.—(AP.)—Black streamers of mourning were hoisted beneath the national colors on the public buildings here today, for word of the death of Mayor Anton Cermak caused widespread grief here in the country of his birth. The City Council forwarded a resolution of sorrow to his family, another to President Roosevelt and a third to the City of Chicago.

KLADNO, Czechoslovakia, March 6.—(AP.)—Mayor Cermak's home town was grief-stricken when it learned today that he had died, the victim of an assassin. The Mayor cabled his sympathy to the family.

Horner Quits Parley For Cermak Funeral

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Gov. Henry Horner, of Illinois, today called the death of Mayor A. J. Cermak, in Miami, an "irreparable loss to the City of Chicago and the State of Illinois." Gov. Horner, who arrived in Washington early to attend the conference of Governors at the White House, said:

"It will be necessary to forego the conference. I will return to Chicago this afternoon to assure my being there for Mr. Cermak's funeral Wednesday."

Death, Long Fought, Finally Came Between Them

LOSS OF JOB WON CERMAK FAME

Fired Twice at Mine, Battled to Top In Politics

CHICAGO, March 6.—(Universal.)—Anton Joseph Cermak was born to the peasant life of old Bohemia.

Fifty-eight years later, in 1931, he became Mayor of the second city in the land of his adoption, a political tower of strength, a vindication of America's philosophy that every man has opportunity to scale the heights.

His rise for 30 years was an epic in politics. But more pulse-quickening, more stirring to the imagination, has been the dreams of his whole life—a life that carried him from the peasantry of Bohemia to the coal mines of Illinois, and on to the mayoralty.

He chose Chicago for a career when he was tossed out of the mines at Braidwood, Ill. He gave of himself to Chicago. Chicago gave him, in return, honor and political preferment.

BORN IN COTTAGE

He came into the world in a two-room cottage in a mining village 50 miles from Prague, the ancient capital of what then was Bohemia, which, since the world upset that began in 1914, has been Czechoslovakia. The hills around that birthplace were covered with forests and crowded with castles.

The name of the village was Kladno and the date of his birth May 9, 1873. The Mayor revisited this tiny hamlet last summer when he made a health pilgrimage to Europe, following his collapse after the Democratic national convention.

FIRED AS MINER

Anton Cermak was earning his own living by the time he was 11. At 18 he was in business for himself. He had married and built a house for his bride when he was 21. He moved onward and forward to riches and a power even outside the field of politics.

He was fired for asking higher wages at the Braidwood mines.

A few days later he was hired for outside work by the boss above the mine, Zollar. He was discharged when it was learned he had been fired below. That was when he was 16. Many years later Cermak met Zollar in Joliet and said:

"Thanks for firing me. You sent me to the Illinois Legislature."

It was not until 1902 that the rising young politician had the thrill of his first "big" party caucus. After feeling his way carefully in the political life of the old Tenth Ward, the time had come when he was being mentioned as a possibility for the ticket as a candidate for the State Legislature.

POLITICAL START

Roger Sullivan, then Democracy's boss hereabouts, was at that caucus. So was George E. Brennan, the first lieutenant. When Cermak introduced himself to Brennan, the latter recognized the Tenth Ward man as one he had taught in eighth grade school classes at Braidwood.

Brennan also had set out as a miner. An accident caused the loss of a leg. He turned schoolmaster. Among his pupils was Anton J. Cermak. At the caucus Brennan said:

"I've been hearing about a young fellow named Cermak out in the Tenth Ward, but I never connected him with you. What can I do for you?"

"They said I have a chance to go on the ticket — for the Legislature."

Brennan did not commit himself; Sullivan's word was law in such matters. But Cermak's name did go on the ticket. He was elected. But his name went on the ticket only after a fight where he had only one vote to spare. Therefore he never lost his grip on his district or ward.

In 1928 the then county board president began to make his plans to become Mayor of Chicago.

When primary day rolled around Cermak was without important opposition, while in the Republican camp there was a bitter three-cornered fight out of which former Mayor William Hale Thompson emerged victorious. Out of a heated campaign Cermak came victorious upon the crest of 671,189 votes, a majority for 194,257.

Always throughout his political life he had stood with and fought for the liberals and liberalism. He fought the Anti-Saloon League long before prohibition became a reality.

He lived vigorously, fought hard, would not be bossed, because he was the boss, had visions of an ever greater Chicago, gave his strength and thought to making it so.

DEATH OF 'TONY' STIRS CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 6.—(AP.)—A haggard, sad-eyed group of men—close personal friends and political associates of Anton J. Cermak—ended their incessant vigil at the Mayor's office in the City Hall today.

As news services flashed word of the Mayor's death to the world, Alderman Henry Sonnenschein, adviser and formerly confidential secretary to Cermak, turned from the late Mayor's private telephone with the words:

"Tony is dead."

A few minutes after the death, newsboys ran over the city, crying their extras.

"Cermak is dead! Cermak is dead!"

Sleepy citizens, aroused from their beds, rushed to purchase papers. The news, expected momentarily, still was a shock.

Plans for the funeral of Mayor Cermak will be made at a special session of the City Council tomorrow.

Burial will be in the Bohemian National Cemetery, the burial place of Mrs. Cermak. It is understood that arrangements already have been made for a Catholic priest, a Protestant minister and a rabbi to participate in the services.

MORE TROOPS SENT TO HOLD CHINA WALL

Associated Press.

A Japanese campaign to seize China's fortifications in the Great Wall and garrison them for the purpose of the Japanese sponsored state of Manchukuo was stubbornly resisted on three fronts.

Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang sent two more regular divisions from Peiping to Kupiekow, only 50 miles northwest of the old Chinese capital, to aid in defense against a Japanese army approaching from Jehol City.

Farther eastward a Japanese force seized Fanchiakow, another important pass and a third Japanese unit was advancing in Chiehlinkow. Both met desperate resistance. The capture of Weichang, between Jehol City and Chihfeng, in the Province of Jehol, by Japanese followed another hard battle.

Chinese turned against Tang Yu-Lin, the fleeing governor of Jehol, demanding his death. Japanese reports said he was about 40 miles northwest of Jehol City, his capital, which fell Saturday.

Inquiries were made concerning safety of an American missionary, Harriet F. Minns, who refused to leave the Jehol war zone.

Marshal Chang Making Stand Near Koupiekow

PEIPING, March 6.—(AP.)—Twenty miles north of Koupeikow, Chang Hsiao-Liang's army is making its last stand against the Japanese pushing toward the Great Wall of China from Jehol City, Chinese headquarters said this afternoon.

Koupeikow is just inside the wall 65 miles northeast of here and 50 miles from Jehol. There is a pass through the wall at that point.

The communique said there was fighting at Hsifengkow Pass, 45 miles southeast of Jehol City, and also in the northern sector near Chihfeng, where Gen. Sun Tien-Ying engaged a Japanese force near Weichang.

There was word early this morning that Tang Yu-Lin, Governor of Jehol who evacuated his capital before the Japanese came, had been seen near Koupeikow. Marshal Chang ordered a body of troops to arrest him there, but when the soldiers arrived they found he had gone.

Japanese Rout Chinese After Fierce Battle

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, March 6.—(AP.)—One of the heaviest battles of the Jehol campaign took place yesterday near Weichang, 55 miles southwest of Chihfeng, where Gen. Takata engaged a force of Chinese presumably commanded by Sun Tien-Ying.

The Japanese said the enemy had been annihilated and that the Japanese losses were 10 dead and 29 wounded.

Other dispatches reaching here indicated that the Japanese had seized all the passes through the Great Wall of China except that at Koupeikow, which has been left open purposely to permit the remnants of the Chinese army to flee into North China.

Mrs. Gill Gaining In Fight for Life

MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—(INS.)—Mrs. Joseph Gill, 36-year-old wife of a Florida utility official, seriously wounded in the fusillade of bullets Giuseppe Zangara aimed at President Roosevelt three weeks before his inauguration, was on the road to recovery today.

Physicians said this morning her condition was "satisfactory" and, barring unforseen complications, she is expected to pull through.

Military Rule In Greece After Vote Upheaval

ATHENS, Greece, March 6.—(AP.)—Gen. Plastiras, Army commander and leader of the revolutionary government of 1922-24, set up a military government in Greece today.

Gen. Plastiras, following unfavorable polling for the government in the general elections, proclaimed dictatorships on behalf of Premier Eleutherios Venizelos.

Order prevailed following publication of the manifesto prohibiting all gatherings and announcing martial law.

Yesterday's general election resulted in a slight majority for the party headed by former Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris. Gen. Plastiras asserted that in his opinion this situation did not permit of the establishment of a stable government.

The cabinet headed by Premier Venizelos resigned at midday. It was reported that President Zaimis might also resign, but hope was expressed that this would be averted.

TRIBUTE PAID BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt in a statement today expressed the regret of himself and the nation at the death of Mayor Cermak, of Chicago.

The President said:

"It is needless to say that the news of the death of Mayor Cermak affects me very deeply and very personally. Aside from the tragic chain of events of which his death is the result, a very warm friendship and a very high respect for Mayor Cermak's ability, friendship and loyalty to his friends would have made his loss a heavy one to me under any circumstances.

"The brave fight he made shows clearly the wonderful courage of the man. The country at large and the great city of Chicago in particular will miss a strong and resolute character."

HITLER SWEEPS INTO POWERS OF DICTATOR

Reichstag Expected To Adjourn For 2 Years

BERLIN, March 6.—(AP.)—That the Reichstag in all likelihood will adjourn for two years after a brief session is the opinion in government circles after the National Socialist landslide in the Reichstag and Prussian Diet elections yesterday gave the National government a decisive majority.

The cabinet will meet Tuesday to set the date for the Richstag convocation.

The electoral endorsement of Hitler government's "nationalistic revolution" with its policy of suppressing Communists and Socialists leaves no doubt that the next few months will be devoted to wiping out the last vestiges of both Democracy and Communism.

Hitler's Nazis will comprise the largest group ever sent to a German parliament, the final tabulation giving them 288 seats in a Reichstag with 647. Their Nationalist allies got 52 seats. They got 17,264,000 and 3,131,000 votes respectively of the 39,290,000 cast.

UNIONS FACE ANNIHILATION

If the Communists are ruled out, as is expected, Chancellor Hitler will dominate the situation entirely, the Nazis thus obtaining clear majorities on both the Reichstag and the Prussian Diet. The Nazis and Nationalists won 43 and 9 per cent, respectively, of the Diet seats.

In view of the sweeping Reichstag victory, the trade unions, with a total of 7,000,000 workers and white collar employes under Socialist and Centrist influence, face annihilation. These have been the backbone of the resistance to Hitler and it remains to be seen whether Hitler, like Mussolini, will attempt to create a substitute Fascist labor organization.

Another question is what attitude the Catholic Centrists and their allies, the Bavarian Populists, will take towards the government and what attitude the government will adopt towards them. They were the only large opposition element not campaigning under severe repressive measures.

Vast changes in officialdom, carrying the spirit of Hitlerism into every home and vitally affecting the nation's cultural, economic and social life, are most likely to be effected. If Hitler adheres to the program of the government, the foreign as well as domestic policy will be most militant.

DEMAND FULL RECOGNITION

A claim that the election victory entitles the Nazis to take over the government was put forth in a statement issued by Hitler's press agency, which said:

"The National Socialists demand full recognition from young Germany. A wave of national awakening sweeping all classes, and before which Marxism is falling, is the achievement of the National Socialist movement. Thus, only national socialism can complete the job."

It announced drastic domestic measures.

"National Socialism has the power and will use it to execute the judgment of the people against Marxism, proceeding in the best interests of the nation."

IMPERIAL COLORS FLY

The Nazi swastika and old imperial colors were hoisted in the town halls of several cities today amid acclamations of the population. They were raised in Emden, Mannheim and Freiburg today, following similar action in other large cities yesterday. Seven Iron Front and Soviet flags were seized at Socialist and Communist centers and publicly burned in the marketplace at Osanbreueck.

By KENNETH A. Nagel,
Cipher Editor.

Again we hear from William Dulz, of McKees Rocks. He contributes Cipher No. 67. It's good. The answer is interesting, too.

See if you can have it completed before you get tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. If you can't solve it today be sure to get the tip tomorrow.

Now for Cipher No. 66. Did you solve it? It was hard enough. Perhaps the key will clear up any difficulties you might have had. At least it should. The answer was:

"Personality is said to be the key word to success, but I think a little bit of patience is also needed. How about it, fans?"

SCIENTIST GIVES BELLEVUE TALK

Christian Science as the road to spiritual achievement was the subject of a lecture yesterday by Paul A. Harsch at the Bellevue Theater, 609 Lincoln avenue. Harsch, a member of the board of lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., said:

"Mary Baker Eddy discovered, founded and gave the name to Christian Science. She established a church in every civilized country of the earth, where order and progress indicate that the people are given to looking above wholly material things. Mrs. Eddy was herself healed by this revelation when physicians had despaired of saving her life."

The lecture was sponsored by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Bellevue.

MY BEST WAR STORY

By A. R. Gross,
257½ Martsolf Avenue,
West View, Pa.
(Battery E, 107th Field Artillery.)

We were ordered to cross the Vesle River at Fismes on the afternoon of September 5, 1918. We had crossed the river safely in broad daylight and were slowly wending our way up the hill, when we passed a couple of doughboy friends of mine who were "digging in," hoping to get a few hours' sleep.

As we were supposed to go into a position a few hundred yards ahead, I stopped a few minutes to chat with them, and asked them to build the "splinter proof" large enough for three, and if possible I would come back to get a few winks of much needed sleep myself. They kidded me for being too lazy to build my own nest, and invited me to attend their pajama party.

After going into position at the top of the hill, we were ordered to fire immediately. I didn't get an opportunity to see my friends until the next morning, when I had to go to the foot of the hill to help carry ammunition.

On our first trip down I ran over to the spot where I had left my friends the day before, and found to my horror that a "Jerry 77" had made a hit through the night. They had been partly buried, only their feet being left uncovered.

I cleared away part of the earth and found a note scrawled on an old envelope. It said:

"Please don't disturb."

Presumably it was intended for me, so that I would crawl in without awakening them. The "Grim Reaper" had passed me up again.

(The foregoing story was a prize-winner in the "My Best War Story" contest conducted by veterans of Allegheny County. The last of these accounts of war experiences will be published tomorrow. Four tickets to the war film, "The Big Drive," at the Fulton Theater, will be awarded to the writers of the stories.)

Horse Thieves Busy As Dobbin Returns

HAVRE, Mont., March 6.—(AP.)—Economic stress which encouraged farmers to abandon expensive gasoline motored machinery, has brought a problem to ranchers here.

Farmers again look with favor on old dobbin, and the local price of good work horses has risen to $40 or $60 a head. Organized horse stealing has resulted. A horse pro tive association is being form

HOUSE TO VOTE ON BEER BILL MARCH 20

WASHINGTON, March 6. — (AP.) — From the next Speaker of the House there came today most positive assurances that "The Democratic party will make good its promises and legalize beer at the earliest possible moment."

That moment, said Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic speakership nominee, may come before April 1. In any event, he asserted, "it won't be many weeks."

Since the session is to begin Thursday, Rainey said, the House might even act March 20, on a bill to modify the Volstead Act. House rules permit any measure to be brought up under a suspension of the rules the first and third Mondays in any month—and March 20 is the third Monday.

If such a procedure were resorted to, it would require a two-thirds majority for passage of the beer bill. Rainey held the belief "that majority could be obtained without much difficulty."

In the Congress that just closed, the House did its part in legalizing beer. It passed and sent to the Senate by a 230 to 165 vote the Collier bill which would have permitted the manufacture and sale, and have taxed, beer containing 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight.

SEAT DEMANDED BY ELLENBOGEN

As Representative-elect Henry Ellenbogen demanded his right to a seat in the House, a precedent established more than 80 years ago was cited at Washington in an effort to oust him.

Harry A. Estep, whom Ellenbogen defeated in the November election, has raised the question of whether the latter is eligible because he has not been seven years a citizen of the United States as required by the Constitution.

Estep in a memorial filed with a committee of the House has pointed out that the Senate in 1849 decided that James Shields, senator-elect from Illinois, was disqualified to retain his seat because of not having been a citizen for the required time.

Action on the Ellenbogen case is expected early in the special session which opens Thursday.

Ellenbogen will not have been seven years a citizen until June, but, he says:

"Gov. Pinchot has certified my election. My name is on the rolls of the new House. That's all that's necessary."

Ellenbogen says the constitutional question as to his right to a seat was not justified, continuing:

"I interpret the constitution to mean that representatives must be seven-year citizens at the time the regular session starts, the first Monday in December, or now the first Monday in January.

"With the special session called in advance of that time, I feel I am entitled to the seat."

Texas Guinan Dickers For Stolen Valuables

CHICAGO, March 6.—(INS.)—A cloak of mystery today surrounded the return to Texas Guinan, night club hostess, of some $40,000 worth of jewelry and wearing apparel stolen from her in a holdup Saturday. It was reported that a payment of $10,000 was made by her manager to complete negotiations for return of the valuables.

Miss Guinan informed police early Saturday morning that two bandits had made "a sucker out of me" by robbing her of the valuables in front of her Lake Shore Drive apartment house.

McKees Rocks Fire Delays Street Cars

Firemen this morning battled a stubborn blaze in the basement and first floor of the McKees Rocks Furniture Company building, a three-story brick structure at 420-422 Chartiers avenue. Furniture on the second and third floors was damaged by smoke.

Street car and auto traffic in Chartiers avenue was blocked for 45 minutes, causing many trolley patrons to be late for work in the downtown district.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

Policeman's Bible Saved Day for New Cabinet

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Only a White House policeman's penchant for reading the Bible during his long night on duty made it possible for President Roosevelt's Cabinet to be sworn in Saturday.

When the new Cabinet officers were all assembled and Associate Justice Benjamin Cardozo was prepared to administer the oath a Bible could not be immediately found. Then Officer Charles S. Baum produced his worn copy from his locker.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, it seems, took several Bibles with them, while President Roosevelt's Bible at the moment was still in the custody of the Clerk of the Supreme Court.

SUPPORT ASKED BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—In his first post-inaugural speech, President Roosevelt last night told the American Legion that he invited its support and that "of all men and women who love their country, who know the meaning of sacrifice, and who, in every emergency, have given splendid and generous service to the nation."

The speech was arranged some two weeks ago at the request of Louis Johnson, commander of the Legion. The very brief message was delivered at the White House.

The President said in part:

"The men of the ranks of the Legion, in the trying days of 15 years ago, offered for the welfare and preservation of their country the ultimate contribution that a human being can give.

"The deep necessities of peace are no less serious. It is a mistake to assume that the virtues of war differ essentially from the virtues of peace. All life is a battle against the forces of nature, against the mistakes and human limitations of man, against the forces of selfishness and inertia, of laziness and fear. These are enemies with whom we never conclude an armistice."

CAPITAL GUESTS 'MAROONED'

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(Universal.)—The nation's capital was slowly returning to normalcy today after the Roosevelt inaugural festivities.

Thousands of the 250,000 visitors, who came from all parts of the country to witness the induction into office of President Roosevelt, were marooned as a result of the national bank holiday.

Hotels all have posted signs, "No checks cashed," and the guests, unable to pay their bills, are simply staying on and running them up higher, and frantically telegraphing home for funds.

Many of those injured in the crush along the line of march of the inaugural parade are still in the hospitals. Most of the injuries are minor.

Pine Hollow Man Killed Cleaning Gun

Deputy coroners today were investigating the death of Oscar Kubacher, 46, who shot himself accidentally while cleaning a gun in his home, Pine Hollow, near McKees Rocks, yesterday, according to a morgue report.

Howell Suffers Neck Infection

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, developed an infection in the neck today in addition to pneumonia, but officials at Walter Reed Hospital said he was "holding his own" despite his weakened condition.

Supervisor of City's Public Nurses Dies

Miss Emma Scheiderman, of 2612 Norwood avenue, North Side, district supervisor of Public Health Nurses for Pittsburgh, died early today in Allegheny General Hospital after an illness of two months. She was a graduate of Allegheny General Hospital.

Will Earhart, Dr. Baker On Air

Speaking from the studios of KDKA, Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, discusses the topic, "What Next in Germany," over a nation-wide chain of NBC associate stations tonight at 10 o'clock. Dr. Baker recently returned from a lecture tour of Germany.

Today marks the opening of a series of National Business Women's Week radio talks, the first on WCAE at 3 p. m.—featuring Judge Florence E. Allen, of the Ohio Supreme Court. Ruth Nichols, noted aviatrix, is guest speaker over WJAS at 4:30. Miss Mary E. Dillon, president of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company, is listed over WJZ tomorrow at 4:45, and Rheta Childe Dorr, one-time war correspondent and author, over WCAE at 3:30 Friday.

Dr. Will Earhart, supervisor of music of the Pittsburgh Public Schools, comes to the microphone as the Parent Education Program speaker on WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock. He has chosen for his subject, "Should My Child Take Music Lessons?"

Program Pointers

Additional highlights on the ether schedule are:

Medbury Tells How He Got That Way

By AIRCASTER

John P. Medbury, the humorist, who came from California five weeks ago for the comedy spot on that new cigaret program over the Columbia chain, refused point blank to tell his age, but admits that he is in his early nicotines. His nationality, you'll have to figure out for yourself. He says his father was a dentist by extraction, and Scotch by absorption.

Medbury was never very bright in school. In fact, his parents had to apply for extradition papers to get him out of the third grade. He also went to college for four years. When asked how he stood in college, he said:

"Two fellows held me."

After he left school he got a job as soda dispenser in a drugstore. He explained:

"And if I do say so myself, I was a gentleman of the first jerkwater."

From the drugstore, Medbury, whose program now rates a top listing with the air's best comic offerings, went to work as salesman for a large furniture concern. His next job was efficiency expert with the Los Angeles Fire Department, but they let him go when they discovered that he had put unbreakable glass in all the fire alarm boxes.

Then the war came and Medbury enlisted in the Navy. After the armistice was signed he went to work writing jokes for a San Francisco newspaper. And how did he happen to enter radio work? His excuse:

"Well, I figured I could annoy more people that way."

Barbara Gould, beauty expert visiting Pittsburgh this week, gave the first of three beauty talks on WJAS this a. m. She'll return to the WJAS mike Wednesday and Friday at 10:15 a. m. . . . Ted Husing stages another of his lapel-microphone acts aboard the new liner, "Queen of Bermuda," just prior to her maiden voyage tomorrow. A novelty of the broadcast, scheduled on CBS at 2:15, will be ship-to-shore switches between Husing and another lapel-equipped announcer.

'The Beauty Winner' On WHBC

With June Knight, blonde star of the stage and screen, portraying the leading role, "The Beauty Winner," a drama revealing the fate of beauty queens, is presented on WHBC, Canton, O., today at 2 p. m.

The dramatization is based on an article published in the next issue of the American Weekly, feature magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph.

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

The sender of that monkey problem has submitted the correct answer. You remember the question? Five men and a monkey on a desert isle. They spend a day gathering cocoanuts. Too tired after they finished, they settle down to sleep for the night. One man awakens and divides the cocoanuts. He divides by five and he has one left over for the monk. Each man during the night repeats the process, always one left over. Dawn arrives and they divide the remainder by five and none left over. How many did they gather?

If you didn't get the answer don't fret. It took C. L. six pages of trigonometry, algebra and geometry to find out. The answer was 49,996, according to the figures. A lot of cocoanuts if you ask me. J. Nevins, of Belle Vernon, says 3,126. Betty Nedley, of Ardara, says 3,121. I think the whole problem is cocoanuts.

Suppose until we get all this mathematics out of our system we help out the poor old fellow who has a fox, a hen and a bag of grain. He must take them across a river but he can only ferry one of his possessions at a time. If he takes the fox over first, the hen will eat the grain. If the fox and hen remain, the fox will do away with the hen. If he takes the hen first he is faced with a similar problem on the other side of the river on his next trip. He can do it though, but how?

Rocco M., Irwin—Your letter about animals intrigues me. If you are thinking about starting a zoo in Irwin, give me the lowdown. If it's domestic animals you are inquiring about, write to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Department of Agriculture, and you'll get quick service.

Clifford Gardner staggers me with the solution to the problem asking the various ages of members of the family. He doped it out in seconds and there is not enough room here to print all the ciphers.

Hope those Beechview and Brushton residents will be paying strict attention to the broadcasts tomorrow. We are going to need your co-operation.

Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer, can feel proud of the recognition won by Pittsburgh as the safest city in America. The marvelous record of 27.1 per cent fewer traffic fatalities for the city last year was accomplished in the face of only a small decrease in traffic. "The public can co-operate with our traffic planners by continued watchfulness," says Mr. McIntyre.

As SMOOTH as an Old Gold

IF A smoker says, "All cigarettes taste alike!" he has neglected his cigarette education!

He hasn't learned how much better a cigarette can taste when it's made exclusively of pure, sun-ripened, queen-leaf tobaccos, with no hot-burning artificial flavorings added.

NATURAL SMOOTHNESS . . . You won't find it in harsh tobaccos. Nor in artificially flavored tobaccos. But you WILL find it always in pure, natural-flavored, all-tobacco OLD GOLDS.

AID IN RETURNS ON SALES TAX

HARRISBURG, March 6—(AP.)—The Department of Revenue today announced collection of emergency relief sales taxes to date totals $100,368.

Preparations for further collection of the tax, which must be completed by April 1, are being made with field men assigned to every section of the state to help taxpayers make returns.

This week representatives of the department are to sit in courthouses and municipal buildings throughout the commonwealth for this purpose.

The district offices in Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Altoona, Meadville, Ridgway, Williamsport and Scranton also are to be opened.

Ohio Man on Trial In Double Slaying

LIMA, O., March 6.—(INS.)—Loren E. Truesdale, 23, today went to trial for a second time on charges of killing his brother and brother's "girl friend" in Lima's quarry murders.

Truesdale, a young farm hand, is accused of killing his brother, Earl Truesdale, 20, and Miss Thelma Woods, 17, in an outbreak of jealousy, and is charged with weighting their bodies with rock and throwing them into an abandoned quarry near "Spooners road" here. The first trial ended in a jury disagreement.

American Student Gun Victim in Vienna

VIENNA, March 6.—(AP.)—Josef Tarshes, of Washington, D. C., a university student, died today of two bullet wounds inflicted while he was on a hike in the mountains not far from the city. Police said it was suicide, but they detained his companions for questioning.

ASYLUM WALL FALLS, 2 DIE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 6.—(AP.)—Two inmates were killed and six others suffered injuries today when a rear wall of the Shelby County Hospital for the Poor collapsed under pressure of high winds at 5:30 a. m. today.

Zeb Vance Britton, 65, and Rubin Goldberg, 45, both of Memphis were crushed to death under a pile of brick when the wall gave in. Max Piesofsky, 62; S. J. Duckworth, 66; J. E. Murphy, 58; Charles A. Hart, 57; Joseph Brown, 89, and Joe Miller, 71, were injured.

A ninth occupant of the ward, J. D. Stevens, 54, blind in one eye, escaped injury.

The nine men were asleep in a ward that formerly had been used for the insane before the hospital's insane were transferred to the Western State Hospital at Bolivar some months ago.

Pershing Quits Post In Economy League

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Gen. John J. Pershing has resigned from the advisory council of the National Economy League, but expressed approval of the organization's efforts to reduce the cost of government.

Prolonged absences from the United States as chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission, he said, would prevent him from taking an active part in the league's work.

Mangone

Suits

It's a tailored spring, with greater than ever appreciation of Phillip Mangone, who makes an art of molding a shoulder line, and shaping a collar or a lapel to a point of uncopiable perfection.

Mangone Suits, covering the range from mannish severity, to a feminine softness which stops just short of fussiness, are exclusive with Horne's, in Pittsburgh.

One of the new lengths in jackets is introduced in this suit of navy blue crepe woolen, with cross tucking dressing it up. A three-piece model, with a fine white satin blouse. $79.50.

Beginning Tomorrow and Continuing All This Week

The debutante set of Erie has a magnetic attraction for Alan and Charles Chalfant Shenk, twin sons of Mrs. Wilbur Shenk, of Pittsburgh.

Two years ago come March 24 Alan Shenk married Mary Lan Van Cleve, a leader in Erie's smart younger set.

And now comes word of the betrothal of Alan's twin brother to another Erie girl Marion Louise Claus, daughter of Mrs. A. A. Claus, of Erie. The wedding is to take place in the fall.

Miss Claus

The engagement was announced in a new way at a buffet luncheon Saturday in the Claus home—a jig-saw puzzle. When the puzzle was placed together, the guests had a picture of the two young people.

The Alan Shenks and Mrs. Wilbur Shenk were in Erie for the betrothal party.

The bride-to-be, a descendant of one of Erie's pioneer families, is a member of the Junior League, and a graduate of Knox School, Cooperstown, N. Y. In her senior year at Knox she was chosen queen of the winter carnival.

Her fiance attended Lawrenceville School, and is a graduate of Princeton, where he was a member of Cloister Inn.

Plans for Federation's Biennial Council on May 22-26 Shaped

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

May seems a long way off at this writing. Nevertheless plans are rapidly being shaped for the General Federation's biennial council which is to be held May 22 to 26 in Richmond. Mrs. L. J. Giles, president of the Virginia Federation, and Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, Virginia director and local chairman of the executive board, are the official hostesses.

There is so much that is historically interesting in and near Richmond and much time will be given to sightseeing. For those delegates arriving on Sunday a day of sightseeing has been arranged on Monday.

A trip to Williamsburg, the seat of the second oldest institution of learning, William and Mary College, and once the capital of the colony and the first capital of the state, is included in the itinerary arranged for play day, which is Friday, the 26th. Luncheon will probably be served on "the green" of the old Governors' Palace, which is being restored at a cost of about $10,000,000. Thrift is to be the Council theme and on directors' night a symposium on "Filling Our Thrift Chests" will be conducted. Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, is to be one of the week's speakers.

McKeesport Juniors' Dance on March 15

Invitations have been issued for the annual winter dance of McKeesport Section, National Council of Jewish Juniors, to be held on Wednesday evening, March 15, in the Chatterbox, William Penn Hotel.

The proceeds will be used to further the social service program of the section. Reservations are being taken by Miss Ruth Sieff, of Bailey avenue, McKeesport.

JERSEYS IN MANY VARIETIES APPEAR IN STYLE SUCCESSES

FASHIONS MAY come and go, but jerseys — apparently—go on forever. Jerseys of all varieties appear in the new collections of spring and summer clothes now being launched. There are plaid jerseys for new sport dresses, dotted jerseys for suits and coats and jackets, angora jerseys for dress-and-jacket combinations to wear at beach resorts and in the country, rainproof jerseys for topcoats. In fact, practically every type of jersey imaginable is listed among the new fashion successes.

ONE DESIGNER, who always is a booster for jersey fabric, has made an entirely new collection of jersey materials. She uses them plain and patterned, in every variety of color. Town suits are of black jersey, entire dresses are of jersey in all-over patterns in variations of geometric forms; even full-length coats are in her new jerseys that may be pulled and twisted every way without losing their shape.

ONE OF the most successful new materials is a jersey whose woven pattern may be used from either side. As the sketch shows, its diamond-shaped pattern varies when the material is reversed; on one side the effect is plaided, on the other, in dots.

THE SUIT sketched is of plain-color jersey, belted with leather, studded with bright-colored stones.

Mrs. Lillian M. Taylor, of Erie, Pa., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mildred Taylor, to William A. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kennedy, of Avalon. No wedding date has been named.

Pittsburgh Composer's Songs Will Be Sung

Two groups of songs by a local composer, Mary Hildebrand Parsons, will be sung by Gertrude Sykes King at Friday's meeting of the Crafton Woman's Club, with Miss Parsons at the piano. Mrs. James Marshall Miller is in charge of the program, which will also include numbers by the Presbyterian Woman's Chorus and an address on modern poets and their works by Mrs. W. G. Ralston, of Butler.

Tourists Will Give Program of Ballads

An afternoon of Irish ballads offers entertainment for the Tourists when they meet today in the Congress of Clubs. On the program are Mrs. H. D. Everett, piano; Mrs. Myrtle B. Brice, violin; Mrs. Regina Spilker Linn, Mrs. Frank Myler, Mrs. William B. Hartley, Miss Alta Scultz and Mrs. William Cook, vocalists. Mrs. William Herron and Mrs. W. H. Patterson are the accompanists.

'Madame Butterfly' At Crescent Hill

The Crescent Hill Woman's Club will give over tomorrow evening to "Mme. Butterfly." Miss Juliet Bartletti will sing soprano airs; Mrs. Francis E. Burke is directing and will also play the score; the story of the opera will be told by Mrs. Colin K. Lee and a duet will be sung by Miss Bartletti and Miss Helen Steele. Costumes will be worn by those on the program.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes.

Dear W. W.: Here's a tip for your readers who are jig-saw puzzle dizzy . . . Tell them to use an ordinary (but new) blotter for assembling the pieces—then they will not slide all over the table . . . You ought to get a salute from the blotter makers, after this boost. You probably won't, though . . . But write a rap about them—and see how many letters you get from them! . . . Very few people tell you of the sugary comments—but they never fail to say: "D'ja see that awful thing about you?" . . . Garlic is now for sale wrapped in cellophane! . . . If the people who eat it could only be, aaah . . . I know you know how to write a nice letter, so will you please let me see your answer to K. C. B., the most famous columnist of his time? . . . I miss his column yet! He is so human.

Call the editor of Cosmopolitan . . . The least you could do is send James Montgomery Flagg a copy of his penmanship—but autograph it first. . . . I ran into the best two-men booking agency team on Broadway—Charlie Morrison and Danny Winkler . . . Less than a month old—and discovering headlines! . . . They send their regards . . . Now far be it from me to make the Eagle scream or dramatize my patriotism, but did you know this? . . . That those tiny (tied in a bow) American flag emblems (with the gilt-dipped pin for the lapel) are made in Japan? And that the fact is stated on the emblem? . . . Well, they certainly are! . . . I'm not putting my hands on both hips in indignation—but my dear sir—how come, with all this depression, we have to go to Japan for our own flag designs?

Helen Patten, a florist in Toledo, wants to know if there is, in your opinion, any worthy person in her city—so she might send him or her orchids, gratis . . . How about Dick Roberts, of the Blade, there? Let him accept the orchid for all the Toledo scribes, who did "Front Page" for the town's poor.

Your fame is growing, sir . . . Miss Barbara Dow, of 5423 La Mirada avenue, Hollywood, has a parrot bearing your full name. "Walter" once belonged to a sailor, according to The Hollywood Citizen and he certainly is like you a lot . . . Janet Reade says to call her. Very important . . . J. Z. phoned. Said the AMPA would like you at one of its luncheons (12:45 noon) and he added that Hal Horne said some day they'd like to have you as guest of honor . . . Who was it who once said: "Nice place, Broadway. They never give you a dinner—until you can afford one?" . . . Lois Wild at Medical Arts, very ill, major op . . . She can see friends, however . . . Jefferson De Angelis, the one-time star, is at the Orange Memorial Hospital in New Jersey—in a desperate condition. Where are his friends and admirers of the old days? . . . Crazy about "Raising Junior" on the air. Mrs. Peter Dixon of the cast was in "Beauty Contest" with you.

If you don't think they are guarding F. D. R., hear me! . . . When Roosevelt was here for the Astor Hotel affair recently, a young man on the pavement happened to reach back for his 'kerchief so he could sneeze into it—as Roosevelt came out. . . . At least four cops, who saw him reach for his hip, pummeled him senseless until they realized he wasn't a Zangara. . . . I saw one of Jack High's tuxedo-attired chums in the Savoy-Plaza Childs' the other dawning—pick up the 50-cent tip Jack left for the waitress—and replace the coin with three nickels! . . . No laughing matter, even if he was in dress clothes. He probably needed it. . . . It's a girl at the H. Martins . . . Eugene A. Kelly says he'd appreciate it if you said that Honore Palmer, of the Chicago Palmer House tribe, once helped feed and clothe him when he was desperate. Kelly says he now is in the process of amounting to something and would like his benefactor to know it for he, Kelly, doesn't know where to reach him. "I think it would make Palmer happy," said Kelly, "because he gets such a kick out of helping people." . . . Pretty big of Kelly, I think, after all these years (it was four years ago) to want the world to know it.

The entertainers who appear at clubs and private parties are throwing themselves a charity ball at Palm Garden tonight . . . They've contributed much to free shows at hospitals, charities, etc., so they certainly rate a free ad on their affair . . . Clara, Lu and Em, of Chicago (purveyors of backyard gossip on the air) will make their initial visit to New York March 6 . . . Their visit, they admitted, will not only be to see the town—but what you paragraphers look like . . . Their real names are Louise Starkey, Isabelle Carothers and Helen King . . . S'a boy over at the Harry Delfs and a girl at the Ralph (composing room) Fischer's! . . . Steve Hannagan is now exploiting something new . . . A combination shirt—and underwear! . . . You merely unbutton your shirt (with collar attached) and presto!—you're Adam! . . . Fency that!

Your Girl Friday.

La Rue, Raft May Team In Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.

After all this talk about Jack La Rue stepping into George Raft's shoes, Paramount now plans to feature the two of them in "The Trumpet Blows."

This bright exploitation idea hinges upon a settlement of Raft's difficulties with Paramount, but Hollywood momentarily expects a truce to be called.

Of course, you've heard that La Rue, who is something of Georgie's type but a little taller, stepped into "The Story of Temple Drake" when Georgie stepped out. Before that, Raft had replaced La Rue in "Scarface."

Mr. Raft

In the new story, which is being written by Milton Gropper and Oliver H. P. Garrett, the two will play brothers.

Meanwhile, Georgie is still in Hollywood. His mother is improved, so there is no necessity for him to fly east. Over the long-distance telephone, however, he has arranged for her to have every care.

Even bank holidays have their lighter moments. Hub Keavey hears from a family in Detroit that was caught with 18 cents and some money in the kids' bank. Then suddenly they remembered that the kids' bank was one of the kind that you have to take down to the cashier to get opened.

Ely S. Culbertson gave a $1 tip to an RKO waitress and she brought it back with a fountain pen for him to autograph. She didn't spend it . . . Those two nimrods, Lew Ayres and Norman Foster, are back from a wild boar hunt on the Santa Cruz Islands. Lew got three and Foster two . . . The last show put on by Jean Malin at the Club New Yorker was plenty informal. And that little brunette in the chorus had George Raft call to take her home five nights in a row. Lyle Talbot is interested too.

Mr. Ayres

A letter from Marie Dressler tells studio associates she will be leaving New York soon for Hollywood. Her next picture will be "The Late Christopher Bean" . . . The property man over at Paramount looked desperate when Director Eddie Sutherland ordered him to rush out and get a jigsaw puzzle, all put together . . . One of Gary Cooper's favorite ambitions now is to go to India. I have an idea he may join Douglas Fairbanks over there.

TRIO HOLDS UP CHAIN STORE

Three bandits held up a chain store at 7300 Hamilton avenue shortly before 9 o'clock this morning and escaped with $56, according to a report to the police by the manager, H. J. Harvison, of 305 North Winebiddle street.

While the third man waited in a car outside, two entered the store, forced him to retire to the rear, rifled the cash register, and sped away, Harvison told police.

Entering a chain store at North Homewood and Hamilton avenues during the night, thieves stole $25 worth of cigarets, according to a report to police today. The thieves gained entrance to a tire shop adjoining and forced a connecting door, the report stated.

Thieves Loot Two North Side Stores

Thieves who entered by the skylight carried off goods valued at $500 from the J. G. McCrory five and ten-cent store, 817 East Ohio street, over the week-end, police were informed today. A ladder had been used to scale the two-story building. Apparently the same thieves entered the grocery of Mrs. E. Weiblinger, at 815 East Ohio street, and took groceries valued at $18.

SALES TAX HERE $2,889,225

Merchants of Allegheny County must pay approximately $2,889,225 in retail taxes levied by the state for emergency relief for the six months ending February 28, according to figures compiled by them. This represents a 1 per cent tax on gross sales, imposed over protest of merchants as "an intolerable added burden."

The total is apportioned among the following mercantile classifications: Food stores, $787,005; general stores, $611,550; automotive, $436,995; apparel, $237,690; furniture, $166,770; restaurants, $110,340; lumber, $135,765; miscellaneous, including radio, hardware, jewelry, stationery, etc., $403,110.

Braddock Woman Hurt in Car Crash

Mrs. Rose Campbell, 41, of 2343 Braddock avenue, Braddock, was taken to St. Margaret's Hospital early today after an automobile in which she was riding collided with a pole in River avenue. The driver, Jack Strachan, of 234 South Evaline street, is said by police to have abandoned the machine after the collision.

Smith Heard On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York and Presidential candidate, is seen and heard in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News as he appears before the Senate Finance Committee with his plan for the restoration of prosperity. Among other things Mr. Smith tells the members that a sales tax should be levied.

Thrills abound in the outboard championship races at Lake Cannon, Winterhaven, Florida.

William H. Woodin, the new secretary of the treasury, is honored as a composer of music when a selection called "Chinese Magic," written by him, is broadcast in New York.

From Palm Beach, Florida, comes pictures of tiny sons and daughters of prominent visitors sparring in a ring.

"Bob" Henderson is seen and heard as he displays his collection of 6,000 miniature books at Brookline, Mass., valued at $150,000.

(Note—Because of the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs to time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

Lee Tracy is the star of "Clear All Wires," story of news ferret who exploits himself, opening on the Penn screen Friday.

Randolph Scott Gets Zane Grey Tale

Randolph Scott has been informed by Paramount that he is to play the sole feature role in Zane Grey's "Stairs of Sand." Scott at present is featured in "Supernatural" with Carole Lombard and Allen Dinehart. Before he goes into "Stairs of Sand" he will be co-featured with Kent Taylor in "Sunset Pass," another Zane Grey story recently purchased.

Cary Grant, Fred March In Air Picture

Cary Grant is to play a prominent roll in "The Eagle and the Hawk," at the Paramount studio, where Stuart Walker is preparing to begin production of this air story by John Monk Saunders. Frederic March will play the part of the Eagle, while Jack Oakie and Sir Guy Standing have been assigned the next two important roles.

The part in "The Eagle and the Hawk" will be Grant's first since his recovery from a recent operation.

Fourth 'Panther' Girl Given Contract

Verna Hillie is the fourth "Panther Woman" to win a Paramount contract. Upon completion of her first featured part, the feminine lead in Zane Grey's "Under the Tonto Rim," Miss Hillie, Detroit's entrant in the recent "Panther Woman" contest, signed a long-term agreement with the studio. Kathleen Burke, who won the contest for the role in "Island of Lost Souls," and Lona Andre and Gail Patrick, runners-up, already had won their contracts.

Broadways of the World
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

SHEPHEARD'S HOTEL, CAIRO, Egypt—While digging up data for other columns about Cairo, let me start this one by telling you that my present home is unquestionably one of the world's most famous hotels. The charges are pretty high, there are no telephones in any of the rooms, there is no heating apparatus and the nights are doggone cold. But when you speak to an Egyptian along those lines, he raises his hands in horror.

"What of it?" he cries. "Don't you realize that you are living in an institution? Isn't it enough that you are the guest of one of the world's best known establishments? Have you considered the royalty that has preceded you—perhaps in your very room? Do you know how many people would give 10 years of their lives to be where you are?"

The Egyptians take this hotel very seriously. So do the English and so do many other folks around the world. The original hotel was established back in 1841, or some 30 years before the Suez Canal became an actual fact. The journey from Europe to the Far East was a matter of many weary months—and the traveler was only too happy to stay over in Cairo for a nip of brandy or a new camel before resuming his journey.

Along came an Englishman named Shepheard — evidently the Barney Gallant of his day—and saw a big opportunity pounding at his tent. He opened a small hotel under his name and, while I don't know about the camels, he handed out plenty of nips of good brandy. And before he knew it, he was so successful that he was able to change his underwear every month. Mr. Shepheard, I mean; not Barney Gallant.

Since those days the hotel has been rebuilt so many times that even the contractors have lost count. It is now, of course, a very modern establishment—if you are willing to forget about telephones and heat — and it draws a highly select clientele from all over the world. One of the directors told me that the operating company split a profit of over $180,000 for the last season.

And that—when you stop to consider that the hotel really enjoys but three good months and that there was a slight depression last season—is not so bad . . .

The change from the old Shepheard's to the new, of course, is very great. Modern Cairo didn't really begin to get going until the beginning of the present century and the old joint was a mighty perilous community. Most of the foreigners were housed in a restricted area behind locked gates, and the government refused to guarantee the safety of any visitor who remained outside the gates when they were locked at night.

Situated as it was, then, it is small wonder that the name of Shepheard's hotel has been flung at most of us ever since we were kids. Explorers, diplomats, writers, kings and whatnots have all made Shepheard's hotel their headquarters at one time or another. And the hostelry has been named in novels, love stories, adventure yarns and after-dinner stories as far back as I can remember.

Today, naturally, the thrill of adventure has been vastly removed. Writers, unless they are of the old school, no longer think of Shepheard's Hotel and Cairo in terms of love and excitement. For, with the place a tourist's hangout and with the police on every side, the worst that can happen to you is that you'll be bitten by a sandflea.

And fleas are of very little help to writers. They don't help an adventure story—and you certainly don't want to bring them in when you're speaking of love . . .

The lobby of this hotel is just about the hottest place in town. I'm using the slang expression, of course, and I'm not referring to the heat. Speaking frankly, Cairo as a resort is pretty much of a dud. After you've seen the Pyramids and the Sphinx and the museums and the women have done a little shopping for bargains that they could have bought more cheaply at home, you're practically finished.

You can't swim and you can't fish and your golf courses are plenty of miles from nowhere. Miami and the Riviera have it beaten a thousand ways to one as resorts—and the weather isn't much different either. But when you go to Miami, you can't have your picture taken beside the Pyramids. The best you can do is to buy a sailfish and have somebody snap you with that. So I guess that, as a satisfaction of ego, Cairo is the best place to visit.

More than that, when it comes to tea-drinking, this is unquestionably the world's foremost dunking spot. If you can squeeze into the lobby of this hotel any afternoon around five and tell me that you're a better ..an than I am, dunk-it-in.

And if that's a thrill to you, I guess you'll have the best time you ever had in all your life. What with the social background of the hotel and the fact that the English are the greatest customers, you find tea-guzzling what is real tea-guzzling. The inhalations are just as nois" as the inhibitions.

The gossip, it goes without saying, coincides. What is tea-drinking without a little gossip to go with it? It's just as necessary, I presume, as the lemon, the cream or the sugar. Or, for that matter, the tea.

Every new guest who enters the hotel is given the double 'o' in the double-quick. I had on a blue shirt and a two-day growth of whiskers when I marched through the lobby for the first time, and even I caused a certain amount of comment. So you can imagine what would have happened if I had been wearing a green shirt and only a one-day growth of whiskers!

The bars aren't very different. Around six o'clock, you'll find them crowded with men and women who are living only for the effect that their action of the moment may cause. Big men with small minds drink cocktails with their handkerchiefs dangling from their cuffs. And small women with big mouths laugh heartily at the most stupid remarks.

The styles are many and varied. I've seen women in white sport dresses sitting with other women who were encased in heavy furs. I've seen men in palm beach suits drinking on the terrace with men in Winter overcoats. And you can believe it or not, but at 10 o'clock this morning in the elevator I met an Englishman who was in complete full dress and carried a pearl gray top hat! How do you like that, Alva Gallico?

Aside from these things, Shepheard's isn't so very different from the more expensive hotels throughout Europe. They work on the 10 per cent rule here, too, which means that nobody is to be tipped because the tips are added on your bill. But if you don't tip, you're a bum—and you get no service. So you see how simply the whole thing works out?

And so it is that life moves on in Shepheard's hotel, one of the most famous establishments of its kind in the entire world. I don't doubt that it's all very wonderful to those who like it.

But to me, it's all very stiff. And it's bound to prove disappointing to those few of us who still think a pleasure resort is a place in which to find pleasure. ..

Sun-Telegraph-Warner Junior Komic Club

The Boy Scout Band, under the direction of Bob Scraff, entertained the members of the Enright Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph - Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club Saturday with several selections at the opening of the meeting.

Following the band and before Dolly Fritz called her dancing class to order, Manager Frank Roberts called the members of the old Cameraphone Chapter to the stage and introduced them to the members of the Enright. As each youngster was introduced he or she received a big round of applause.

After Dolly Fritz had put the youngsters through their paces on the big stage of the Enright and conducted several contests for the members of the school, little Joe Gribbon, with Manager Frank Roberts playing the accompaniment at the organ, sang "My Mom," on the second chorus Joe invited all the youngsters present to join him and their young voices rang out clear and strong. Even Bill Powelson and Andy Hungerman, assistants to Mr. Roberts, joined with the "kiddies."

Father Loses Suit Over Strike Killing

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., March 6.—A $5,000 mob-law damage suit against Belmont County, based on a 1931 mine strike killing, ended in favor of the county by direction of the judge. The victim was William Simson, 16, Tiltonville, who was with a group of persons along the Ohio River highway, at Yorkville when a passing automobile carrying Gaylord miners home from work was stoned and one of the miners fired a revolver, killing the youth. Simson's father sued the county for $5,000 under the lynching statute, but the judge took the case from the jury.

Gas Rate Reduction Demanded in Ohio

CLARINGTON, O., March 6.—Clarington Council and citizens are petitioning the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company for a reduction in gas rates. Although much gas is produced in this vicinity, the company is charging $1.02 for the first 1,000 feet and 47 cents for the next 9,000 feet.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS :-:

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Counsellor-at-Law," the Elmer Rice play that opens a week's engagement in the Nixon tonight, with Paul Muni in the stellar role, is centered in a profession that the author himself once followed, that of a lawyer. It involves an attorney-at-law who rises from the status of an immigrant boy to the heights of fame professionally and socially in New York. Then, at the peak of his career, his reputation is threatened through jealousy of other members of his profession. It seems that years before he had performed what was intended as a good, humane act, but it was an act outside the law. The outwitting of his enemies provides the action of the play, which will be presented by the original New York cast, including Muni in the title role; Jennie Moscowitz, Martin Wolfson, Conway Washburne, Anne Teeman and more than a score of other players. Matinees are listed for Wednesday and Saturday.

Although the sale of seats for "Of Thee I Sing" does not open in the Nixon box office until Thursday, there already is a large mail order demand, and, alas, the theater cannot pack in more than 16,000 persons in all eight performances. "Of Thee I Sing," the only musical play ever to win the Pulitzer drama prize, will come to the Nixon next week with the New York cast intact, including Lois Moran, Pittsburgh girl, who went from the movies to score a hit in this, her first Broadway play, Victor Moore and William Gaxton. When the play was presented in Washington a couple of weeks ago Vice President John N. Garner wore his new dress suit that he bought for the inauguration.

Peggy Wood, who went to London four years ago after having appeared as Portia to the Shylock of George Arliss, returned to the American stage last week to play the lead in a new Owen Davis play, "A Saturday Night," current attraction in New York. While abroad Miss Wood was starred in "Bitter Sweet" and "Tonight or Never." "Bitter Sweet" is Noel Coward's musical play, and it is interesting to note that while the London production of it had an American star in Miss Wood, the American production introduced an English star, Evelyn Laye.

Carl Laemmle, "Uncle Carl," one of the fathers of the movies, stopped in Chicago last week en route to New York from Hollywood to celebrate the twenty-seventh anniversary of his connection with the picture industry. He visited the White Front, which he opened as a film theater in February, 1906, and also the building where he opened a picture exchange later the same year.

The Choral Society of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association gave it first program last night in the "Y" auditorium under the direction of Harvey Gaul and the concert ended with loud approval of the singers and a good high "C" of Mrs. DeRoy.

Mr. Lissfelt

The program was more compact than usual, there were fewer soloists, and two groups of beautiful Hebrew melodies gave the singers excellent opportunity to display their best talent. In fact there was but one tiresome moment in the program and that was the Rubinstein melody, bad enough as piano solo, but stretched to interminable length for a chorus. Mr. Gaul's arrangements of the "V'al Kulom" and "Hineh Mah Tov" are very effective, particularly the duet for two sopranos in the latter song.

Mark Meyer, one of our local violin talents, played two groups of short works. In his playing are signs of the artist—clear cut fingering and intonation, and a natural feeling from within himself for grand effects. He has more repose than is usual among so young a player, which does not prevent him, however, from reaching emotional heights as in the Bloch "Nigun," nor such delicate poetic phrasing as in the Ravel "Habanera."

Bess E. Himelblau, Sarah Davis, Mollie Seidenstein, Caroline Hilmer, Mrs. Emanuel DeRoy and Saul Franklin sang solo with the chorus. Mrs. A. Leonard Balter played accompaniments for the chorus and Ferdinand Fillion for Mark Meyer.

The reorganized Yost Quartet—Gaylord Yost, first violin; Roy Shoemaker, second violin; Edward Stribrny, viola, and Charles Schwartz, 'cello—gave its first concert in a belated season yesterday afternoon in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kier. There was a quiet audience present, and the home atmosphere lent much to the music.

Mr. Yost planned his program right well for the house, but I question the presence of the Puccini aria and the "Ridi Pagliaccio" as befitting the occasion, the latter having come as encore. The short numbers at the close were particularly agreeable.

From the outset the improved tone and vigorous playing of the quartet was quite evident. Towards the close of the Debussy the viola became somewhat shaky, but the entire ensemble again picked up during the last group, and we had the best playing in a long while from these men.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, miners, water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co

Canadians Seek Mexican Home Sites

MEXICO CITY, March 6.—(AP.)—Settlement of Canadian Doukhobors on undeveloped agricultural lands in Mexico is regarded favorably by the Chihuahua state government, Gov. Rodrigo Quevedo today advised the Interior Department in response to a query. Chihuahua is the home of large settlements of Mennonites and other religious sects which came to Mexico to settle many years ago.

The government has solicited the opinion of several Northern Mexican governors regarding the proposed movement of Doukhobors from Canada to Mexico, but as yet has made no statement regarding whether the Doukhobors would be permitted to settle in Mexico.

U. S. LAUNCHES BANK SURVEY

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Bank examiners throughout the country have launched a survey of banks today for determination of the liquid assets of these institutions.

The liquid assets will determine what withdrawals may be made by depositors, upon the termination of the banking holiday, and the amount of scrip for clearing house loan certificates that may be issued against other deposits.

Legislation may be recommended to regulate the withdrawal of cash and issuance of scrip under regulations issued by the Secretary of the Treasury with the approval of the President.

It was pointed out that a higher percentage of deposits may be withdrawn in the form of scrip from some banks than others, depending on their liquidity.

MACHADO CALLS CUBAN HOLIDAY

HAVANA, March 6.—(AP.)—President Machado yesterday decreed a bank holiday until Thursday morning.

The decree was signed after a conference at the President's estate at Santiago de las Vegas, at which representatives of the Havana Clearing House, Secretary of the Treasury Octavio Averhoff and Senator Viriato Gutierrez were present.

The decree was published in an extraordinary edition of the official Gazette.

It imposes an obligatory moratorium on all Cuban banks for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with reopening Thursday morning.

The decree cited the bank holidays in the United States and the close relationship between American and Cuban institutions.

ORDER APPLIES TO B. & L.'S

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—(INS.)—"Building and loan associations in the commonwealth must conform to the provisions of the proclamation issued by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, effective from Monday, March 6, to Thursday, March 9, inclusive," Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, declared in a statement today.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot is considering extending the state banking holiday until Thursday, in accordance with the proclamation of President Roosevelt, Dr. Gordon said.

The state Banking Secretary said he had been in close telephonic contact with Gov. Pinchot, now in Washington attending the parley of all state governors called by the new President.

Dr. Gordon said:

"Building and loan associations may receive cash or checks, but they must not pay out any funds to any shareholders or borrowers or any persons whatsoever.

"Upon the receipt of cash or checks at meetings, building and loan associations should accept them in a custodian capacity; that is, they should be held during the period of the bank holiday, subject to any definite rules which may be made effective hereafter.

"Upon the taking in of checks, a receipt should be given showing that they are being held under this plan subject to collection only.

"These instructions may be summed up by saying that building and loan associations are to accept checks and cash subject to restriction in that they must be held by the association during this banking holiday in a custodianship capacity."

He said all associations will be notified in due time of any other changes made necessary by any future action of the President or Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Safe Deposit Boxes Unaffected by Edict

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Safety deposit boxes were not intended to come within the scope of President Roosevelt's holiday, Treasury officials explained today, in response to reports that banks in some cities were denying access to the boxes.

Notice to that effect probably will be sent the various clearing houses during the day.

ACTION SPEEDED BY ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, March 6.—(AP.)—With all banks closed by presidential and gubernatorial proclamations, Pennsylvania state legislators gather tonight to push through legislation aimed to relieve the situation.

In the light of the past few days' developments, the Sordoni bill outshines all other legislation. It embodies provisions of the emergency resolution passed through the Assembly and signed quickly by the Governor last week.

This bill, permitting limitation of withdrawals from banks, is slated for speedy action.

Tonight it is expected to be passed finally by the Senate and go to the House. By Wednesday it is planned to have the bill signed by Gov. Pinchot.

Embezzlement Case Testimony Allowed

Judge Nelson McVicar in Federal Court today ruled testimony relating to embezzlement charges against George Clifford Frank, former president of the Ligonier National Bank, was permissible.

The trial was resumed covering both the embezzlement charges and one charge of misapplication of funds, after having been discontinued as to the former accusations, since Friday. Defense counsel had contended the property named in the embezzlement charges belonged to individuals and not the bank.

CLERGY OPPOSE 'ARMY CAMPS'

A resolution condemning the United States Senate proposal for aiding unemployed young men and boys in army camps today was adopted by the Methodist Episcopal Ministers Association as presented by two committeemen with the third member failing to concur in the action.

While the Rev. H. A. Welday, of Sewickley, dissented from the resolution submitted by Committee Chairman Arthur C. Schultz, of Brushton, and the Rev. A. S. Boyd, North Avenue Church, little opposition developed against the report at today's meeting.

The ministers also voted against the present plan calling for 17 delegates at large for the dry law ratification convention. The group urged selection of delegates through nomination at the primary and election at the general election, with each definitely stating his stand. Two delegates from each of the 34 districts were urged in a resolution being sent to the Law and Order Committee of both the Upper and Lower House.

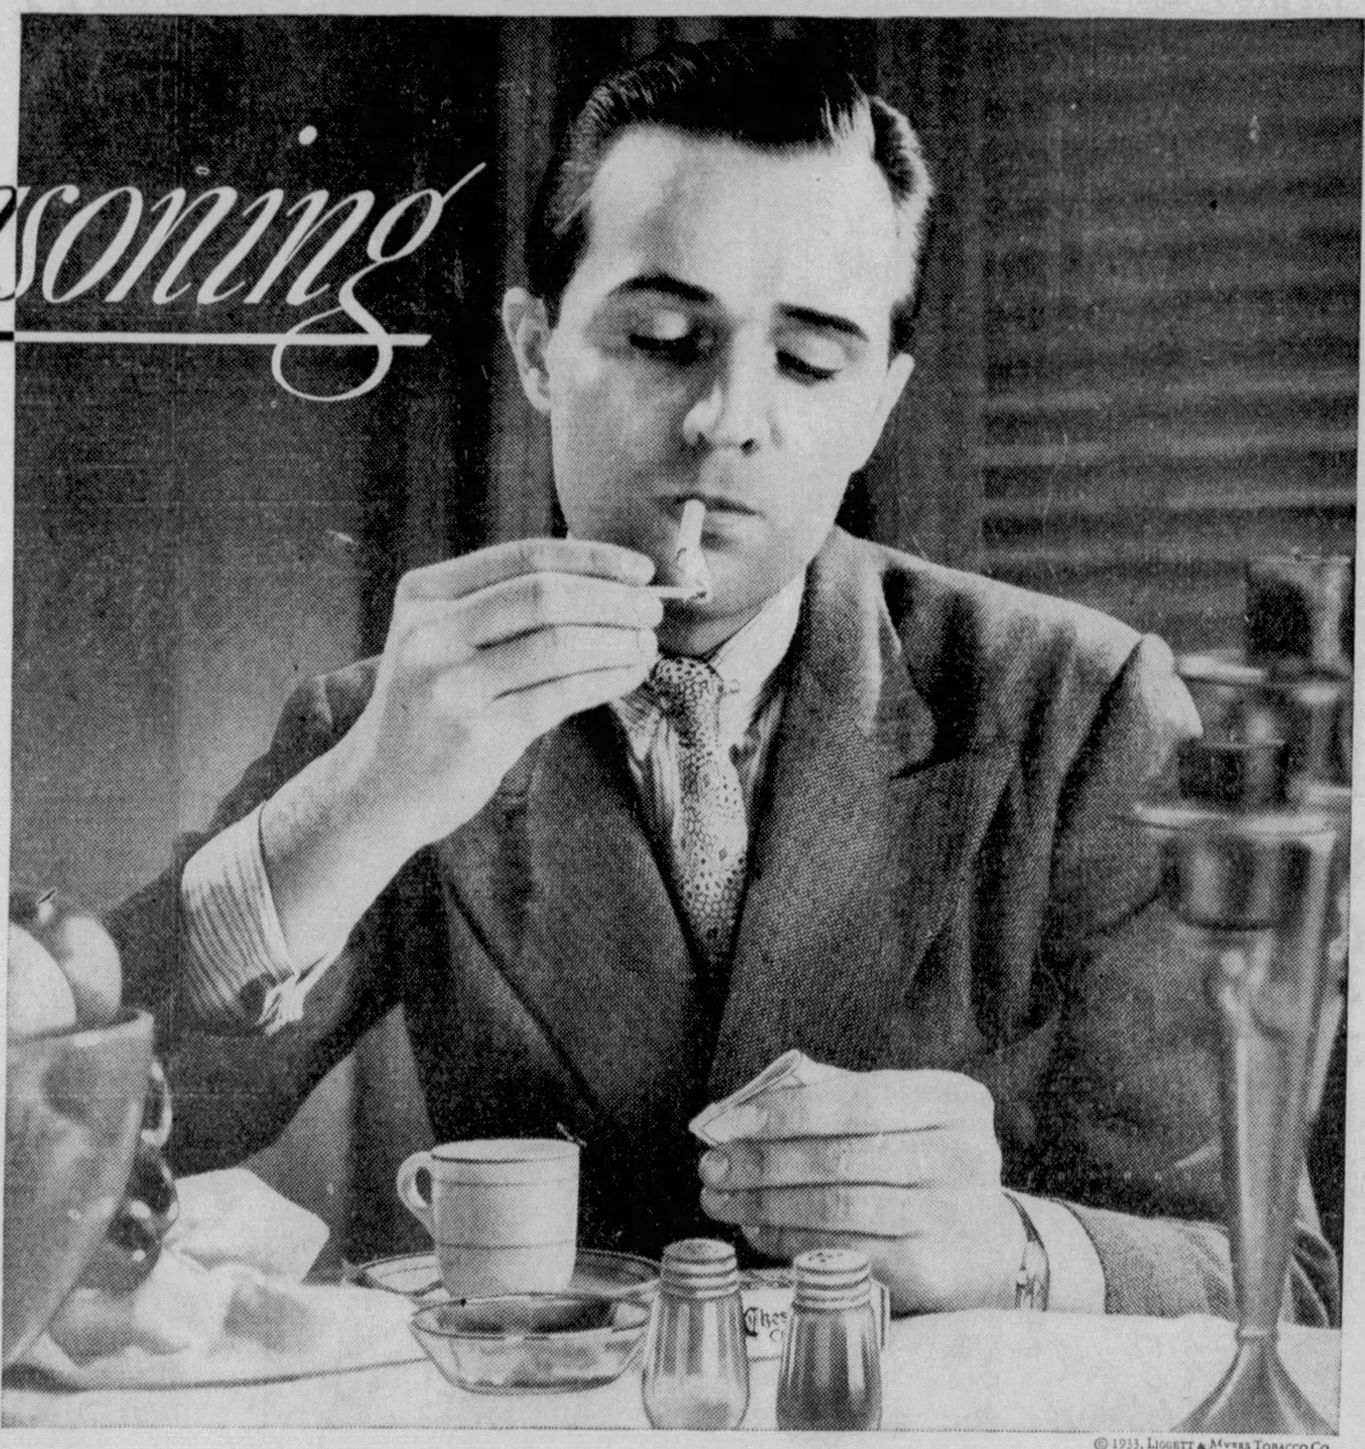
Woman and Youth Held in Fire Quiz

Mrs. Martha Turley, 31, owner of a store building at 7626 Frankstown avenue, and Robert Aldish, 16, of Ferndale street, were held by members of the bomb and arson squad today for questioning in connection with the fire that damaged a confectionery at the Frankstown avenue address late last night. The investigators reported finding excelsior under the basement stairway in the store.

Fire in Brushton Does $600 Damage

Fire broke out in the residence of Mrs. M. Terley, 7926 Frankstown avenue, early today. Damage was estimated at $600 by Battalion Chief Fred S. Beckett.

Cigarettes, like Foods need Seasoning



That's the part Turkish Tobaccos play in making Chesterfields Taste Better

SMOKERS notice a certain "touch" in Chesterfields that comes from having just enough Turkish tobacco in them . . . a spicy, aromatic flavor that's much the same to a cigarette as seasoning is to food.

For only by blending and cross-blending the right amounts of mild Domestic tobaccos with the right amount of Turkish can we get the flavor and aroma that Chesterfield smokers enjoy.

Next time, ask for "The Cigarette that Satisfies" . . . you'll get Chesterfields, with Milder, Better Taste.

STATE SENATE SET TO ACT ON BLUE LAW

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 6.—When the Legislature convenes tonight to begin its tenth week of the session, the Senate plans to consider the Schwartz bill on second reading. Proponents of the measure claim it will have the approval of 27 of the 50 Senators, one more than necessary. If the Senate passes the bill it will mark the first time that the Legislature has aproved liberalization of the Blue Laws since they were enacted in 1794.

HOUSE TO CONCUR

If the Senate passes the bill Tuesday, the House is expected to concur immediately in the amendments, and the measure is to go to the Governor Wednesday for approval or veto.

While the legislators are tackling the banking and Sabbath sports problems on the floor of the two houses, the leaders are to be discussing unemployment relief. Two plans are being discussed.

One is to appropriate between ten and thirty million dollars to be provided by sweeping governmental economies. The other is to obtain $10,000,000 from economies and the remainder by a loan to the general fund from the motor fund.

REPEAL PROGRAM

The McClure bill providing a state convention to consider ratification or rejection of the proposed repeal of the 18th amendment is to be acted on finally by the Senate on Tuesday. If approved it will go to the House for concurrence. It provides for election of 51 delegates, 17 at large and one from each of the 34 Congressional districts.

The Senate utilities investigating committee meets tomorrow afternoon for further hearing of Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission. Dr. King is to give the committee data its counsel requested two weeks ago regarding the commission's activities since Dr. King became chairman on October 1.

Both houses are expected to appoint their members of the joint legislative milk marketing investigating committee.

The Sterling joint legislative finance investigating committee is at work on its report of its two-year study of the state government, trying to complete the draft of the report for submission to the Legislature next week.

COX TO MARK 47TH BIRTHDAY

If it were not for a letter from Mrs. G. L. Schumann, of East Liverpool, O., to the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter, the fact that tomorrow is the 47th birthday of Father Cox might have passed unnoticed.

Father Cox was born in Pittsburgh and has always lived here, in fact his grandfather, Capt. John Cox, sailed the first steamboat up the Allegheny River. Father Cox worked his way through school and college, at the same time helped his mother by selling newspapers. Not only has he been active in his church affairs, but he has also been conspicious in civic and welfare movements.

The "father of the jobless" is getting gratifying results from his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. For every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page and every subscription that he gets through his radio broadcasts brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Parking Rules Off During Bank Holiday

TOPEKA, Kan., March 6.—(AP.)—Topeka motorists may ignore parking regulations with impunity while the banks of the state are operating on a restricted withdrawal plan. Mayor Omar B. Ketchum ordered police to refrain from tagging motor cars for violations of traffic ordinances until the banks release deposits.

A COLD

Goes Thru 3 Stages!

And Relief Is Far Easier in the First Than in the Second or Third Stages!

A cold ordinarily progresses through three stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is when treatment is most effective.

To stop a cold in the first stage, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It does the four things necessary. Opens the bowels, kills the germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and tones the entire system. Anything less than that is trifling with a cold. All drug stores sell Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE. Be sure you get that and nothing else. Now two sizes—30c and 50c.

STRADDLE VOTE ON REPEAL TO BE SPURNED

HARRISBURG, March 6.—The McClure bill, setting up the machinery for calling a convention to consider repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment probably will be amended tonight in the Senate to strike out provision for delegate candidates with no convictions on the subject of prohibition.

Representatives of the Association Against the Phohibition Amendment, responsible for the provision after they had received legal advice that such delegates were necessary to make the convention "deliberative," have received a storm of protest from all over the state. Drys also oppose the middle-of-the-roaders as delegate candidates.

It has been pointed out to those interested in the bill that the delegates elected either as wets or drys constitute a deliberative body, in a legal sense, as there is nothing binding on any candidate to compel him to vote as he promises.

Wets wish to amend the bill on the floor and attempt to push it through the Senate. They are tired of delay, and do not desire the bill to go back to committee, with the loss of precious days. If amended the bill will call for the election of 51 delegates, one from each of the state's 34 congressional districts, and 17 at large.

COYNE TO SHUN CITY MANAGER RALLY HERE

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, March 6.—Senator James J. Coyne will not be among those present in Syria Mosque Thursday night at the rally in behalf of the city manager form of government for Pittsburgh.

The Senator was invited by civic groups backing the meeting, at which endorsement will be given the bill of Senator Frank J. Harris, permitting Pittsburgh to adopt the city manager form of government if it so desires.

Coyne said:

"I understand this is a meeting for advocates of the city manager bill. It is well known that I am against the bill, and I can see no point in speaking at the meeting under the conditions. I am willing to sit down with any individual or group for a conference on the subject, in public or private, but it would serve no good purpose for me to attend the Thursday night meeting and speak against the bill."

Hearing on the bill is scheduled before the Senate Elections Committee in Harrisburg, March 14, and 500 Pittsburghers are expected to come to the capital and repeat the argument to be made Thursday night. Coyne through his Republican organization affiliations has the friendship of the committee, which has indicated it would not report the measure to the floor.

City manager bills for Philadelphia and third class cities are also in the Legislature, but they are not scheduled for action.

Sunday Movie Nets Cox 4 Tons of Food

Police were again required to hold the crowds in check at yesterday's Sunday benefit movie show. This was at the Brushton Theater, 715 Brushton avenue, Homewood. The food donations were turned over to Father Cox for unemployment relief. There was never a time during the day and early evening that there was not a crowd on the outside waiting to get seats. Approximately 4,000 saw the picture—"The Night Mayor." Manager E. H. Goldberg estimates that he turned over between three and four tons of canned goods and other groceries to Father Cox.

GIRL WHO SLEW MOTHER HELD IN THEFT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—(AP.)—Dorothy Ellingson, 24, who at the age of 17 shot and killed her mother and then attended a gay party, was arrested here today on a grand theft charge following another "party."

The arrest was made on the complaint of Miss Mary L. Ellis, who told police Miss Ellingston stole clothing and jewelry valued at $560 from her and wore them to a Saturday night party.

Officers who made the arrest said they found Miss Ellingson in bed at her apartment and that the allegedly stolen articles, a $300 ring, a $175 bracelet, other jewelry valued at $50 and a $35 dress, were hidden in the room.

Miss Ellingson was released from San Quentin prison February 29, 1932, after serving a manslaughter sentence for the slaying of her mother, Mrs. Anna Ellingson, because the mother objected to her attendance at all-night parties.

JOHN B. SILVEUS, ATTORNEY, DIES

Attorney John B. Silveus, chairman of the Board of Viewers of Allegheny County, died yesterday at his home, 3415 Beechwood boulevard.

He was born in Jackson Center, Mercer County, but had been in Pittsburgh many years. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Homestead; Amity Lodge, No. 685, F. & A. M.; Homestead Chapter and Council, Duquesne Commandery, Knights Templar; Pennsylvania Consistory, Syria Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and the Homestead Fraternity Club.

Besides his widow he leaves two sisters, Mrs. William J. Barnes, of Jackson Center, and Mrs. E. A. Stroud, of Wilkinsburg.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 8 p. m. today, with interment in Homewood Cemetery tomorrow morning.

W. Va. Apples Picked In 1931 Still 'Fresh'

CAMERON, W. Va., March 6.—Pleasant Valley has a "nature mystery." Apples, sweet, large and red, that were picked from a seedling tree in the fall of 1931 and which are still in good condition are attracting horticulturists and naturalists to the cellar of E. L. Standiford. No one has been able to name the unusual variety of fruit.

J. B. CRAWFORD, OIL MAN, DIES

OIL CITY, Pa., March 6.—James B. Crawford, 77, oil and gas man, died yesterday following an illness of several months. From the age of 21, until his retirement from the United Natural Gas Company and Pennsylvania Gas Company as president in 1917, he was actively identified with gas development in Pennsylvania. Crawford was born in Emlenton in 1855, and entered the oil business in 1876 at Emlenton. Subsequently he was engaged in oil operations in the Bradford field, and in November, 1883, came here. He became associated with gas companies as accountant, later rising to the presidency. For years he was a director of the Ohio Fuel Supply Company, Ohio Oil, Granville Fuel and Light Company and Oil City National Bank. He belonged to the Oil City Knights Templar and Syria Temple, Pittsburgh.

His first wife, Nellie Comstock, died in 1914. His second wife, Jannette Sibley, whom he married in January, 1917, died a year later. He leaves four children, Ronald B. and Robert A. Crawford, Oil City; Mrs. Edward Dunn, East End, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. A. V. Lammers, Oil City.

Urges County Pay Butler Constables

BUTLER, Pa., March 6.—Judge Thomas W. Watson has fixed the second Monday in April as the time for hearing the plea of District Attorney H. Negley that the County Commissioners be required to allow payment of certain costs which have been certified from aldermen's offices. Enforcement of law is hindered by this refusal, Negley says in his petition. Constables' costs have heretofore been added to the expenses of grand juries.

BARDOLPH ON TRIAL AFTER BANK CRISIS PLEA FAILS

DAVIS GRANTED DELAY DUE TO CRISIS

Trial Again Postponed On Plea Country Needs Senator

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Trial of United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, on federal lottery charges, was again postponed today, this time on the plea of his attorneys that his detention in New York at this time would deprive the state of Pennsylvania of representation during a national crisis.

Judge Johnson Jay Hayes, of North Carolina, granted adjournment until next Monday.

The judge said:

"I am reluctant to do this, but I cannot be unmindful of the fact that a national emergency exists and that every state should have full representation in the national Congress.

"This postponement is granted on the understanding that the case will go to trial next Monday. I hope that by that time the national emergency will have been met, but if not, we'll have to go along, anyway."

The court's decision was made after a session with attorneys in chambers that lasted nearly a half hour. Previous to that lengthy argument was presented in open court by Charles H. Tuttle, Charles J. Margiotti and Joseph E. Davies, all of defense counsel.

Called for trial with Davis were Theodore G. Miller and Raymond Walsh. All were indicted in connection with alleged lotteries conducted for the Loyal Order of Moose, of which Davis is director-general. The specific charges concern the shipping of alleged lottery tickets across state lines.

Bernard C. McGuire, professional promoter, was eliminated from the case when he entered a conditional plea of guilty a week ago, the condition being that he could withdraw the plea in the event that his appeal on a conviction in a lottery for the Fraternal Order of Eagles should result in reversal.

Davis was put on trial alone last fall, prior to his reelection as Senator. A mistrial was declared when a juror attempted to discuss the case with a defense attorney.

State Giving Checks For Food Orders

HARRISBURG, March 6.—(INS.)—Pennsylvania's government will cash food orders during the bank holiday, Gen. Edward Martin, State Treasurer, said today. The state's interpretation of "cashing" the orders, however, is merely the issuance of checks to the grocers, Martin said:

"Like the individual, the commonwealth will not have cash to give out while the banks are closed. We will continue to issue checks and conduct all kinds of business as far as possible."

Bradenville Home Damaged by Flames

LATROBE, Pa., March 6.—Fire swept the home of Levi Lint, in Bradenville, today, causing loss of $3,000. Latrobe and Derry firemen were hampered by a lack of water.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph

America hasn't been as happy in three years as they are today. No money, no banks, no work, no nothing, but they know they got a man in there who is wise to Congress, wise to our big bankers, and wise to our so-called big men. The whole country is with him, even if what he does is wrong they are with him, just so he does something. If he burned down the Capitol we would cheer and say, "Well, we at least got a fire started." We have had years of "don't rock the boat." Go on and sink it if you want to, we just as well be swimming as like we are.

Yours, Will.

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

WASHINGTON, March 6.—We did pretty good in Washington during the bank holiday.

First we bartered an invitation to dine with a Congressman for a used razor blade. We turned down France's suggestion to square the war debt for a 1912 Locomobile limousine and three hundred dollars.

We traded the blade in for a ticket to the inaugural ball and an option on the Republican National Committee's campaign deficit.

From there we worked up gradually through the curio department until we got a return ticket to New York. We exchanged a stranger's baggage checks for an upper berth which we shared with three Tammany politicians who were also smart business men.

In the morning we waited around in the washroom until we got the razor blade back. So we broke even on the deal in addition to also collecting a bushel of wheat, a Virginia ham and three hundred acres of fine farm land right in line of the next Mississippi flood.

Nicola Asks New Trial in Tax Case

HONESTY NEED OF PRESENT, BAKER SAYS

Tech Head Returns to Duties After Tour Of Germany

Honesty is the key to a return of confidence in the nation's life, declared Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, on his return to his desk today after a two-month lecture tour of Germany.

Dr. Baker, who also is associated with Pittsburgh's financial circle as a director of the Forbes National Bank, said:

"If men in authority—bankers, educators, in fact, all the leaders—had been guided by the feeling that honesty is the most essential element or principle of life, I think there would be a greater degree of confidence. It would be a happier world, more serene, more stable."

SEES ECONOMIC CHANGE

Dr. Baker predicted the subject of economics "will be reshaped in some of its principals after an analysis is made of the business and banking developments during the past 10 years."

Summing up his study of conditions in Germany, Dr. Baker attributed Chancellor Adolf Hitler's majority at the polls yesterday to one of two things: the desire of people to be on the winning side, or no government can succeed that has allied against it all parties that might be regarded as liberal, the church and organized labor.

He recalled what happened to industry following its great bank crash about two years ago:

"Banking, at least a major part of it, and big business are now practically in the hands of the government, which is represented on the directorates of the various institutions."

He would not say whether he believes the United States government would pursue this same line of action.

BUSINESS GAIN REPORTED AT AUTO MEET

Chevrolet Dealers Of Four States At Rally Here

Increased sales in January and February over the same period of last year was an encouraging business sign to 1,200 dealers, managers and salesmen as the annual Spring sales rally was held by Chevrolet Motor Company today in Syria Mosque.

W. E. Holler, assistant general sales manager, Detroit, who reported the first two months' business, discounted any fears from the present banking situation. He said:

"It is merely a brief holiday out of which the strong organizations and individuals are going ahead just the same. Despite the moratorium that had been declared in Michigan, we went right ahead planning for the 41 district sales meetings being held this week."

The dealers, department heads and salesmen attending the all-day session were from Western Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virignia and Eastern Ohio. Chevrolet officials in attendance included R. H. Hicks, eastern regional manager, Buffalo; I. W. Thompson, regional parts and service manager, Buffalo; H. J. McDevitt, regional truck and body manager, Buffalo; William Famular, assistant national dealers' accounting manager, Detroit; E. G. MacRae, regional sales promotion manager, and L. A. Smith, regional accounting manager, both of Buffalo.

A noon luncheon was held in honor of the 18 members of the "100-Car Club," each receiving $50 in gold and other gifts for having sold 100 cars last year. The club's new officers, assuming their offices by virtue of their total sales, were installed. They were: president, P. E. Hebert; vice-president, Aaron Perlman; secretary, R. L. Vensel, and treasurer, B. G. Fulton.

Today's program was staged by C. L. Milliken, Pittsburgh zone manager. He was assisted by H. L. Beecroft, assistant zone manager; E. J. McClees, city sales manager, and R. P. Murphy, sales promotion manager.

Three Ohio Men Die From Shellac Drink

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 6.—Three men are dead today, the Coroner reported, from drinking shellac they tried to distill into alcohol. A can of shellac was found in a vessel of water in a vacant storeroom which the men frequented. The victims are Joe Metziner, 63; Charles Logan, 65, and Fred Weller, 33.

JUDGE DENIES REQUEST FOR DELAY

Roosvelt Proclamation Invoked by Counsel For Financier

The present banking situation was urged in vain in court today in an attempt to obtain another postponement of the trial of Charles A. Bardolph, president of the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company, charged with embezzlement, fraudulent conversion and perjury.

Bardolph was placed on trial before Judge William H. McNaugher after Judge S. H. Gardner had denied a petition of Charles B. Prichard, defense counsel, setting forth that it would be impossible for Bardolph to receive a fair trial, because of a "condition of the public mind adverse to banks and bankers."

EXCEPTION FILED

The President's proclamation was cited by Prichard in support of his contention. Judge Gardner said in ordering the trial to proceed:

"The present banking moratorium may last some time. I see no reason for postponing this case."

Prichard filed an exception.

TO LOCK UP JURY

The jury of five women and seven men was ordered locked up at night throughout the trial.

A month ago Bardolph's trial was postponed because of a newspaper story anticipating his going to trial. The charges against him grew out of the city and county audit, it being alleged the bank of which he was head catered to politicians and that it held unsecured city deposits. He is accused of embezzling $278,000 of the bank's funds.

BRIDE AWAITS BLESSING

Mrs. John McMeekin, Wooster College sophomore, today was awaiting cabled benediction from her missionary parents in India, of her elopement with John McMeekin, Grove City College junior.

She revealed her marriage to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Campbell, in a message she broadcast from Radio Station KDKA Saturday night as part of one of the regular broadcasts to missionaries throughout the world.

The bride's parents are stationed with two of their children at a lonely United Presbyterian Mission on the plains of Punjab, India. Born in India at a missionary station in a wilderness in the Himalaya Mountains, Mrs. McMeekin came to this country three years ago to finish her schooling. At Grove City College she met John McMeekin. They were soon engaged and during Christmas vacation they were secretly married at Mercer after being unable to obtain a license at Warren, O. The secret was discovered by friends a few days ago. Both are back at classes.

Mrs. McMeekin's confession to her parents was believed to be the first round-the-world message of its type ever broadcast. Part of it was delivered in Punjab.

RIVER DRAGGED FOR WOMAN

The Allegheny River was being dragged by river police early today for the body of an unidentified woman who is reported to have leaped into the icy waters of the river from a houseboat, moored in the shadows of the Sixth Street Bridge.

Mrs. Sarah Janeda, from whose boat the woman is alleged to have made her death leap, told police she heard a splash and had seen a woman struggling in the river. She had a white muffler wrapped about her head, Mrs. Janeda said.

A black purse, containing 15 cents, shell-rimmed glasses and a handkerchief with an embroidered initial "B" was found on the deck of Mrs. Janeda's houseboat.

"Buster" Cleary, a river neighbor of Mrs. Janeda, said he went to the door of his houseboat when his pet dog "Spot" awakened him. When he opened the door, Cleary told police, he saw a woman on the gangplank. When she saw Cleary the woman turned and ran to the Janeda boat. She was about 45, Cleary said.

TWO STRICKEN AFTER DRINK

Three companions of Leon Oglinski, 14, of 71 Orr street, and Edward Griffin, 10, of 2235 Forbes street, mysteriously stricken, admitted today the two became ill while drinking liquor they had stolen several days ago, according to police.

Oglinski lay unconscious in Mercy Hospital while Griffin was seriously ill in his home.

Police said the boys, Charles Thomas, of 61 Orr street; Peter Federnek, 21 Orr street, and Walter Sobozinski, of 48 Soho street, confessed they and the stricken boys stole a bottle of liquor from a truck in Soho street last week and drank part of it yesterday. They were detained.

The partly-filled bottle was found by police and will be analyzed today.

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

With the arrival of the year 1899, the affairs of the Carnegie company stood in an extremely doubtful condition. Though profits were increasing like a torrent, no salutary provision had been made for the future. Had Carnegie, like Frankenstein, constructed a monster which, if it did not destroy him, might at least involve the rest of his life in turmoil? Never had the Midas legend been more painfully illustrated; everything that Carnegie touched changed to gold, yet that very fact seemed likely to crush him.

The uncertainty was preying upon his mind. From his 33rd year an early retirement, to be spent in the dispersal of his fortune, had been his goal. Several previous attempts at extrication had failed, difficulties seeming to increase as the Carnegie possessions grew in size. Evidently any propsoal to maintain intact the scheme of organization, Carnegie's own share ultimately returning to the treasury at "book value," could not succeed.

Fragmentary documents among the Carnegie papers of this period, now carefully written memoranda, now mere scribblings, show what was passing in his mind. All possible schemes for fixing business on a permanent basis are passed in review. The plan most frequently meditated was an amalgamation of the Carnegie Steel Company and the H. C. Frick Coke Company, their joint capitalization to be $125,000,000, the combined properties to be sold to existing partners, Carnegie himself to receive about $75,000,000 in bonds and to retire.

Valuation Rises

One difficulty was that any suggestion for recapitalization soon became out of date, for the accelerated profits of one month made the valuation of the preceding look absurd.

Out of the confusion of prospectuses and reorganization schemes at last came a definite proposal. Henry Phipps and Frick, although they had taken opposite stands on Carnegie's predilections for "book value," had remained on the most sympathetic personal terms, and the news that they had now got together in a final effort to solve this distracting problem was not displeasing to Carnegie. In April, 1899, Frick and Phipps informed their associate that a purchaser had come forward; both the Carnegie company and the Frick Coke Company could be disposed of under conditions that would permit the majority owner to retire with abundant liquid resources.

Figures cited indicated that the contemplated sale was not to the Carnegie groupt but to outsiders. For the Carnegie company the offer was $250,000,000, and for the Frick company $70,000,000—bringing the total to that $320,000,000 which had now come to be accepted as

URGES LOYALTY IN EMERGENCY

Urging extreme loyalty to the leaders of the nation during the period of national emergency, the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley yesterday, at all seven masses in Sacred Heart Church told his parishioners it is their duty to lay aside partisan ideas and extend their full co-operation to the policies of the new administration. He said:

"In this period of special anxiety we have some clear duties that bind us all. First of all, we owe our whole-hearted allegiance to the President in his efforts to end the deplorable crisis that engulfs us. And we should pledge enthusiastic support to whatever methods he employs. They may not precisely suit you or me; no matter; we should pledge him loyalty—unquestioned, unswerving, unstinted."

Studying Church Lesson, Woman Burns to Death

APOLLO, Pa., March 6.—Mrs. Mary Jackson, 92, was burned fatally yesterday when her clothing caught fire from an open stove. She was alone in her home, studying her Sunday school lesson.

Mrs. Jackson was a lifelong resident of Armstrong County, and had not missed a communion service at the First Presbyterian Church in 35 years. Until last year she had not missed attending Sunday school for the past 14 years.

STRIKE OF GARBAGE MEN SETTLED AT CONFERENCE

COLLECTIONS TO RESUME TOMORROW

14 Strikers Seized For Loitering at Company's Plant

The strike of garbage collectors of the American Reduction Company is over, W. F. Hill, president of the company, announced at noon today after a conference with the men.

Collection of garbage will be resumed tomorrow or Wednesday, Hill said, thus relieving Health Director W. M. McFarland from using wagons of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers for collections.

Hill said he would hold a conference with representatives of the rubbish collectors this afternoon.

Fourteen Negro striking employes of the company, arrested for loitering around its stables at Center avenue and Beatty street early today, were held over for a hearing Wednesday. Police arrested them, it was testified, after a patrolman alleged he found a gun, a baseball bat and a blackjack in a car containing four of the men.

U. S. MAY SEND SOVIET ENVOY

By KENNETH CLARK

(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, March 6.—President Roosevelt will inaugurate a new deal in foreign relations by recognizing Soviet Russia within a few weeks, Universal Service is informed in an authoritative quarter.

Plans have progressed to such a stage the Chief Executive is considering the appointment of Ex-Gov. Philip F. La Follette, of Wisconsin, as American Ambassador to Russia.

Formalities of extending diplomatic recognition are simple. This is an executive function. It is only necessary for Roosevelt to send the appointment of an Ambassador to Russia to the Senate for confirmation. He can then receive an Ambassador from Moscow.

Roosevelt advisers who have canvassed Senate sentiment report an overwhelming majority for recognition.

GARDNER VIEWS 'BLIND PARADE'

The "blind man's parade" of constables passed in review before Presiding Judge Samuel H. Gardner today and all but one received a "clean bill of health."

Judge Gardner had two complaints before him—both from O'Hara Township. They concerned a night club. Judge Gardner ordered an investigation.

There were 35 township constables; 28 from the boroughs and about 20 expected from the city. The reports were voluntary, Judge Gardner explaining the court would not require reports in the future since the passage of the bill eliminating the "blind man's parade." Those reporting today out of the 248 regularly elected constables in the county, received $2.50 each plus mileage from their bailiwicks.

CAIN TO IGNORE PAYROLL CUT

County Treasurer Robert S. Cain today announced that he would not recognize the action of the County Commissioners, sitting as a salary board, in eliminating five jobs from his office. Cain was absent when the meeting was held last Friday. Controller Robert G. Woodside refused to recognize the legality of the meeting and refused to act as secretary. The Commissioners named William T. Rees secretary and eliminated four tax clerks and cut out the chauffeur for the paymaster.

Cain said he had no objection to transferring the chauffer to the county taxi service, but would hire men to fill the clerkships as soon as they were needed.

Holiday Routs Out Hoarded 1804 Dollar

CHICAGO, March 6.—(INS.)—Leading the parade of hoarded money being driven from hiding places by the national bank holiday today was a rare old silver dollar dated 1804.

Italian Prince Dies Suddenly in Rome

ROME, March 6.—(AP.)—Don Marino Torlonia, prince of Civitella Cesi, died suddenly at his home here last night. He leaves a widow, the former Elsie Moore, of New York, and three children of whom a daughter, Cristina, is reported to be engaged to John Jacob Astor, III.

200 Attend Parade At Request of Roosevelt

By FRED M'CAMIC

Boy Scout Troop V-17 of New Castle.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Two hundred Eagle Scouts of Region No. 3 stood as an honor guard for Franklin Delano Roosevelt at his request as he and many other notables reviewed the inaugural parade.

This was an unprecedented honor, as never before had a president asked for a guard made up of Boy Scouts.

The Eagle scouts, enlisted from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, were placed in front and at the sides of the reviewing stand. They all were dressed in regulation uniform, augmented by a special inaugural neckerchief.

President Roosevelt is the only one of recent presidents to be interested in scouting. He has been active in this movement for the last ten years and also was the chairman of the Greater New York Scout Council.

The Pennsylvania scouts were especially interested in the delegation from their own state in the parade, including Gov. Pinchot and Mrs. Pinchot. Alfred E. Smith was also an interesting spectacle when he marched past with the men from Tammany.

The scouts assembled at Lafayette Square at 11:00 a. m. Saturday and were inspected by the leaders of scout movement in the Third Region. They then went on duty and stayed until the parade had passed in review, and the President had retired to the White House.

PENN. DOCTORS FACE CRISIS

Economic failure threatens hundreds of doctors throughout the state who for more than two years have been giving large amounts of free service to their patients, according to Dr. Walter F. Donaldson, secretary of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania.

The people must come to realize, he declared, that service to the sick is not alone the responsibility of the medical profession, but a community responsibility just as is payment for food, clothing and shelter.

Physicians have been spending out of their own pockets the money which has been providing the motor car upkeep, telephone, drugs and dressings necessary to carry on the service to poor patients, he said.

GOLD STANDARD HOLIDAY ASKED

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—A two-edged program which its sponsors assert will cut to the heart of the banking program was offered last night by a group of industrialists, farm leaders and financiers, headed by Frank A. Vanderlip. It adopted the title "Committee for the Nation."

The committee, which has been carrying on intensive investigations in secret for weeks, urged first, that bank solvency be restored by going off the gold standard, which it asserted would raise prices and restore asset values.

Secondly, it urged that confidence in the banks be restored by a sweeping government guarantee of bank deposits. The committee first opposed a government guarantee, but since the crisis became acute in the past few days, it decided that step would have to be taken, and would be made feasible by a price rise resulting from going off gold for the time being by suspending specie payments and placing an embargo against gold exports.

Mr. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, said the committee dates back to last September, when a group of businessmen decided that nothing was being done "to get to the root of the current problem."

Ferrell's Brother Shot Through Head

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 6.—(AP.)—Ewell Ferrell, 20-year-old brother of Wesley and Rick Ferrell, major league baseball players, was brought to clinic hospital here last night suffering from a bullet wound in the head.

Marvin Ferrell, a brother, said he heard a shot in his home and found Ewell on the floor wounded in an adjoining room. The shot was fired from a .22 caliber revolver.

THUG'S VICTIM BADLY HURT

Clifford Baker, of 38 Orphan street, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today suffering from a probable skull fracture suffered, police said, when thugs beat and robbed him of $15 in Paulson street extension last night.

R. B. Morris, attendant of the Pennzoil Oil Company service station, 345 West Carson stret, was held up by two armed men in an automobile and robbed of $43, police were told.

Roy Adams, attendant of a gas station at Hamilton and Dallas avenues, was held up and robbed of $84 early yesterday morning, according to a police report.

Louis Papp, of Chicago, reported to police he was beaten and robbed of $40 by two thugs in Duquesne way near Ninth street, late Saturday night.

A valise containing the robes of the Rev. William J. Spiegel, of the Josephian College, Columbus, O., which were stolen last November, were found yesterday near St. Adalbert's Catholic Church, South Fifteenth street.

GEORGE HEARST 'NAVY' HEAD

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(Universal.—George Hearst, son of William Randolph Hearst, was appointed Commodore, the commanding and ranking officer, of the famous and historic California Naval Militia by Gov. James Rolph today.

The Naval Militia was an active body, drilling weekly on board Navy vessels and in armories until the World War. At that time its entire membership in Los Angeles was taken over by the United States Navy. Since that time it has not been active.

Practically every officer appointed today has seen naval service or has been identified with that branch of national defense and almost all of them are World War veterans.

OIL PRICE RISE, MURRAY PLEDGE

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 6.—(AP.)—With the Oklahoma City flush oil field of a thousand wells silent under martial law for the second time in its brief history, operators heard a promise of a crude oil price advance April 1 in return for legislative enactment of effective proration laws applying equitably to both Texas and Oklahoma.

National Guardsmen patrolled the field in rain and snow today under a shut-down order of Gov. William H. Murray.

Gov. Murray asserted over-production by several operators caused him to issue the order Saturday.

Only wells producing salt water with the oil and in danger of ruin if shut down were exempted from the order, cutting output to about 24,000 barrels a day. The field has been producing considerably in excess of 100,000 barrels recently.

Sought in Slaying, Suspect Surrenders

Vincenzo Moschiello, 49, of Wilmerding, sought for three years on a murder charge, today gave himself up to District Attorney Andrew T. Park. He is charged with the shooting to death in a Wilmerding restaurant, August 24, 1930, of George Thompson, 48, when Thompson called him an objectionable name. Moschiello's wife and two children died within a month, about a year before the shooting, he said.

15 Hurt as Blast Wrecks Building

CHICAGO, March 6.—(INS.)—Fifteen persons were suffering from lacerations today following an explosion which demolished a one-story brick building occupied by two rug cleaning establishments.

The explosion, believed to have been caused by gas, broke hundreds of windows within a radious of half a mile and damaged a dog and cat hospital across the street.

Dinosaur Moans Will Feature Fair

CHICAGO, March 6.—(AP.)—If you hear some strange noises at Chicago's World's Fair, don't be alarmed. It will be nothing but the roar of pre-historic animals. The roars are to be produced by mechanical means in such things as dinosaurs, platybelodons, ground sloths, in an exhibit of pre-historical animals.

PASTOR LEADS MANHUNT

ATLANTA, March 6.—(AP.)—A minister today quietly dismissed his flock in the midst of the morning service, warned the men to arm themselves, changed his frock coat for one bearing a deputy sheriff's badge and led a posse of several hundred in capturing a desperado suspect.

The Rev. A. C. Peacock was delivering his sermon in the Central Christian Church when Charlie Pourron entered and told him he had seen a Negro carrying a shotgun and acting suspiciously in the West End section of Atlanta, where two persons have been killed by burglars recently.

Mr. Peacock stopped his sermon, told the men to "go home and get your guns" and then in his capacity as a deputy sheriff led them and their neighbors in a chase that resulted in the wounding and capture of the Negro, identified by officers as Rader Davis.

Soldier Loses Life When Auto Hits Tree

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—(AP.)—Lawrence J. McCormick, 31, a private in Company D, 30th Infantry, United States Army, was fatally injured in a motor car accident near Burlingame, south of here, yesterday. He was a native of Binghamton, N. Y.

Traffic officers said McCormick was riding in a car driven by Lowell D. Arnold. Also a soldier, and that the machine crashed into a tree after Arnold dropped off to sleep.

Anita Stewart Awaiting Knife

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(AP.)—Anita Stewart, star actress of the silent film days, is to undergo a major abdominal operation today in a Los Angeles hospital.

In attendance with her has been her husband, George Peabody Converse, son of E. C. Converse, former United States Steel Corporation executive.

R. F. C. on Holiday; Refuses New Loans

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation also went on a holiday along with the nation's banking system today.

Officials of the corporation said no new loans would be authorized during the period of the bank holiday.

Educated Wives Approved By Young Attorney

Do gentlemen prefer dumb wives?

T. Benson opined they did. According to him, all that any sensible man desired in a wife was someone to run his home and keep him "comfortable."

Willie agreed with him. And went on to explain that "keeping a husband comfortable" meant keeping him pleased with himself. As long as she did that, nothing else mattered.

But here's Jimmy with other ideas.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I just read T. Benson's letter, and I'm wondering just how much schooling—and sense—he has. He sounds to me like a stupid, egotistical creature, who is afraid someone will try to high-hat him. Of course a man like that probably does want a nice little dumbbell, who can't possibly ever mention a subject he doesn't understand. But not for me, thank you.

I married a college graduate. We fell in love when she was just finishing her first year but I didn't urge her to quit and marry me. I wanted her to go ahead and learn all she could, because I thought it would be a good thing for both of us.

It was. After five years of marriage, I am more in love with her than I was to begin with. We are pals. She is intelligent and well educated enough to be able to talk and be companionable about any subject that happens to interest me. I am proud of her. I am a lawyer and we entertain a good many pretty intelligent people, and I never have to stop and wonder how she is going to appear to them. I know that she will be charming, no matter who they are, and that she can talk to them, whether they're "high-brows" or just common folks.

FITS IN ANYWHERE

I know that superior training, far from making a woman high-hat about what she knows, makes her able—if she has any sense to begin with—to discuss things that interest either an educated person or one who isn't educated, and do it with tact and grace. Can an uneducated woman do this? No. She can only talk to people like herself. Education gives her a range that lets her fit in anywhere.

And a really educated person seldom tries to show off. The idea that a college girl is a walking encyclopedia, with an itch to tell everyone how much she knows, is plain crazy.

LIKES GOOD COMPANY

The statement by any man that he wants his women dumb, is just an admission that he wants to be a know-it-all himself and can't stand to be around anyone else who has a few ideas about what life is all about. It is an admission that he is dumb and too lazy to learn anything. It just shows him up as small-minded and conceited. That's my opinion, and I've seen it borne out a good many times.

I can't imagine anything worse for myself, at least, than coming home to a woman whose sole conversation was about housework and the gossip Mrs. Jones told her over the back fence. I want my wife to be good company for me and for the people I associate with, as well as capable of running my home. She is, and I am happy.

JAMES R.

So—boys, there's the broadside—and from your own camp!

How about it? Do you agree with James? Or do you still think that T. Benson and Willie have the right slant?

Do you pick a gal because she's too nit-witted ever to outshine you, and because she feeds you gobs of soothing syrup?

Men More Sentimental Than Women in Love, Believes Fay King

WHEN A MAN IS REALLY IN LOVE HIS LOVE IS VERY LASTING
SHE MAY DECLARE HER HEART IS BROKEN AND THAT SHE WILL NEVER MARRY— BUT SHE DOES!
I NEVER MARRIED BECAUSE I LOST THE ONLY GIRL I EVER LOVED!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Although we are told time and time again that love means everything in a woman's life, men seem to me much more the sentimental sex.

No woman has ever written a love song, or written a love poem half as beautiful as have come from the countless pens of men.

More men than women have never married because they could not win the one they wanted.

If women cannot marry the man they love best they may act broken-hearted for a while, but they usually marry someone else in time.

Love means more to a woman than just the man she loves. It means a home, protection, position and children. To a man it means only winning the woman he adores.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Dry Skin, Hair, May Mean a Glandular Disturbance

Dryness of the skin and hair is a common complaint. It is often associated with dryness and brittleness of the nails. There are many causes for this condition, but often its importance is overlooked and little attention is given it. This is unfortunate because it may be a sign of a serious glandular disturbance of the body.

Dr. Copeland

"Myxedema" is the name of a disease which may cause certain changes in the skin, nails and hair. The symptoms of this disease can be traced to a shrinkage of the thyroid gland. While the early symptoms are vague and indefinite, they should be given immediate attention.

In this affliction the skin is dry and scaly and the hair falls out. The nails are brittle and the skin around the nails is dry and cracked. The sufferer from this disease looks as if he had gained weight, but this appearance is due to a swelling of the skin of the face and legs.

Dryness and other changes of the skin and nails may be due to the excessive use of some variety of soap which removes oil from the skin. An occasional person has a sensitive skin, with lack of natural oil. Then the skin easily becomes dry and cracks readily. This is particularly true of the skin around the nails.

Sometimes this dryness and cracking of the skin can be traced to the use of certain chemicals used in manicuring. Continued irritation around the nail leads to a condition called "dermatitis," or inflammation of the skin. Relief and cure are easily brought about by leaving off the irritant. But if the nails continue to be dry, brittle or painful, consult with your physician.

Never neglect an injury of your hands. If you prick your finger, be sure that an antiseptic is applied. When you manicure your nails avoid irritating chemicals. Use plenty of soap and water and never use a rusty file or scissors. Infections which come from rusty objects are particularly dangerous.

In what I have said I do not mean to imply that dryness of the skin around the nails is to be considered as a serious disease. But it should not be considered lightly and ignored. Continued dryness of the skin, hair and nails is usually, though not always, indicative of some disease.

What I would like to impress upon you is that though it does not mean a serious disease in every instance, it does warrant a complete physical examination by the doctor. He must check up on your heart, kidneys, lungs, general circulation and glandular system. If these are all found to be satisfactory, there is no need for worry.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. M. R. Q.—What do you advise for neuritis? I have been troubled for about five years, usually in the fall of the year and each attack seems worse.

A.—Try to locate the underlying cause first of all. For full information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. B. S. L. Q.—What can be done for a boy of 14 who is constantly biting his nails and picking at the cuticle?

A.—This habit is usually due to nervousness. For full particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Household Hints

If new tins are smeared with lard, then baked in the oven, they will never rust. Tins which are already rusty can be cleansed by washing them in borax and water.

For neglected pewter, rub over first with powdered rottenstone well moistened with equal parts of linseed and turpentine, then wash over with soap and water and polish with a soft, clean cloth. Very obstinate stains may be removed by soaking the utensil in a bath made of freshly slaked lime and soda.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Appropriate Dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column is so full of helpful suggestions, I hope you can help me.

All my friends in High School wear low back evening gowns. I am sixteen years of age and my mother does not like me to wear a low-cut back until I am older. I feel awfully old-fashioned when I am out with the crowd.

Your advice would influence my mother so I hope you will help me.

DISTRACTED YOUNG READER.

I agree so thoroughly with the sound and sensible taste of your mother that I am afraid that it is you whom we will have to "influence." And with fashions what they are today . . . with low backs, and medium backs, and high backs, and even jackets and capes worn with evening dresses . . . you can't possibly feel "old-fashioned" if you don't wear a low-cut evening dress. One of the first rules for being well-dressed is being dressed appropriately for one's age . . . so why wouldn't it be a good idea for you to think of yourself as being well-dressed, and of Susie and Jane and Jill, with their inappropriate low-cut evening dresses, as being as inappropriately dressed, as they truly are?

The Dinner Jacket

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I always read your articles and enjoy them immensely.

Will you tell me which is correct—when a man wears a tux, should the bow tie be inside the wings of the collar or outside? R.

The bow tie should be worn with the ends not turned under the collar.

And do you mind if I give one more suggestion? Although I realize that we hear some people refer to a tuxedo suit as a "tux," this is not considered good form. Say either tuxedo, or tuxedo suit, or best of all, dinner jacket.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Demands an Explanation from Madge

Never shall I forget the sound of Lillian's tortured voice as she faced me with the reiterated monotonous cry of "Why? Why? Why?" There was more than reproach in it. There was the bewildered consciousness that for the first time in our long association I had failed her.

I would have given anything I owned to have been able to tell her that I only had stopped to give her the latest developments in the plans, and would then join the men at the headquarters where they were preparing for the attack which would, in all probability, mean life or death for Marion and Carolyn; but I could only look helplessly at her while I racked my brain wildly for some excuse that would postpone the evil minute of telling her that I was remaining at the hotel, instead of going to the girls who were in such sore need of a woman's comfort.

"What's gone wrong?" she demanded, and my spirit quailed at the thought of the thing we had agreed she must not know—the message from the Chinese demanding Marion's lock box, with horrible disfigurement for the girls the penalty of refusal.

WANTS EXPLANATION

"Nothing's gone wrong," I said mendaciously, wondering if the flatness of my voice would betray me. "Harry, my father and Hugh are at the rendezvous with a number of others—a sufficient force to combat any band, no matter how well organized—and Dicky has gone to get the plane. They were to arrange the time of attack just before Dicky left them."

"Then why are you here? You'll be too late to catch them! Why did you stop to bother me? Hurry! Hurry!"

She was shaking me now, her fingers gripping my shoulders cruelly. But as if something in my face had dealt her a blow, she relaxed her grip and whispered: "Oh! What is it? Tell me!"

I could not see for the sudden rush of hot tears to my eyes. I put my hands out gropingly to her.

"I'm not going to ask you to forgive me. I'll never forgive myself, Lillian," I said brokenly. "But—I can't go with them tonight."

I waited for her answer with the hopeless feeling of a bound prisoner waiting the signal of the firing squad leader. For a few seconds that seemed hours there was no sound, then her voice came flat, incredulous, remote, as if she had gone to the most distant corner of the room.

BLAMES DICKY

"This isn't you talking, Madge. I won't believe it. Unless—Don't tell me your father and Hugh won't permit you to go with them! Don't they realize that with me tied hand and foot here, and Helena so ill, there will be no woman with the girls, no matter how badly they may need one? Who knows what those awful people have done to them?"

"Don't torture yourself like that!" I said sharply, for I thought I detected incipient hysteria in her voice. "And you must not blame either my father or Hugh. Dicky alone is responsible for my staying behind!"

"Dicky?" Her voice was alive again, quick and sharp. "He wouldn't, couldn't do this thing to me!"

"That's what I thought," I answered, "but I was mistaken. He forbade me to go; made me promise to stay here at the hotel with you."

"And you promised!" There was rising anger in her voice now, but there was no resentment in my heart, only a great humiliation.

"Yes, I promised," I answered, wearily.

"Even as I promised Helena," she said, with the fair play which is hers even in the moments of greatest stress. "But surely, Dicky had no such reason as mine. Helena's daughter is out there with mine. Helena is a desperately ill woman and, clinging to me as her only refuge, has wrested that promise from me. What is Dicky's reason for exacting your promise, and yours for making it?"

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

In hair dyeing, auburn and very dark shades are the most hazardous, most likely to harden the features, bring out incipient wrinkles. The best, most flattering, shades are light and medium browns and chestnut, which is brown with a red cast. Hair in its natural state is of mixed shades, and that is why it shows enchanting lights and shadows. Dyed hair gives away the secret of artifice because it is one solid color. Better let the boss in the beauty shop do the presto-change act. He knows how. It's a business.

Such a little thing to remember and it does such a lot toward cultivating the svelte shape, and that's the habit of bending at the hip line instead of at the waist. Stand up, work out this problem to your own satisfaction. Throw the upper part of the body forward from the waist and see what happens. Tummy pops out in an ugly bump, backbone curves out of its natural orbit, everything completely out of form. Bend from the hips. That's mamma's nice girl. Then it's tummy in and chest out, the human frame takes on an appearance of spirit and grace.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Luck of the Cards

"But, partner, if you hadn't finessed the diamonds or clubs, you'd have made the hand," remarked a lady who held the North cards shown below in a recent Rubber game at Crockford's Club, New York, in which South was playing a contract of seven no-trump. The criticism was fully justified, based upon what Bridge players describe as Double Dummy play. If South fails to take a finesse at all, playing out the top cards of the suit will produce not 13 tricks, but 14. Of course, the fact that the last trick cannot be cashed makes its value entirely negligible. There is no doubt that there are frequent occasions when bad play results more happily than good play, but, on the average, correct play is most likely to give best results. The contract probably should not be reached, due to the fact that the hand is an apparent misfit, the only place in which there is any meeting-place being the diamond suit.

1—A very fine Forcing Takeout.

2—Correctly showing the second biddable suit although the hand is a minimum so far as honor strength is concerned.

3—Rather unconventional, but probably not at all bad.

4—South now wants to play the hand at the cheapest possible contract. He has no bid in either suit bid by partner, and his partner has not shown ability to support either of his suits.

5—North has a better bid here—probably a rebid of the club suit.

6—Encouraged by North's showing of such tremendous strength, including two suits and support for the diamonds, South now makes the Slam try with the four notrump bid, which shows two Aces and the King of a bid suit—in this instance, hearts.

7—Entirely too strong. Six clubs or six diamonds would be much better.

It is hardly necessary to discuss the play. Obviously, South, by laying down the Ace of diamonds and playing top clubs, can make all the tricks.

The Opening lead was a spade, which was won in the Dummy, and the diamond finesse attempted, the singleton King made, and another spade returned. This drove out the last stopper in the spade suit, and South now returned to his own hand to attempt the finesse in clubs. When this failed, East cashed four more spade tricks and defeated the contract 1350 points.

I really don't exactly know the moral of this story. Probably it is that unless you are well acquainted with the idiosyncrasies of your partner and can spot any tendency to overbid, you should be very careful of giving Slam tries on non-fitting hands. South could not be expected to read the distribution. Of course, the Opening lead was marked as a short suit, and the Dummy probably placed length in hearts in the hand of the Opening leader. There may well have been, however, more than a single diamond there, although it is reasonable to assume, on the distribution, that one of the hands may have contained a singleton, but it would require great skill to determine that this was the singleton King.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the proper response to North's, the Dealer's, one heart bid, no intervening bid, when the partner (South) holds:

♠ A ♡ K 10 7 6 5 3 2 ◇ A 10 6 4 ♣ A

Answer: Three diamonds, a Forcing Takeout. The diamond suit is not biddable. However, Forcing Takeouts may now be made on three-card lower ranking suits when holding strong trump support for partner's Opening bid, 3½ honor-tricks or more, and an unbalanced distribution. This procedure is perfectly safe, as the Responding Hand can always revert to the original suit, regardless of how high the Opening bidder may raise the suit in which the Forcing Takeout is made. This bid is especially valuable in determining the fit of the combined hands.

Life Story of Andrew Carnegie

the fairly classic price for the combined properties. On this basis Carnegie's share would reach $157,000,000.

The transaction contemplated paying $100,000,000 of this in first mortgage 5 per cent bonds in the new Carnegie company and $57,000,000 in legal coin of the realm.

Terms Satisfactory

The terms were entirely satisfactory to Carnegie. A fortune of $157,000,000 does not seem so stupendous in this era of the billionaire, but in 1899 it would have made Carnegie perhaps the richest man in the country—certainly one of the two richest—and have provided an abundant storehouse for the plans of human betterment that had long represented, with him, the real occupation of life.

Only one question proved disturbing. Phipps and Frick requested a 90-day option for the sale. Admittedly they were merely agents in the transaction. The plan necessitated raising at least $57,000,000 in cash. This would involve one of the greatest banking performances in American history. Obviously Frick and Phipps could not underwrite any such amount themselves; only a financial connection of the highest character could breathe life into the enterprise. Who, then, were the principals?

Several names inevitably occurred to Carnegie. John D. Rockefeller was said to be casting acquisitive glances at the Carnegie plant. The Mellons of Pittsburgh were already modestly concerned with steel; for years they had been close friends and backers of Frick, and their affiliation with this proposal seemed therefore not unlikely. J. Pierpont Morgan had recently put together the Federal Steel and was not impossibly looking for new opportunities of the same kind.

Any one of these names would have been a sufficient guarantee that Carnegie was dealing with responsible persons. Why should he not insist on knowing the name or names of the prospective purchasers? He naturally asked this vital question, but his partners demurred. They had been pledged to secrecy.

"I did not know at the time who it was from," Carnegie informed the Stanley Committee. ". . . Mr. Frick told me the parties had bound him not to reveal who they were."

Forfeit Demanded

This attitude put the matter in a more doubtful light. Carnegie was asked to make a definite commitment, yet had no assurance that men able to carry out their obligations were concerned. It was not a "business proposition." The unidentified buyers might merely wish to speculate with the contract, to hawk the Carnegie company from one end of the country to another, to entangle it in all kinds of wildcat undertakings.

Carnegie suggested one way out of the contretemps. Let Phipps and Frick keep their purchasers' secret if they wished. But, should they do so, tangible evidence that the offer was a genuine one must be provided. A deposit of $2,000,000, placed in the custodianship of the Carnegie Steel Company, to be forfeited in case the option lapsed, would mean that the invisible negotiators were in earnest.

Two million dollars in cash was a large sum; capitalists who could produce it would prove, by that one act, that they were men of resources and capable of handing a deal of these proportions. Carnegie has preserved the words in which he met the refusal of his agents to produce their principals:

"Very well. If I do not know the parties that are to get the option, I will give no strangers an option on our property; and as an earnest of good faith, they must pay two millions for that option."

Agreement Signed

Phipps and Frick promised that the money would be forthcoming, and on April 24, 1899, a 90-day convention was signed between Andrew Carnegie, Henry Phipps, Jr., and Henry C. Frick, for the sale of the Carnegie Steel Company and the Frick Coke Company for $320,000,000. As soon as $1,170,000 should be placed to the credit of Andrew Carnegie, the agreement, so far as his proportion was affected, would become a binding contract, a sum that, it will be observed, is 58½ per cent of $2,000,000, Carnegie's ownership in the property.

On April 25 Carnegie sailed for Scotland.

The failure to produce the remaining $830,000 would itself have displeased him, but had he known the reason for its nonappearance he would not have departed, as he did, satisfied that the problem of his life had been disposed of and that his future was assured. The reason was that the gentlemen who were to pay $320,000,000 for these properties could not raise $2,000,000. All they could scrape together was $1,000,000. The $170,000 needed to complete Carnegie's share of the contingent forfeit had been supplied by Henry Phipps and Frick. The mutations that take place in the fortunes of mortals are evidenced by Phipp's statement afterward that the raising of the $85,000 he contributed to the ransom represented a genuine inconvenience.

New Incorporation

But more disturbing rumors soon crossed the Atlantic. On May 5, the press discovered that startling changes were impending in Pittsburgh, a fact that was brought abruptly to notice by the incorporation, in the States of New Jersey, of a new Carnegie Steel Company, while sensational headlines — "Mr. Carnegie Sells Out." "Big Steel Trust Forming." "Carnegie Stock to Be Placed on the Market"—quickened the pulses of Wall street.

The capitalization was placed at $350,000,000, but John W. Gates, questioned by reporters, hinted that it would probably reach $800,000,000. Preparations had already been made to offer the securties in five cities, New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and St. Louis—so the papers said; already the public demand had set in, more than $50,000,000 having been disposed of in advance of the announcement.

Such publicity betrayed the all too familiar handiwork of gentlemen experienced in stock promotion, and presently the press emblazoned the one dramatic fact that completely explained the mystery. Mr. Henry C. Frick, an option for the purchase of the Carnegie company in his pocket, was spending most of his time at the Holland House, New York, in close association with William H. Moore, of Chicago.

One can imagine Carnegie's shock when Mr. Moore's name appeared. If there was one man who represented everything in business which Carnegie abhorred it was this same Mr. Moore, who for several years had actively figured in those combinations and stock inflations that Carnegie had so scornfully assailed.

The Plan Fails

The Carnegie company held forth the richest objective on the promoters' landscape. It was a virgin field. For 30 years its only occupation had been the accumulation of tangible assets and earning power. Its outstanding stock represented only a quarter of its value; it had no bond issues or debts of any kind. From the Wall Street point of view, what pickings! It seems astonishing that, despite these advantages, the Moores failed in their efforts to finance the new corporation. For several days they peddled the Carnegie company from one banker to another, only to be shown the cold shoulder. What they were so diligently seeking was that $57,000,000 cash needed to put their option into effect; but the money could not be obtained.

The $1,170,000 cash deposited as a forfeit was, according to the letter of the stipulation, transferred to Carnegie's personal account. It presently found its way into public libraries and other Carnegie benefactions. That Carnegie should insist on exacting his bond so far as Mr. Moore was concerned caused no comment; Mr. Moore, an experienced sportsman, never made complaint; he had bet $1,000,000 on his ability to handle the Carnegie problem and, when he lost, accepted the result without a whimper.

Carnegie was criticized, however, for annexing the $170,000 put up by his partners. The revelation that his associates were to make a personal profit of nearly $5,000,000 on the transaction was the reason why he felt indisposed to deal gently in this particular matter.

A few months afterward Carnegie was showing a Pittsburgh friend plans and photographs of Skibo Castle, his new Scottish home, to which he was now devoting much attention. He was describing its beauties with an infectious enthusiasm, pointing out the views and dilating on the historic associations.

"It cost me," he said, "not far from $1,000,000."

The significance of this amount immediately occurred to Carnegie and his friend. At the moment the small figure was sitting on the floor, surrounded by prints and photographs. Glancing up with a familiar twinkle in his eye, he added:

"Just a nice little present from Frick!"

OFF-SEASON MOVES INVOLVE 187 MEN

BARRING THE POSSIBILITY that one or more of the players still holding out may be traded or sold before the pennant races start, the big baseball leagues have completed a list of off-season changes without a parallel in the history of the sport. With the Pirates having scored one of the ten-strikes by acquiring Outfielder Freddie Lindstrom, every outfit in the majors except the Yankees has made at least one shift in its regular personnel, and the list ranges all the way from an unconditional release to the sale of a whole ball club, the Red Sox.

Freddie Lindstrom

Thirty-five players and coaches in the National League and 27 in the American, a total of 62, have been moved from club to club. Thirty-five National and 33 American Leaguers, a total of 68 players, coaches and managers, have been sent out of the big show, and 57 new ones have been brought into the new loops from the minors and the colleges. Trades, transfers, sales, releases, drafts and other acquisitions have involved no fewer than 187 men since the close of the 1932 season, a record not likely to be equaled in a hurry.

BERNIE JAMES, the Texas League recruit, who is trying to crowd Hughey Critz out of his job at second base for the Giants, is not a stranger to the National League. He played in almost 50 games for the Braves in 1929, and was farmed to Baltimore, was recalled in 1930 and sent to Newark, and was sold outright after another recall.

If he makes a respectable batting average, James' baserunning ability is figured to give him a chance against Critz. The youngster has the knack of getting away for a steal and a fadeaway slide makes him hard to tag. Last year he stole the unusual number of 42 sacks. Critz, in an off year, stole only three.

IN THE CUB camp they've been trying to get Lonnie Warneke to predict how many games he will win this year, but success evidently hasn't turned the head of the youthful sensation of 1932. His only answer is that he will try to win as many as he can.

Warneke says he'll let some other pitchers predict 20 or 25 victories, but he will count his own games after they are won, not before. "All that I'm concerned about is holding my job," he remarks. "Any fellow is lucky to have one these days."

IKE BOONE, sent to Toronto by the Dodgers, has been the batting leader of every minor league in which he ever played, but he has nothing on Gordon Phelps, 215-pound first baseman with Atlanta this year and a former Youngstown (O.) player. Phelps, playing three seasons, never has failed to lead his league in batting, and he has worked in three circuits. For Hagerstown in 1930, he led the Blue Ridge League with an average of .376 for 114 games. For Youngstown in 1931, he topped the Middle Atlantic League with 408 in 115 games, and for Youngstown last year, he was high man in the Central League with .372 for 135 games. He is a left-hand hitter and a Washington farmhand.

George Moriarty

IF YOU THINK, because you see a player steal home in a ball game only rarely, that the play is too risky to be attempted often, you are not in agreement with George Moriarty, American League umpire. He says home plate is the easiest base of all to steal.

According to Moriarty, baserunners with the right instinct and ability can sneak into the plate ahead of the pitch eight times in 10 attempts, but he adds that they never should try it unless the run is needed to tie the score or win.

SECOND AND THIRD bases should be stolen only to increase the lead, Moriarty explains, and he holds that if baserunning is done on that basis, and by players having the bag-pilfering instinct, they will succeed seven out of 10 times. He says the mechanics of stealing are different at each base.

The veteran umpire says it's wrong to criticize a player for taking a chance on stealing with a couple of .340 hitters coming up, and that stealing a base is just as vital a factor in a well-played game as a long hit. He contends that a team with a reputation for baserunning will get a lot of pitchouts, a percentage over the pitcher.

THE EAST SEES a new schoolboy physical marvel in Danny Taylor, who recently smashed the Eastern interscholastic indoor record for putting the 12-pound shot with a heave of 54 feet 9 inches, 5½ inches better than the former mark, held by Joe Sullivan, of St. John's, now a freshman at Notre Dame. It isn't only because he broke a record that Taylor is hailed as a wonder. It's because of a life that gives him no time for training. He gets very little sleep, as in addition to carrying a heavy schedule of home studies he is kept busy until late hours playing a saxophone in one orchestra and directing two others. Yet Taylor has managed to forge his way up front as a weight man, wrestler, swimmer and basketball player. He is a 17-year-old sophomore, stands 5 feet 10½ inches and weighs 205 pounds.

ONE ANNUAL AMERICAN sports classic that won't be licked by the depression is the famous Boston marathon race, run yearly on the anniversary of Paul Revere's ride. The Boston A. A. for a time was undecided about holding it this year, but has finally made up its mind to go ahead with the thirty-seventh race on April 19.

Outsiders rarely figure that there is any expense connected with such a free show, but it costs the Boston A. A. about $1,000 annually to conduct its marathon, what with prizes, food, transportation and many other items to be paid for by the promoters.

ADMITTING THAT NO objections can be offered to the returning of the goal posts to the goal line for professional football, Lou Little, Columbia coach, says they must be kept 10 yards back in the college game because the powers must be careful in college and high school football to protect the young players, the inexperienced boys.

Harry Hough

"But by the time a fellow gets into the pro game," Little adds, "he generally knows how to protect himself. And he's older and stronger, too. So it's all right for the pros to make a few changes, but they shouldn't make so many that it will be a different game. That would be a big mistake."

ANOTHER REUNION OF basketball's old-timers will be held here this year by Johnny Freund, similar to that of last May, but he plans an earlier date for the second get-together, having in mind an all-day affair for a Saturday or Sunday late this month or in the first part of April. More than 50 attended in 1932, including the once famous Harry Hough, Frank Morganweck, Roy Steele and Bill Keenan, of the East, and many others of the Tri-State region. An even larger turnout is expected this year, as the local colony has been augmented since F. J. Marmion, of the original Celtics, Pete Carney, of the old Trenton pros and others of note became Pittsburghers. All old-timers will be welcome, Freund announces, and he wants them to get in touch with him by calling Everglade 4297 to discuss plans. The district group is a branch of the national organization. Freund is president; Peter Harkins, of Homestead, vice president; Joseph M. Leithead, of the South Side, secretary, and Elaine Cochran, East Liverpool, treasurer.

BAXTER BOXES ALVAREZ IN SEMI-FINAL

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

They're fighting for the Tony championship in the main bout at Motor Square Garden tonight—Tony Herrera, of Chicago, vs. Tony Falco, of Philadelphia.

It's a return battle. When they met in the same ring, some weeks ago, Herrera won the decision, but only after 10 of the toughest rounds he's known since he became an attraction in local rings, several years ago.

As a matter of fact, Herrera didn't win a single round of the first five and had to come from miles behind to grab the award. It was his experience that enabled him to overcome the disadvantage and go galloping on to victory.

Tony Herrera

MISJUDGED PACE

Falco really defeated himself by setting too fast a pace at the start. He got away winging, misjudged the pace and weakened after the half-way mark, permitting his opponent to catch up to and pass him in the stretch. It is unlikely that he will make the same mistake again, which means that Herrera will have to get into the fight in the early stages or find himself too far behind to overtake him.

Since that first Herrera fight, Falco has knocked out Santiago Zorilla in one round in Philadelphia and won a decision over Harry Dublinsky, of Chicago, in the Garden ring here. He is managed by George Engel, who handled both Frank Klaus and the late Harry Greb when they held the world middleweight title.

CONTRAST IN STYLES

The meeting tonight presents a contrast in builds and fighting styles. Herrera is tall and rangy, a fast-moving, weaving, bobbing type with a punch. Falco is short and stocky and has a straight-stand-up style. The latter punches short and in snappy fashion, while Herrera bends in his punches. They make an interesting combination. Both rate high up among the lightweights of the land.

Chino Alvarez, the Cuban lightweight champion, who recently stopped Battling Gizzy in Savannah, Ga., boxes Charley Baxter, local puncher, in the eight-round semi-final, one of the most expensive semi-windups staged here in many moons, and Henry Scarpuzzi, of Canton, O., who recently knocked out Johnny Durso at the Arena, takes on Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, and Tony DiPiero, erstwhile Duquesne University light-heavyweight, meets Walter Ketchel, of the East End, in the two six-round preliminaries.

Announcement was made today by Joe Mazer, manager of the Garden, that, in view of the bank holiday, the club will accept checks in payment for tickets for tonight's show from patrons known at the box office.

Between Rounds

A card of three 10-round bouts will be offered at the Garden next Monday night. Jimmy Thomas will meet Tommy Paul and Battling Gizzy will oppose Eddie Zivic in two of them.

Cowboy Owen Phelps, Phoenix middleweight, who meets Frankie Goosby, local Negro star, in the main bout of the card of three 10-rounders at the Arena on Friday night, now is fighting out of Alexandria, Va., where he recently boxed Vince Dundee. Included in his record also are a victory over Larry Johnson and a knockout over Fred Lenhart. Others of note he has boxed include Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight champion; Charley Belanger, Tony Cancella, Clyde Chastain, Babe McGorgary, Chuck Burns, Angus Snyder, Jimmy Byrnes, Joe Knight, Roscoe Manning, Sammy Weiss, Bo-Jo Tiger, Willie Jaffa, Larry Aggrella, Spike Webb, Chief Elkhart, Harry Dillon, Ted Ross, Buck Easterling, Billy Jones and Joe Banovic. He boxed Harry Greb as a youngster at Phoenix on February 12, 1926.

Joe Basco, of Barberton, O., wants to show his welterweight, Cowboy Charley Cobb, against Ted Yarosz, Eddie (Kid) Wolfe or anybody else here. He claims Cobb, who has done most of his campaigning in California, has beaten Young Jack Thompson, former champion; Andy DiVodi, Eddie Murdock, Pearl Whitehead, Gaby Bagdad, Paulie Walker, Sung Myers, Tommy King, Bobby LaSalle, Jose Estrada and Mike Payan, and has knocked out Meyer Grace, Bobby O'Hara, Dick Ranuies, Al Herrera, Swede Berglund, Johnny DeMarco, Young Harry Wills and Erwin Bige, which constitutes quite a record.

HAMAS BOUT SET BACK

LOS ANGELES, March 6—Due to the bank holiday, the Steve Hamas-Lee Ramage bout scheduled here tomorrow night has been set back until Tuesday night of next week.

VANITIES IN BENEFIT

The Goldenson Vanities meet the Sheridan Scholastics in a benefit game in the McElroy School, Brentwood, tonight. The Brentwood Civic Club is sponsoring the game.

E. PITTSBURGH PASSERS FACE LEETSDALE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Two of the outstanding centers in the W. P. I. A. L. will be pitted against each other tonight when East Pittsburgh High, champion of Section XVII, opposes Leetsdale High, champion of Section II, in a second round elimination contest in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

Ed Kweller

The two contestants in tonight's tournament battle have much in common. Both were eliminated in the first round of last year's tournament. East Pittsburgh bowing to Swissvale and Leetsdale to Zelienople.

Two boys who will be the cynosure of all eyes when the teams come together tonight are Ed Kweller, six-foot-six center of the East Pittsburgh quintet, and Earl Gosnell, brilliant center of the Leetsdale combine.

Both boys were chosen on the all-star teams in their respective sections at the close of the regular season, Kweller making the Section XVII quintet, while Gosnell led all rivals in Section II.

LEAD SCORERS

Scoring records compiled at the finish of the regular campaign reveal that Kweller and Gosnell ranked among the best in the W. P. I. A. L. Gosnell was second in Section II with a total of 108 points, 26 points behind Johnson, of Bellevue, who finished first. Kweller led all scorers in Section XVII with a total of 78 points.

The game tonight marks the second appearance of East Pittsburgh in the present tournament, while Leetsdale is making its first. East Pittsburgh furnished the biggest upset by eliminating New Kensington, champion of Section I, 37 to 26, in their first round engagement.

Leetsdale qualified to compete in the tournament by defeating Bellevue in a playoff contest for the Section II lead.

TEST FOR SHAMROCKS

While East Pittsburgh appeared impressive in its one-sided victory over New Kensington, the Shamrocks are in for a tough battle tonight, make no mistake about that. Leetsdale has a capable quintet that is composed virtually of 1932 veterans. Besides Gosnell, Coach W. E. Buker will have Sechler, Segeleon and Kuzma, all experienced performers, in action against East Pittsburgh.

The two contenders for the championship have been practicing for this particular fray and will take the floor with every regular available for service.

The winner in tonight's game advances to the quarter finals and will engage Ambridge, champion of Section IV, in the Pitt Stadium pavilion on Thursday night.

Reports that South High, champion of the City League and representative of District VIII in the P. I. A. A. playoffs, would not compete in the state eliminations, have been denied by Coach Grover C. Washabaugh. South is scheduled to engage the W. P. I. A. L. winner in the Pitt Stadium pavilion on Tuesday, March 21. In the meantime, South is seeking post-season games with district high schools in order to keep the team in top playing form.

PLAYOFF CARDED

HARRISBURG, March 6.—(AP.)—Frank Roth, secretary of District III of the P. I. A. A., said a playoff series among three basketball league titleholders and an independent team in the district will start Friday night.

The winners of the Berks and Lancaster County League titles are to play Friday night at Lebanon. Saturday night, Lancaster, champion of the Central Pennsylvania League, meets Hanover, independent, at York.

He explained that Gettysburg, the Southern League champion, has chosen not to enter the playoff because it has been defeated twice by Hanover.

BAMBINO FIRM IN DEMANDS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6.—(AP.)—George Herman Ruth has re-affirmed his declaration that he will not play ball for the New York Yankees this season for a paltry $50,000. He said today:

"I will not sign a contract for $50,000. If I thought I was not worth more than that I wouldn't be asking it."

The $50,000 offer represents a $25,000 cut.

Day to Stress Grid Fundamentals

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 6.—Mastering of fundamentals will be stressed in spring gridiron training of Washington and Jefferson College, Head Coach Leroy P. (Hank) Day has announced. Football practice at College Field will not start for at least two weeks, Day announced, and the opening date depends entirely on weather conditions.

Until the soil of College Field is free of frost and the footing is presentable, there will be no spring training, Day said. He believes little is accomplished in practice interrupted frequently by inclement weather.

Day will devote practically the entire spring training period to mastering fundamentals for it was a weakness in this department that made the Presidents inconsistent last year.

TONIGHT'S FIGHT

Tony Herrera vs. Tony Falco, 10 rounds Chino Alvarez vs. Charley Baxter, 8 rounds, and Henry Scarpuzzi vs. Patsy Hennigan and Tony DiPiero vs. Walter Ketchel, 6 rounds each, Motor Square Garden.

SPORT VIGNETTES

This is getting to be a funny world—the times being what they are—when a gent can't go away from his typewriter long enough to go to lunch without coming back to find that a fight manager had come in and appropriated the machine and left him the result, a lot of written words undoubtedly intended for publication . . . The next thing we know, he'll come back and find that stuff of this sort has been edited, headed up and sent to the composing room and set in type and appeared in the paper and done him out of a job.

Well, here it is . . . All we have to do is to write a head on it, entitled: "Fight Manager Writes Column, By Peter J. (Bunny) Buntach," and wake up a copy boy—are you there, Eddie Dublin?—and dispatch it to the eighth floor, where they keep the linotype machines, with their metal pots, disclaim all responsibility and go out to see a show, so here goes:

FIGHT MANAGER WRITES COLUMN

By Peter J. (Bunny) Buntach.

Why can't I get a break with Joe Marcus? . . . Joe Marcus is the best lightweight fighter in Pittsburgh, and everybody knows it except the fight promoters. . . . He've never lost a fight in the ring here (Battling Gizzy has a decision over him, but you know how those things happen, and I'm telling you if Gizzy won that fight this country never heard of Herbert Hoover), yet I can't get him a fight . . . He's licked Patsy Hennigan, Johnny Datto, Maxie Staub and everybody else they've fed him, and I took him to Detroit and he stood them on their ears fighting that knockout star, Tracey Cox. . . . The matchmakers tell me nobody wants to fight him. . . . Is that any reason for keeping him idle? . . . No wonder the country is filled with the unemployed.

I've offered to let Joe go in against this Georgie Riley, who recently stopped Datto at the Arena, but they go out of town and bring in Frankie Wallace for him, and who is Frankie Wallace? . . . I offered to let him fight Jimmy Columbo, but they bring in Jackie Davis for him, and who is Jackie Davis? . . . And I offered to let him fight Chino Alvares, but they give him to Charley Baxter, who is managed by a friend of mine, so I won't say anything about him, because he has to live, too. . . . But what about my Joe Marcus? . . . It looks as if he will have to go out in the garden and eat worms, because none of the neighbors' children want to play with him . . . I guess my Joe Marcus is just too good, so I'll have to claim the local lightweight championship for him. . . . I wonder if he's too tough for Tony Canzoneri, the real champion?

Why won't anybody fight Marcus? . . . According to the matchmakers, he's too smart, and he makes the so-called good fighters look like what the cat dragged in. . . . Since when has it been a

RUNYAN WINS IN FLORIDA

MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—(AP.)—Paul Runyan, co-winner of the $5,000 Miami International Four-Ball matches, swept par aside for the fourth successive time yesterday and took a brilliant 69-64-65-68—266 and $1,000 first money in the $5,000 Florida Year Round Club open golf tournament. He defeated his nearest opponent by 10 strokes.

Runyan yesterday tied the 133 for 36 holes that Saturday placed him at the head of nearly 100 professionals and amateurs seeking top honors in the tournament sponsored by Henry L. Doherty, public utilities magnate.

Ten strokes behind Runyan was Charley Guest, youngster from Deal, N. J., who scored a 276 for his 72 holes of play with six inch cups in their first use in major golf tournaments. He won $750.

A quartet tied in third place with 278's and took $506.25 each as prize money. They were Al Espinosa, of Akron, O.; Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia trick shot artist; Walter Hagen, of Detroit, and Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Cal.

Behind them were Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., with 279; Gene Sarazen, of Miami, sponsor of the six-inch cup idea, with 281, and Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., with 282.

MORELAND VICTOR

NEW ORLEANS, March 6.—(AP.)—Gus Moreland, of Dallas, Tex., tournament medalist, defeated Gene Vinson, of Meridian, Mississippi state champion, 8 and 7, in the finals of the carnival invitation tournament of the New Orleans Country Club here yesterday.

Moreland, playing steady golf in the morning and afternoon rounds, easily defeated the Mississippian, who played rather erratically.

KOEHLER STARS

TOLEDO, O., March 6.—(AP.)—Akron captured the National Professional Basketball League championship here yesterday by winning its third straight game from Toledo, 37 to 24. Roy Dickerson, with 10 points, led the Akron scoring, while Pip Koehler tallied 12 points for Toledo.

Western Association Recognizes Ski Mark

SALT LAKE CITY, March 6.—(AP.)—The Western America Winter Sports Association, which sponsors ski jumping contests and dog derbys in a circuit of Western cities, has recognized Alf Engen's flight of 281 feet as a world's distance record for ski riders.

M. A. Strand, vice president of the Utah Ski Club, said today Engen's long jump, made last Sunday, in the Wasatch Mountains, 25 miles east of here, outclassed any previous performance by more than a score feet.

PASO ROBLES, March 6.—Play ball!

This welcome phrase will ring over the Paso Robles sector this afternoon and thus will begin the real fireworks in the spring training of the colorful Pirates.

Manager Gibson reiterated this morning that the initial contest will be a bob-tailed affair. It may not proceed through more than five innings. While it would be possible to stage a nine inning shindig, the Pirate official is afraid of the arm effects on veterans like Pie Traynor, Paul Waner, Fred Lindstrom and one or two others.

Quoth Gibby:

TO GO SLOWLY

"There is nothing to be gained in taking any chances. The arms are far too precious to permit of any endurance stuff at this early period. I expect to use two or more hurlers, in the lineup of both clubs. We have several pitchers who might be able to work indefinitely, but to tax them at this time would be a foolish move, in my opinion. There will be plenty of time for 'bearing down' when we get to San Francisco this week."

Gibby appears to be eager to get a peak at Southpaw Ralph Birkofer in action so the powerful recruit is slated to work a few rounds for the regulars in the jump-off game. Birkofer has been a standout since the training of the pitchers began 10 days ago. He has terrific speed and a nifty curve.

ONE DRILL YESTERDAY

The first string pitchers are carded to operate in the lineup of the Yanigans. This custom has been followed in the Pirate training camps for many years. This method makes it possible for the regular hitters to look at the sort of pitching they will have to face when the race begins.

One long drill was held yesterday. The full squad was out from 10 o'clock until noon.

Chizzlysauce

The Pirates ended their interesting drill of yesterday with a session in the sliding pit. Fred Lindstrom proved the feature of this workout. Lindy, it developed, is one of the few players on the squad who slides proficiently on the left or right side.

The trouble with many of the Pirates is they take off on the wrong foot. Lindstrom illustrated how the thing should be done. When a runner slides to the left he should take off on the right foot, and vice versa.

The Pirate lineup being packed with sprinters the sliding drills will be continued. It might be mentioned there is not one of the speed boys who can slide as well as Honus Wagner could. Honus had half a dozen different ways of going into the bags.

Lindstrom, by the way, was the fastest man on the New York club, but Fred would have a hard time stepping out ahead of Arky Vaughan, Lloyd Waner, Tony Piet, Woody Jensen, Hal Finney, Pie Traynor, and one or two others on the Pittsburgh club.

The health of the Pirates is remarkable. There hasn't been a case of sickness in camp, and through Dr. Jorgensen's diligence the bruises have been down to a minimum.

President Benswanger announced today that the exhibitions with Los Angeles at San Bernardino, March 28 and 29, had been cancelled. The Pirates will clash with Seattle at Santa Barbara on those dates.

HEUSER GETS TITLE SHOT

Heuser is young and much the better hitter, yet few ringworms concede him a chance of beating the Harlem veteran, whose title claims are recognized by the New York State Athletic Commission.

This bout tops the national schedule, Detroit and Sacramento offering the principal competition. At Detroit, Friday night, Eddie Ran, Polish welterweight, tackles King Tut, Minneapolis veteran, over the 10-round route. At Sacramento, Thursday, Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, face Little Dempsey, Filipino, in a 10-round, non-title match.

Bahamas Defeats Star Auzar Horse

AUGA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 6.—(AP.)—Bahamas, 4-year-old Bon Homme gelding, won the $1,000 Man O'War Handicap here yesterday by a head from Pillow Fight, imported half brother of Phar Lap, at six furlongs.

It was Pillow Fight's first start since he was brought here from New Zealand, by D. J. Davis to try for the $50,000 Agua Caliente handicap, March 26, and he gave an excellent account of himself. Bahamas, a sprinter by nature, closed a wide gap in a stretch drive and caught Pillow Fight a few yards from the finish.

His time was 1:11, within 3-5 of a second of the track record.

Baseball Briefs

AVALON, Catalina Island, Cal.—(AP.)—The war clubs of the Chicago Cubs boomed out in a ninth inning attack yesterday and gave the National League champions a 3-2 victory, their second in as many days, over the New York Giants. Trailing by one run as they went to bat in the final inning, the Bruins got the range of young Glenn Spencer and won the game in a hurry. The score by innings:

	R.	M.	E.
New York Giants.	0	0	1
Chicago Cubs....	0	1	0

Batteries—Hubbell, Fitzsimmons, Schmidt, Spencer and Mancuso, Richards; Warnecke, Bush, Newson and Hartnett, Campbell, Z. Taylor.

CORAL GABLES, Fla.—(AP.)—Fred Heimach, veteran southpaw pitcher, ought to be able to hold his job with the Brooklyn Dodgers on his fielding skill alone, Dopsters have figured out that Fred hasn't made a fielding error in five years. In 150 games since 1928, Heimach has handled 249 assists and 35 putouts without a bobble. He has figured in 15 double plays as well.

PASADENA, Cal.—(AP.)—Manager Lew Fonseca, of the Chicago White Sox, is about ready to employ sleuths to locate recruit Infielder Joseph Chamberlain. Chamberlain has signed his contract and said he would report with the second group, but with the practice season going into its second week, was still among the missing. He disappeared last summer while a member of the Waterloo, Ia., Mississippi Valley League club, and turned up later at his home at San Francisco.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—Bing Miller, captain of the Athletics, has solved his most difficult problem of the week-end, arranging a Yanigan team despite a "famine" of rookies. As a result, the first game of the training season is to be put on view today between the Athletic regular and Yanigan teams. In deference to sore muscles it is to be limited to six innings.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP.)—The work of recruit hurlers in the Philadelphia Nationals' camp has caused Manager Burt Shotton to smile contentedly. He said:

"No doubt about it, I have the nucleus of the best pitching corps the club has had since I became manager. To say I am pleased is putting it mildly."

MARTINSBURG, W. Va.—(INS.)—Hack Wilson, unsigned Brooklyn outfielder, left here last night for Miami, accompanied by his wife and their son, Robert. He said the Dodgers had raised their figure to $9,550, but that he would stand pat on his own demand, which he did not divulge.

New Mark Expected In Big Ten '800'

CHICAGO, March 6.—(AP.)—Only one defending champion will be back to look after his honors, but the usual presentation of record-breaking achievements is expected in the annual Western Conference indoor track championship meet Friday and Saturday at the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

Charles Hornbostel, of Indiana, member of the 1932 Olympic team and a point winner in the 800-meters run, is the only survivor of last year's list of victors and his contribution is expected to be a new Big Ten mark for 880 yards. He must beat 1:55.7, made by Orval Martin, of Purdue, in 1930, and with the usual amount of competition from Edwin Turner, of Michigan, should do it.

TORREGROSA WINS

HAVANA, March 6.—(AP.)—Joaquin Torregrosa, Cuban lightweight champion, easily outpointed Mario (Kid) Calixto in a 10-round bout at Miramar Garden Saturday night. Torregrosa weighed 136, Calixto, 137. Cheo Morejon, 169, knocked out Pedro Proenza, 169, in the second round of a scheduled 6-rounder.

AL BROWN WINS

LONDON, March 6.—(INS.)—Panama Al Brown, world bantamweight champion, easily won the decision over Johnny Peters, of England, in their 15-round non-title bout here last night.

BUCKEYES NEAR BIG TEN TITLE

CHICAGO, March 6.—(AP.)—The Western Conference basketball season will close tonight, and unless Indiana's Hoosiers are able to produce a big upset, Ohio State will come into undisputed possession of the championship for the first time since 1925.

The Buckeyes, pace-setters since the outset, need only a victory over Indiana to win the title with 11 games won and one lost. A defeat, however, would leave Ohio State and Northwestern tied at the head of the standing.

At Ann Arbor, Purdue and Michigan will clear up a situation involving third and fourth places. If the Wolverines win, they will be tied with Iowa for third. Victory for the Boilermakers will give them a tie with Michigan for fourth position. Wisconsin and Chicago meet in Chicago, and a victory for the Maroons, which would amount to an upset, would leave them in ninth place, with Minnesota, the season's biggest disappointment, frozen in the cellar.

The standing of the teams:

	W.	L.	Pct.	T.P.	O.P.
Ohio State	10	1	.909	358	284
Northwestern	10	2	.833	465	335
Iowa	8	4	.667	364	359
Michigan	7	4	.636	341	274
Purdue	6	5	.556	387	327
Illinois	6	6	.500	349	309
Indiana	5	6	.455	343	312
Wisconsin	3	8	.273	278	338
Chicago	1	10	.090	236	441
Minnesota	1	11	.083	292	404

KANSAS TAKES TITLE

KANSAS CITY, March 6.—(AP.)—The University of Kansas has stowed away its third consecutive Big Six basketball championship, but the individual scoring honor for the season which closed last week belongs to Norman Wagner, Missouri's star center.

Wagner climaxed his collegiate basketball career by scoring 18 points in Missouri's 37-33 victory over Kansas State, bringing his total for 10 Conference game to 114, compared with 109 by Bill Johnson, Kansas center.

Wisconsin Women's Pin Team Victor

CHICAGO, March 6.—Scoring a total of 2,715, the Madison, Wis., Gas and Electrics last night won the Class A event in the fifth annual Chicago American women's bowling tournament.

Two Jackson, Mich., women placed high in the Class C singles, Loretta Sanderson bowling 521 to take sixth place and Lora Felde rolling 517 for seventh place in the event.

MALOLO SCORES

HAVANA, March 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. A. J. Pershall's Malolo defeated a small but select field to win the Grand Drawing Handicap, $2,500 added, at Oriental Park yesterday. Malolo won by half a length from The Cuba and Chile Stable's Cambridgeshire. S. S. Friedlein's Fortunate Youth was third.

M'KNIGHTS COP SOCCER TILT, GAIN FINAL

By TOM BIRKS

The Castle Shannon McKnights entered the western final of the national amateur cup competition yesterday afternoon, defeating Moon Run, 4 to 3, in an overtime game before a large crowd at Greenlee Field.

The Shannonites, favorites to win mainly because of a defeat handed the Akron Goodyears, had a tough battle throughout the game. A bumpy field hampered the players and caused the ball to take many queer twists.

LOSERS SCORE FIRST

Moon Run electrified the large crowd by scoring within five minutes. A combined movement by the front line gave Lesco a chance and he easily defeated Young. This reverse stimulated the McKnights, and Moon Run was kept playing defensive soccer for a long period. Seven minutes elapsed before Cutten evened matters. Marovich then scored the second and Kevish the third goal, giving Shannon a 3-1 lead at the interval.

McKnights again took the offensive at the start of the second half, but Moon Run rallied, and from a scramble in front of goal, Lloyd scored. Sello tallied the tying goal a few minutes later.

PLAY OVERTIME

At the end of 90 minutes of hectic play the game was deadlocked, but in the extra period, Marovich got his second and winning goal.

The McKnights may meet the Cleveland Slavias in the final round.

In the West Penn Cup, Curry had easy sailing with Lawrenceville, the Keystone Leaguers winning, 6 to 0, at South Park. Heidelberg defeated Sturgeon, 3-2, and the Zoneys won, 7-1, over Springdale. The McKnights-Moon Run lineup:

McKnight—4.		Moon Run—3.
H. Young	G.	J. Ambrose
John Bubich	R.B.	J. Macek
M. Kuten	L.B.	F. Riddle
G. Resavage	R.H.	P. Kushner
J. Linard	C.H.	A. Pawlik
W. Magera	L.H.	F. Vanjura
T. Brown	O.R.	L. Dollnar
A. Roney	I.R.	T. Krouse
S. Cutten	C.	J. Lloyd
N. Maravich	I.L.	R. Sella
J. Kevish	O.L.	L. Lesko

Score at half time—McKnights 3, Moon Run 1. Referee—McArdle. Linesmen—Wakeman and Boylan. Time of halves—45 minutes. Goals scored by N. Maravich 2, S. Cutten, J. Kevish, Lesko, J. Lloyd, R. Sella, star player—M. Maravich, Subs—Moon Run—J. Razpotnik, J. Grecco, S. Darak, L. Cantwell. McKnights—F. Kevish, J. Matthews.

ELI, PRINCETON TIE LOOMS

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—All the signs and portents today point a playoff between Yale and Princeton for the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League championship.

Yale, overwhelming Cornell, 46-22, at New Haven Saturday, closed its season with a record of eight victories and two defeats to clinch at least a tie for first place.

The Tigers, meanwhile, bowled over Dartmouth, 39-35, for their fifth successive league triumph and now need only to trip Pennsylvania at Philadelphia Saturday night to tie the Elis for the lead and force a playoff.

Pennsylvania, third place holder, gave indications in its defeat of Columbia that Princeton's task would not be too easy, but the fact remains that the Tigers will be strongly favored.

Princeton has the tallest and most powerful team in the circuit. The Tigers boast four great sharpshooters in Ken Fairman, Lank Seibert, Johnny Grebauskas and Karl Larsen, and an outstanding defensive guard in Pete Fortune. They took a 28-21 beating from Pennsylvania at Princeton early in the season, but should turn the tables in the league's closing game Saturday.

In Title Play

SAM HARBISON

Allegheny Country Club star, who will play in the National indoor tennis championship tournament beginning this week-end. He will be this city's only entrant. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

SAM HARBISON TO PERFORM IN EAST

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Sam Harbison, Allegheny Country Club star, will carry the colors of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association into the annual national indoor tennis championships beginning at the Seventh Regiment Armory in New York next Saturday and continuing throughout the ensuing week. The rangy Sewickleyite, who is at present attending the Cornell University medical school in Gotham, will compete in both singles and doubles, his partner in the latter event remaining so far undetermined.

It had been hoped that Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace and first ranking district racqueter for the past two season, could be sent on the Eastward trek and that he could thus pair up with Harbison in the dual division, as well as try conclusions in the man-to-man milling.

TREASURY LOW

Condition of the P. T. A. treasury precluded this move, however, for it is the aim of local officials to ship one or more of Western Pennsylvania's luminaries to the Atlantic seaboard for tourney action during the 1933 outdoor campaign, and association resources cannot stand two such wallops.

Harbison is a protege of Julius Boise, Allegheny professional. He boasts a fine assortment of strokes, is a severe hitter, and plays a fast, decisive game at the net. He is a graduate of Princeton, where he was an outstanding member of the varsity net squad. In West Penn title competition, he attained the semi-finals in 1930, the final in 1931, and the quarter-finals last summer. He will be joined by Boise in New York late this week and will engage in daily practice sessions on the board courts of the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club from now till the start of action.

SQUASH PLAY RESUMES

Competition in the yearly City Class A Squash Racquets championship tournament will be resumed at the Keystone Athletic Club here tomorrow afternoon. Three quarter-final matches remain to be accounted for.

In the upper half of the draw, McCook Reed, Pittsburgh Golf Club hope and defending premier, will battle George Kepler, P. A. A. husky, who annexed the City B crown last Saturday, while Charley Fagan, Keystone crack, tilts with the redoubtable Frank McClintock, of P. A. A. In the lower sector, Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Winged Head aspirant, meets Chip Kennedy, K. A. C. contender and 1932 Class B titleholder. Bill Bickel, ranking Keystoner, attained the penultimate frame last Saturday by dint of four-game triumph over Joe Oliver, cagy Pittsburgh Golf Clubber.

Harmar D. Denny, Jr., and G. G. Coolidge have the men's indoor tennis doubles championship of the Pittsburgh Golf Club tucked away for 1933. The pair won the title yesterday by defeating T. L. Orr and F. B. Nimick, 6-4, 8-6, 6-4 in the final match.

Mrs. J. Ricketson III and Miss Peggy Painter won the women's crown with a 6-4, 8-6 victory over Mrs. George Love and Miss Louise Reed.

A. A. U. Floor Play In Full Stride

KANSAS CITY, March 6.—(AP.)—Gathering momentum over the weekend, the National Amateur Athletic Union basketball tournament went into full speed today with 20 teams slated to see action before midnight. The Henry's, of Wichita, Kan., have won the title for three consecutive years. The defending champions meet their first test against the White Cigars, of Joliet, Ill., tonight.

First round tilts will be brought to a climax four hours later in a game between the Tulsa Diamond Oilers and the Commercial Club, of Trenton, Mo. The Oklahoma crew is one of the tournament favorites, having won the Missouri Valley A. A. U. title in addition to weathering a season of 19 games without defeat.

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—The tenseness of the close races in the National Hockey League was reflected in the penalty lists last week as no less than three free-for-all fistic encounters marked the strenuously played games and major penalties were handed out right and left. Montreal's Les Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings were the teams which profited by the week's work.

The Canadiens, playing their best brand of hockey, won three straight games to take third place in the International division away from the New York Americans. The Flying Frenchmen took two decisions from Toronto's pace setters, 2-1 and 4-2, to tie the Amerks, who dropped one to Chicago, then shut out their rivals, 2-0, in the deciding contest Saturday.

Detroit, after taking a 6-3 beating from the Montreal Maroons, walloped Ottawa twice, 3-2 and 2-0 last night, and gained a five-point lead over the New York Rangers in the American division race. The Rangers, playing only one game, lost that by a 2-1 count to Boston last night and held second place by only one point. Boston and Ottawa started with a scoreless tie.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

Detroit	7—Syracuse	1

CANADIAN-AMERICAN LEAGUE

New Haven	2—Philadelphia	0

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—The tenseness of the close races in the National Hockey League was reflected in the penalty lists last week as no less than three free-for-all fistic encounters marked the strenuously played games and major penalties were handed out right and left. Montreal's Les Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings were the teams which profited by the week's work.

The Canadiens, playing their best brand of hockey, won three straight games to take third place in the International division away from the New York Americans. The Flying Frenchmen took two decisions from Toronto's pace setters, 2-1 and 4-2, to tie the Amerks, who dropped one to Chicago, then shut out their rivals, 2-0, in the deciding contest Saturday.

Detroit, after taking a 6-3 beating from the Montreal Maroons, walloped Ottawa twice, 3-2 and 2-0 last night, and gained a five-point lead over the New York Rangers in the American division race. The Rangers, playing only one game, lost that by a 2-1 count to Boston last night and held second place by only one point. Boston and Ottawa started with a scoreless tie.

Race Meets Canceled

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 6.—(AP.)—The Agua Caliente Jockey Club has suspended indefinitely its 80-day race meeting after completion of racing yesterday as a result of money shortage, reflecting the banking situation in the United States.

Joseph M. Schenck, Hollywood motion picture producer and president of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, said he hoped to resume the meeting the latter part of this week.

If it is possible to reopen the track on Friday, as Schenck said he hoped it would be, none of the major stake races will be affected.

NEW ORLEANS CLOSED

NEW ORLEANS, March 6.—(AP.)—The Crescent City Jockey Club has called off its racing program at the Fair Grounds today because of the closing of the banks and the subsequent paralysis of all business.

MIAMI TO RUN

MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—(AP.)—Despite the closing of the tracks and Fair Grounds and Agua Caliente, due to the banking situation, officials of the Miami Jockey Club have announced that the remaining six days of the Hialeah Park meeting would be completed, including the $10,000 Florida Derby Saturday.

With the meeting's receipts approximately 20 per cent over a year ago, a total of nearly $220,000 Saturday and local bank officials expressing confidence in their ability to care for the thousands of winter visitors, optimism reigned here among the followers of the turf.

HAVANA TO OPERATE

HAVANA, March 6.—(AP.)—The banking situation in the United States will not affect the racing program at Havana, Oriental Park officials said last night. No change is planned in the schedule for the remainder of the meeting, which ends next Sunday.

By JESS CARVER

Unless there is a powerful lot of upsetting of the red hot choices between now and the windup of the campaign, it looks as if Pitt, the Dukes and Geneva were in line for whatever championship basketball honors are to be passed out hereabouts this year.

The Dukes are in as city champions, and if they beat Wash-Jeff Friday night (and if they don't, they'd best not come back to town) they'll have a clear claim to the district gonfalon.

PITT HAS EDGE

Pitt, having confounded the dopsters (what, again?) by whipping Temple's favored Owls Saturday night in Philadelphia, and whipping 'em soundly, too, have a strangle hold on the Intercollegiate Conference banner. About all the Panthers need to do to sew up the flag is to take Tech in the second clash of the annual series with the Tartans. They, the Panthers, can make their position more secure by beating West Virginia Saturday night.

The Tech and Pitt quintets face two games each this week. Tomorrow, Geneva invades the Tartan gym and Wash-Jeff appears in the Pitt Stadium. The Wash-Jeff boxers also are due in town for a session with the Pitt punchers and from what we've seen of the W. and J. basketball team, and from the compared records of the two mitt squads, it looks like a double triumph for the Pitt forces.

Tech, however, will have its hands plenty full with Geneva. The Covenanters have the Tri-State Conference crown nicely stowed away and boast a previous win over Tech.

Saturday night, Pitt plays away from home again, meeting West Virginia at Morgantown, while Tech goes East for a clash with Georgetown at Washington.

TITANS AFTER TIE

Waynesburg's hold on the second place position in the Conference may be disputed after tomorrow night by Westminster. The Titans can gain a tie with the Jackets for the runner-up position by beating Grove City.

Paul Birch, Duquesne's sophomore forward is trailing Tech's Bobby Smith in the race for individual scoring honors. Birch is sporting an average of seven and three-fifth points per game for 14 games. He dumped in 43 field goals and 28 fouls for 114 points. Smith has a nine and fourteenth-fifteenth average, with 51 field goals and 47 fouls for 149 points in 15 contests.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

Forbes

Our Troubles, Man-Made, Can Be Remedied

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr Forbes

I have a cousin who is a backwoods blacksmith. Whenever a farmer cannot manage a horse, he turns him over to the blacksmith to be tamed and trained. Never once has he failed. I asked him:

"How do you do it?"

He replied:

"It's easy. When a horse becomes excited, I don't. A lot of people don't understand horses; they don't know how to quieten them down. I know how horses think. I just keep cool. I don't whip them; I talk nicely to them. First thing you know, they stop getting excited and start doing what I tell them. When they know that I'm not nervous, they stop being nervous."

So many bank depositors have been kicking over the traces that banking trouble has developed.

Our bankers, by and large, have failed to prevent the public from becoming nervous.

What we now need is somebody to take hold who understands us as well as this rustic blacksmith understands horses. He vows that the blame for horses becoming untractable rests more with those who try to handle them than with the horses.

Is it not true that the blame for the recent state of mind of bank depositors is chargeable largely to bankers? Weren't bankers among the first to rush to become "liquid?"

WE BANK DEPOSITORS need somebody to calm us down.

"New brooms sweep clean." Happily, Washington has a new broom, in the person of President Roosevelt.

At Miami he demonstrated his coolness and courage. Anxious to make a creditable record, he doubtless will immediately address himself to the most urgent of all our problems, namely, the restoration of banking facilities and confidence.

THE DECISION to close New York banks for two days was not reached until the early hours of Saturday morning. I understand that the largest, the strongest institutions felt entirely capable of meeting any emergencies that could possibly arise. But it was finally adjudged prudent to take a brief breathing spell.

DOUBTLESS this decision was influenced by the panicky action of foreign countries. Friday's "raid" on America's gold was the severest ever experienced.

Under normal conditions absolutely "free" movements of gold are ideal. But today's conditions are not normal. It behooves this country to protect itself, to protect its stock of gold, to see to it that its financial strength is not undermined by other nations.

THE HUMAN ANIMAL is the most adaptable, the most resourceful in all creation. Some way out of these banking difficulties will be found.

Ponder how much worse off America would be if her troubles were being caused by extreme scarcity of food, clothing, shelter, transportation, heat, water and other absolute necessaries of life.

We are not afflicted by famine. We are afflicted by affluence, by a surfeit of life's necessaries.

SURELY IT WILL not prove beyond the ingenuity of man, beyond the ingenuity of Americans, admittedly unsurpassedly resourceful, to devise ways and means to make available for those who need them, the essentials we so abundantly possess.

In short, our troubles are superficial rather than fundamental, created by man rather than by nature.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has an opportunity not equalled by any president since Lincoln to win infinite gratitude and immortal glory by instituting truly effective leadership. It is inconceivable that Congress will attempt to obstruct prompt, clearcut, aggressive, courageous action.

U. S. APPROACHES 'SHOW DOWN' IN CRISIS

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics New York University

NEW YORK, March 6.—We are face to face with a temporary emergency. The scarcity of currency is merely a temporary emergency, and we should meet it as such. It will pass probably within 30 days.

Back of this emergency lie financial conditions which require a "show down," and if we choose we can have that "show down" now. We can at last face the facts of involvency and debt, and can clean up for good.

But at the moment, the currency problem is acute, and perhaps the first thing is to realize that this is a temporary and relatively simple matter.

In fact, the general suspension was probably unnecessary. Probably it was a great mistake for Michigan and Maryland to declare those general "holidays." They created the false impression that all banks and all money might be in danger. That caused general alarm and spread a general lack of confidence.

But all banks are not unsound. Much more than 50 per cent of our banks are solvent and strong, and, accordingly, deposits in them are safe, and no reason for suspension of check payments should have existed.

The really insolvent banks should have been allowed to fail and should have been reorganized.

Now, of course, the suspension must be general, for a psychological condition has been created. But remember, the really solvent banks are still solvent.

NO MONEY SHORTAGE

Note this: The momentary scarcity of currency is a result, not a cause. It is the result of the unwise general bank suspensions. Don't get the idea that the banks suspended because of any money shortage. There was none. (The underlying cause of suspension lay in the unsound loans and investments of a minority of our banks, and it was the selfish and panicky fears of certain stockholders and security owners which induced the first unwise general state "holidays.")

Of course, it follows that no manufacture of more currency now can help. It would further destroy confidence. What we need is to make good the currency now in existence.

For the moment, we are going to resort to clearing house certificates, as always in similar emergencies. If we do not regard them an addition to money, they are desirable and will be retired as the emergency passes.

"CLEAN UP" NOW DUE

History shows that we are likely to see premiums on gold and on currency. Both would be logical now.

A premium on gold would show (1) that we have more paper money than we should have in comparison with the gold base, and (2) that we are still valuing things in terms of gold and planning to get firmly back on a gold base.

A premium on currency would show that checks cannot be cashed freely on account of bank suspensions and therefore that they are not worth as much as cash of any kind.

We are seeing higher interest rates. This is well. Money rates have been artificially low, and should have been raised some time ago. They will help the country to hold what gold it requires, and tend to check both hoarding and speculation.

Naturally trade will be slowed up, and especially inter-community and interstate trade. Temporarily, employment and railway traffic will be affected. These unfortunate results, however, may have their good side if they bring that drastic economy and liquidation which prepare the way for sound recovery.

Under similar circumstances we have cleaned house within a month. If we stand behind our new President and stick to sound money now, we can do it again.

We can make this the beginning of recovery.

Financial Topics

One wire house reports some buying orders ranging from 1 to 3 points above Friday's closing levels. This is regarded largely as short-covering. Shorts are nervous. Some of them have approached brokerage houses with suggestions that they be permitted to cover in London and, of course, so far as the Stock Exchange and other exchange houses are concerned, no business of this nature or other kind can be accepted.

The Trader, in Barron's Weekly, says, in part: "All of the major problems long obscured and foolishly glossed over are now out in the open. The worst is known. Out of chaos and confusion are bound to come confidence and a gradual rebirth of enterprise. It seems no time for despair, and on the face of things it hardly seems probable that the ruthlessly individualistic scramble for coin of the realm will bring any greater reward than the farcical scramble for stocks four years ago."

There was a strong feeling among some brokers that when the exchange opens there will be a trend to higher prices, at least at the outset. "Bootlegging" of securities for cash may be going on here and there by the brokers who are not members of the stock exchange, but there are no known record of any such transactions. Such trades could only be possible on a "cash" basis and by individuals who would have to make their own prices. Brokers think it is highly unlikely that there will be any such trading "over-the-counter" or elsewhere by individuals outside of the exchange.

The stock exchange committee modified the rule against all trading to the extent that members may make contracts outside the United States for the purchase or sale or the borrowing or lending of unlisted securities provided such transactions are made for the purpose of closing existing commitments, members were still prohibited from making contracts for the purchase or sale or the borrowing or lending of any listed securities whether such contracts were made in the United States or elsewhere and are prohibited from making any contracts in unlisted securities in the United States.

Wall street brokerage firms maintained wire connections with branches in other cities. They were besieged with telephone calls from customers seeking information as to when the stock exchange would reopen and whether trading might be placed on a restricted basis, but there was no immediate information on these points. Payment of customers' balances by checks or currency was prohibited, the only exception being made on balances held outside the country. Brokers were permitted to accept currency from clients in payment of securities, but not checks.

Canadian financial exchanges and markets were working as usual today. The British pound advanced from $4.04 on the Montreal Foreign Exchange Saturday to $4.25 in terms of the Canadian dollar. But absence of any quotation of the United States dollar in Canada or any other part of the world made it impossible to determine just where Canada's dollar stood in relation to the United States dollar. Several Canadian banks paid a 15 per cent premium on American money in over-the-counter transactions today.

It was understood the demand for American cash was behind the allowance of the premium. It was understood American firms were sending here for United States currency.

Atchison Railway Loadings Increase

CHICAGO, March 6.—Revenue freight cars handled by Atchison railway system during the week ended March 4 totaled 19,124, comparing with 18,751 in the week preceding and 27,199 in the like 1932 week.

NATION SHOWS WILL TO MOVE FORWARD

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The overt evidences of trouble in the financial situation were in reality consequences of past mistakes and trends. Undue concentration on the immediate disturbances blinds the observer to the setting of the stage for economic recovery, which, of course, hinges on the willingness of government and business to cooperate to adopt the necessary policies, such as bolstering up purchasing power through adequate farm relief and through stimulus of construction projects to absorb part of the unemployed in the great cities.

Mr. Rukeyser

In spite of disturbances, whose immediate importance is not to be minimized, there were nevertheless indications of the will to go forward. This spirit was manifested in a pickup in residential construction, a greater volume of freight movement of manufactured goods and steadiness of commodity prices.

SCRIP NEEDED

On the other hand the prevalence of bank holidays has, of course, disrupted present trade. Obviously, temporary expedients are needed to tide over the emergency. So that trade may go on in the disturbed areas, Clearing House certificates or scrip may be needed. The basic need is to prevent interference with the normal exchange of goods and services.

After these temporary problems have been met, lasting banking reform must be accomplished. Emphasis should be made on assuring the liquidity of deposit institutions. This means eliminating the post-war fashion of department store banking, with huge investments in bonds and mortgages.

The problem can and will be worked out.

MAY STIMULATE TRADE

The stiffening of interest rates in the primary money markets, as a result of withdrawals, helps to put banking on a profitable basis, and may give a stimulus to lending.

In view of the excitement and dislocations last week, the retiring political party cannot be especially proud of the condition of the country when it turned over the reins to the opposition. The record belies the propaganda that it has a monopoly on competence in respect to economic matters.

The present disposition of business to look to government for aid makes politics a more important influence on the course of economic events than is normally the case.

CAR LOADINGS OFF 55,311

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—The American Railway Association announced today that carloadings for the week ended February 25 were 459,079 cars, a decrease of 55,311 below the preceding week and 76,419 below the corresponding week in 1932.

Miscellaneous freight loaded during the week of February 25 was 150,628 cars, a decrease of 2,449 below the preceding week and 27,500 under the corresponding week in 1932; less than car-lot merchandise, 143,390, decrease, 15,407, and 26,343; grain and grain products, 28,319, increase, 2,269 over the preceding week, but 4,308 under last year; coal, 101,641, decrease, 35,905 and 6,562.

Woolworth Sales Drop in February

NEW YORK, March 6.—F. W. Woolworth Company February sales were reported as $16,245,000, a drop of 13½ per cent compared with 1932. For the two months, sales totaled $32,089,687, a drop of 12.7 per cent. Sales in January showed a drop of 11.9 per cent from January, 1932.

Index of Business Activity Shows Drop for Week

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—Statistics for the past week on freight car loadings, electric power production, and steel ingot output, showed a declining tendency, according to Moody's index figures for these factors. These statistics covering the week ended February 25, and were delayed by late publication of the weekly carloading report.

These indexes are corrected for seasonal variation—that is, if each change in the actual reported loadings or production amounted to the usual change for the period, the index itself would be unchanged.

The indexes follow (1928=100):

	Freight	Electric	Steel	Combined
Latest week	51.4	91.6	21.7	54.9

Scrip Solved Problem Of Nation's Last Great Panic

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

PLANS BEING completed today to put clearing house certificates into use with the reopening of the nation's banks follow precedents established during the panic of 1907. The adoption of this emergency medium of exchange tided the country over the period of hysteria which marked the culmination of that panic.

The clearing house certificates permitted business to continue on a practically normal basis during the period of stress. The certificates disappeared from use as normal banking relationships were restored.

Several types of clearing house certificates or scrips have been under consideration in various parts of the country since the closing of the New York banks on Saturday precipitated a general bank holiday affecting every part of the country.

Panic of 1907 Similar To Present Emergency

THE 1907 PANIC produced a situation which, to some extent, parallels the present emergency. The troubles at that time were short lived, but they were preceded by a period of exceptional speculative activity. The speculation, however, was more apparent in real estate, building projects and in mining ventures than in listed stocks. The panic was preceded by several financial scandals which later culminated in the reform of life insurance companies, and the forced resignation of the officials of several prominent New York banks.

The actual crisis was caused by a run on the Knickerbocker Trust Company, which closed its doors during the first day of strain. Runs on banks in all parts of the country followed. Hoarding of money became common and banks found themselves with inadequate funds to meet the demands of their depositors.

Scrip to Be Based On Bank Resources

THE PROBLEM was solved by the issuance of clearing house certificates in many part of the country. In New York a committee was appointed to oversee the issuance of the certificates. The banks wishing certificates pledged portions of their assets. If the assets were acceptable to the committee, the certificates were issued and could be used for the settlement of clearing house balances between the banks.

Under normal conditions the country transacts its business through the use of checks. The full amount of cash represented by the checks does not change hands. Through the medium of clearing houses the banks only settle balances due. Thus, if Bank A had checks on Bank B for $15,000, and Bank B had checks on Bank A for $13,000, only $2,000 in actual transfers would be involved. Since the Federal Reserve has been in operation not even the cash would change hands. The transaction would be settled with a check drawn on the Federal Reserve by Bank B payable to Bank A. The operation has been reduced to bookkeeping at the Federal Reserve, which is a bank for banks.

Cash Supply Is Not Big Enough

THE SUPPLY of currency in the country is not great enough to permit the transaction of business on a cash basis or to pay all bank depositors in full. Thus when normal bank channels become clogged, as they did in 1907 and as they are at present, by the hoarding of money by individuals, clearing house certificates permit the banks to settle their balances in the usual manner.

In 1907 there was no restriction on the payment of accounts with checks. The only restrictions were on the withdrawal of actual money. The banks did not close their doors and business went on as usual.

While the New York banks used clearing house certificates for settlement of balances only between themselves, at Pittsburgh, Chicago, New Orleans and several other points certificates of small denominations were printed to be paid out by banks as currency to individual depositors.

Certificates Put Into General Use

The use of scrip of this type is ancient history to Pittsburgh's younger generation, but those employed or managing household expenditures at the time remembe, that payrolls were met in clearing house certificates for several weeks and that these certificates were generally accepted at the stores.

The successful use of this emergency form of currency in 1907 has demonstratd its practicability. While it may not be needed in all parts of the country, its adoption appears to be a logical solution of the general collapse of banking facilities throughout the country.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

American Smelting and Refining Company reports a 1932 net loss of $4,506,175, compared with a net loss of $874,976 in 1931. Current assets amounted to $63,-125,293, including cash of $4,945,352 and $16,066,303 in United States government securities. Current liabilities were $8,585,-843. At the end of 1931 current assets were $89,156,873, including $3,886,315 cash and $16,310,186 in government obligations. Current liabilities were $10,979,908.

Barnsdall Corporation and subsidiaries report for 1932, net loss of $847,072, after interest, taxes, depreciation, depletion, intangible development costs, etc., compared with net loss of $3,268,637 in 1931.

BROKERS READY TO REOPEN

NEW YORK, March 6.—(INS.)—Wall street today prepared for the reopening of the stock, bond and other markets as if there had been no interruption as a result of the banking crisis.

Brokerage houses will accept checks from their clients as before, it was learned.

The closing of the exchange so far has resulted in practically no "under-the counter" trading. There were reports of bids for cash well under the closing prices of last Friday and one sale of American Telephone was reported at 85, almost 15 points under Friday's close.

Only those who were in desperate need of cash would sell at this time, it was stated, since higher prices were anticipated with the re-opening of the exchange, as indicated by strength in American securities in London today.

The exchange board of governors met this morning and named a committee to deal with questions arising from the closing and the suspension of deliveries.

U. S. EXCHANGE DISORGANIZED

Associated Press.

The American bank holiday put a stop to dollar quotations abroad, and markets around the world kept a close eye on New York, and Washington, awaiting developments.

LONDON—The pound sterling shifted to the gold backed French franc and there was an effort to peg the pound at 88 francs. The price of gold went to 130 shillings 7 pence per fine ounce. The Bank of England declined to comment on a report that it was offering to aid the Federal Reserve. American tourists were bewildered but not frightened; they cashed their traveling checks at a slightly higher rate than Saturday's.

LIVERPOOL—The cotton exchange was operating. Futures opened 12 points under Saturday, but quickly recovered half the loss.

PARIS—The dollar was not quoted but other foreign exchanges were active. American tourists cashed their checks at 24 francs to the dollar, a slight increase.

BERLIN—The Reichsbank fixed the dollar rate at 4.18 marks, slightly up. Bankers expressed the conviction that the American gold standard is in no danger.

ROME—Foreign exchange markets were closed and the stock market was down. The unofficial dollar rate was 18½ lire.

AMSTERDAM—Stock market prices were up, little affected by the American situation.

TOKIO—Foreign exchange transactions were suspended and the markets were closed except for quotations on government bonds. The silk exchangers here, at Yokohama and at Kobe also were closed.

MONTREAL—Canadian banks accepted the dollar at par, but American visitors experienced difficulty obtaining funds elsewhere. The pound sterling was quoted at $4.17 a gain of 11 cents from Saturday.

TORONTO—The stock exchange and the standard mining exchange remained open, but the authorities announced that if any distress selling from United States sources appeared the exchanges would be closed.

CLOSE CHICAGO CATTLE MART

CHICAGO, March 6.—(AP.)—The Chicago Livestock Exchange will close at 2 p. m. Tuesday until further notice, the action was taken today at an emergency meeting of the board of directors.

The closing of the exchange, largest livestock market in the world, found Chicago with only a week's supply of meat on hand. In this supply, there was enough pork to last only two days, under normal distribution.

The closing was forced because of the bank holiday.

Suspension of trading on the livestock exchange will not close the big packing plants, whose receipts on direct consignment have amounted to 50 and 75 per cent of total receipts. They will make private arrangements with producers to obtain supplies, giving checks redeemable "when and as banking facilities permit."

WHEAT SPURTS AT WINNPEG

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, March 6.—(AP.)—Wheat futures advanced more than 1 cent today under a renewed wave of buying from southern sources. Offerings were light.

Near the close values were up 1⅛ to 1¼ cents. May futures were quoted at 51½, July 52½, October 53⅞.

Brokers' facilities were taxed to keep up with the flow of orders as Chicago traders, their own market closed, turned to Winnipeg for an outlet.

LIVERPOOL, March 6.—The wheat market was ¼ to ½ pence higher at the finish.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 6.—(AP.)—Flour unchanged. Carload lots family patents, 4.10-20 a barrel in 98-pound cotton sacks. Shipments, 18,255.

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XV.

When the toasts were drunk, and it came to her turn, she tilted her glass of sparkling red burgundy, and trilled a line or two of a little French song about "Amour" in the prettiest manner.

The little Toronto bride who was very much enamoured of the six-foot husband at her side, sprang up with a glass of champagne in her hand, calling out loudly: "Yes, yes! Let's drink to love's young dream . . . to us . . . to Barry and Loranda!"

When dinner was over, Barry came directly to her.

"Those kids get a bit raw when they've had a drink or two! It's only their fun," he said awkwardly.

"Why, of course! Aren't we all out for a good time? I'm enjoying myself tremendously!" declared Judith.

And—so that he would not see the misery of her hurt—just as the music of a jolly orchestra struck up, she grabbed Jack Ordway by the arm, exclaiming: "Come on! Let's dance! Let's show 'em how! I've some new steps up my sleeve, big boy! Let's at it!"

Not only the first dance, but the second dance was his. Driven by her disappointment, and a bitterness that Barry should so be made a tool, Judith determined to be gay and flirtatious as the rest of them. Her pride was hurt. That toast at the dinner-table that had coupled Barry with another!

LORANDA NOTICES

She overdid her part, as amateurs usually do, and permitted Jack to lead her off to a cosy nook that was screened off by a bank of ferns at the far end of the entrance hall, and sat with him there for a long time.

Loranda did not permit this fact to go unmarked. She stressed it laughingly to Barry, when he wanted to go in search of Judith . . .

"Why, don't be a spoil-sport, and intrude on Judith's flirtation!"

In the sweetest way in the world—quite simpatica, indeed—she added a word or two to the effect that she did hope the naive little country girl, who had been transported from the back-of-beyond into a social atmosphere she was quite unaccustomed to, would have sense enough not to have her head turned by the amused flattery of men-about-town . . . because of course, poor child, (and Loranda phrased this cleverly) "the men in our crowd"—when it came to marrying—seldom or never went out of their own circle. . . .

"And now I dare you," she challenged Barry laughingly before he had time to comment on what she had just said—"I dare you to come out and race on skiis with me on the practice slopes outside the Inn—I'll bet I'm faster!"

Away they went, those two, into the magic moonlit night, while Judith danced, and her heart waited Barry's coming. . . .

A tall, handsome couple on their skis, and skimming over the snow with graceful ease, went Barry and Loranda.

He had beaten her in their race on the slopes outside the Cochon Inn—not once but several times.

Loranda had pretended to be dreadfully disappointed.

DETERMINED TO WIN

"And I thought I was quite an expert!" She held on to him when he raised her to her feet after her tumble in the whirl of the Christiania . . .

That strengthened an idea that had been simmering in her mind as to the best way of keeping him out of Judith's orbit this evening!

He was attracted to the little country girl . . . under Loranda's most soulful looks and brilliant sallies at the supper table, he had really been quite restless!

She had hated that. But it had put her on her mettle, just the same. She wanted him. She would make him fall in love with her. If fair means didn't turn the trick, well, there were other devices she would employ!

Loranda prided herself, even at her early age, on knowing the whole bag of tricks. She wouldn't be outdone by a simpleton like Judith!

"Let's take a five-mile trek in a direction I know. You can tell me my faults as we go along. I'm dying to improve." She smiled in her dazzling way at him.

"But it'll take too long. The others will wonder where—" He broke off, uncertain.

"Nonsense! They haven't even missed us yet. We'll be back inside an hour," she asserted.

A little vexed with Judith, although he knew that he himself—against his will—had been put in a false position tonight, Barry consented.

Because of her close friendship with their hostess, Betty Graves—daughter of the president of the bank, where he had gained a steady albeit quick success—he'd be a fool not to keep on the right side of Loranda.

One had to be diplomatic in New York, if one were to get anywhere at all. Competition was so keen. People waiting to take one's place. "Wheels within wheels." . . . One must be politic.

Loranda was nothing but a good friend—a pal. He'd . . . known Loranda long before ever he met Judith.

And Loranda was a Sprite of the Snows tonight, in her opaline skiing suit. There was an elusive glamour about her.

He hadn't particularly noticed that before. He had thought Loranda tiresome very often.

But tonight—with this new softness in her, and the pretty feminine way she asked him to show her how to do a certain turn on skis—the way she listened and deferred to him—she was almost like Judith!

Tonight—because of Judith's snub of him, and the manner in which she had turned from him to Ordway—it was a kind of balm to glide through the night with this pretty creature by his side—she seemed so very delighted to be with him, and made no secret of her happiness.

Hang it all, after the grind back in New York, a man did want to be appreciated!

"You're the sweetest girl I've seen in years—and I'm crazy about you!" whispered Jack Ordway.

That horrible pain was at her heart again. She took another draught of the delicate wine—anything to drown her apprehension.

For Barry and Loranda had gone off together—it was a full two hours, she knew, since they had left the Inn——

COMFORTED BY ZELLA

She told herself: "Don't be a fool. You've asked for this. You let Barry see how much you care. He's on to pastures new. That's natural."

Jack Ordway was whispering charming things to her. She didn't even get their meaning, but her stiff lips smiled at him, valiantly.

"Judith, you're an idiot to feel things so! Stop crying, darling—I tell you, no man's worth it."

They were back in their bedroom in the Graves' log cabin at Sainte Marguerite, and Zella was sitting on the edge of Judith's bed, trying to comfort her.

"It's those drinks have gone to my head . . . that 'vin rose' . . . I'm a darn fool . . . pay no attention to me, Zella!"

"Judith, I'd no idea you were as crazy as that about him—this Barry!"

"I'm not. But I mean—the way he turned me down tonight—Loranda hates me, I know—it was cruel of him!"

Zella, the cynical, for once managed to close her lips on her same "philosophy of life," and was entirely woman.

"You flirted, yourself! Be fair! I saw him looking for you when you were behind that screen with Ordway!"

"I know. I'd love to believe he was jealous—if I could. But Loranda—rich—and so beautiful—"

Today's story concerning the activities of the Sun-Telegraph - Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club appears on another page.

Synopsis

Judith Brian, a secretary in the Knickerbocker Bank, and Barry Deane, young executive, are secretly attracted to one another. Judith, however, feels that Barry is above her socially. Zella, Judith's friend, receives an attractive offer from Loranda Tewson, society girl, to manage a dress shop for her. Zella and Judith leave their drab boarding house and rent an apartment. Judith is unhappy when she is transferred to the bank's uptown office where she will not be able to see Barry. Loranda's friends attend the shop's opening. The wily Loranda rushes Barry off to assist her with refreshments. Jack Ordway, playboy friend of Loranda's, flirts with Judith. Judith is thrilled when Barry is transferred to her office. She attends a theater with him. Returning home, he says he loves her. Judith is invited to a week-end party at the Canadian lodge of one of Barry's friends.

A Voice From a Nickel Seat

Like Caesar at the Rubicon they are crossing no bridges until the rivers and harbors committee okays the appropriations.

And what of the Republicans, you ask? It's a sad story that will bring many a bead to an eyelash.

They are fated to carry the banner. They shall march through the Alpine village while the shades of night are collapsing on their patent spring rollers.

Come weal, come woe, we are in for a new administration. We have reached that acute angle where any change is for the better.

To us, politicians are politicians. We expect them to feather their own wings, to hem and haw, to dilliaber and to dalliber and we know they will never betray that trust.

For 30 years, man and bunions, we have gazetted the strange capering of our public servants. We know their origin. They are nominated by the people, elected by the people and take the oath of office which doesn't say a thing about the people being the population.

It may be that the sudden precipitation into the pitiless white mule of publicity agents causes them to lose their sense of appraisals. All we know is that from the minute they set foot in the District of Columbia they are on their own.

They're great pals before election. But once aboard the lugger and they're separate organisms who think they were hatched from magic eggs.

We concede that a government official is a great man. Senators, commissioners, representatives and filibusters are important and ponderous. The eyes of the nation are on them. And the eyes of a nation never flirt.

We trust that the Democrats will remember that we wrote their names on the line in a very neat hand. And that we are on the doormat of a new era in which legislation shall be of the people, for the people and not by them at 60 miles an hour.

Nothing But Praise

Will Be Accorded the Inaugural Address of President Roosevelt.

Assuming office under conditions unprecedented in their difficulty and complexity, the President invoked the dauntless spirit of the American pioneers, calling upon the people "as a trained and loyal army" to make willing sacrifices for the good of a common discipline, and he unhesitatingly assumed the leadership confided in him by the people for a "disciplined attack upon our common problems."

The speech has been well received. Signs are many that it has struck a responsive chord in the breasts of all right thinking Americans.

The President faced the situation of the country with courage and frankness.

"This is pre-eminently the time to speak the truth," said he. "Only a foolish optimist can deny the dark realities of the moment."

But he quickly lifted his utterance to the most positive note of courage and confidence.

"This great nation will endure, as it has endured, will revive and will prosper."

Putting his finger unerringly upon one of the major causes of the present crisis, he excoriated "the unscrupulous money changers who stand indicted in the court of public opinion, rejected by the hearts and minds of men."

The stubbornness and the incompetence of our discredited financial leadership were mercilessly flayed as were also its admitted failures and abdication in the presence of the national crisis.

His strong stand for a strict supervision of banking, credits and investments, and his emphatic insistence that there must be end to speculation with other people's money, vindicate the sincerity of his campaign promises.

His views on this subject will be acclaimed throughout the country, as well as his emphatic declaration for an adequate and sound currency.

The speech, although necessarily general in terms, was not without clear forecast of some of the specific measures contemplated by the President.

Our primary task, he maintained, is to put people to work. His reference to "direct recruiting by the government and treating the task as we would treat the emergency of war," reveals a broad plan for the resumption of employment upon a life-sustaining basis.

He also made it apparent that the plight of the farmers is one of the subjects uppermost in his mind.

His recognition that farm relief involves a drastic reduction in the cost of federal, state and local governments, is enlightened and has the promise of action long needed.

Speaking of world affairs, he makes it plain that while he intends this country to be "a good neighbor in a world of neighbors," he does not propose to sacrifice domestic interests to foreign preoccupations. His first concern, he announces, will be to put our own national house in order. International trade relations, he maintains, are secondary to the establishment of a sound national economy.

It was an admirable speech—hope-reviving and encouraging. It has the ring of true leadership.

NOW LET US GET ON WITH OUR TASKS.

We have the President's word that "it can never be helped merely by talking about it. We must act, and act quickly."

SO BE IT.

'Let's Dine in Europe Tomorrow Night'

Cosmopolitan Says That Possibility Is Not More Than Four Years Away.

Soon, unless builders, designers, engineers and the editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine are mistaken, you will be able to say to a friend "I shall meet you in Berlin the day after tomorrow" and keep the appointment.

The airship picture on this page shows a plan for a line of giant airships crossing from New York to Berlin and back, regularly, making the round trip comfortably in one week, with plenty of time to spend at either end to load and unload and overhaul machinery.

This is not what, 20 years ago, would have been called a wild dream, but is a matter of engineering fact.

Germany is running a Zeppelin regularly from Berlin's big airport to Brazil. The French and Italians run heavier than air ships regularly to South America and think nothing of it.

The commander of the Italian Air Force took a whole fleet of heavy airplanes from Italy to Brazil, flying in regular military formation the whole way.

THE AIR HAS BEEN CONQUERED.

Mr. Paul Weeks Litchfield, head of the Goodyear Rubber Company, built the giant dirigible Akron, the biggest on earth and is now finishing a second huge ship of similar size for the United States government and offers to build and run a fleet of lighter than air ships between Europe and America. He asks no subsidy from the government—nothing more than the right to carry at a fair price the mail that is now carried by surface ships and in large quantity by British and other foreign ships.

That the government will gladly make an arrangement to put the United States first in regular trans-Atlantic communication with Europe there can be no doubt.

Influential Senators and Representatives have already declared themselves in favor of such an airline. The new President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Navy, knows the importance of speed in all transportation.

You may really soon say to your friends "there will be an important first night in Berlin day after tomorrow, let us go," and then GO.

The sponsor of the first trans-Atlantic airline and proposed builder of the necessary ships to whom all credit is due, Mr. Litchfield descends from a line of shipbuilders who once launched "Yankee clippers," swift sailing ships on the Kennebec.

As a boy he thought a sailing boat the most important thing in the world and later hesitated to go out to Akron, Ohio, to take charge of the Goodyear company, because it was too far away from the water.

He little dreamed, his ancestors could not imagine, that he would one day build ships to sail across the Atlantic Ocean, far above the clouds.

The airship picture on this page is reproduced by permission of the March Cosmopolitan Magazine, in which Mr. Forrest Wilson brilliantly describes the new trans-Atlantic plan.

Celebrity-clottings in the foyers at theatrical first nights attract many who will droop outside in the wind and the rain for a peep at their favorite. At a recent auspicious premiere I watched to see who was the object of the greatest curiosity. "It seemed to me" that it was Heywood Broun, and, to all appearances, he was totally oblivious of the neck craning.

Will Rogers and Broun are by far the least clothes-conscious of all who have attained celebrity. In the cautious maturity that distinguishes most of their fellows, they bring a haphazardry of baggy pants, runover shoes and sorry scarves. Yet, they express a Voltaire truism: "The best philosophical brew often comes from battered tureens."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Life's always disappointing you, isn't it? Life, and people. Doing things you don't expect them to do—shocking, inconsistent things that are all contrary to the rules!

Why can't Life turn out as you were told it would? Remember what you were told? How Honesty Was Always the Best Policy, and Virtue Always Triumphed?

Why can't People behave as you learned they should? For doesn't everyone know that Women Are Naturally Sweet, Timid, Patient and Pure—far, far purer than men? And doesn't everyone know that Men Are Naturally Brave, Reckless, Resourceful and Strong—far, far stronger than women?

Long ago you learned all that. And if everything and everybody would act according to schedule, how simple and delightful life would be. But instead, see what really happens!

Like as not, Virtue DOESN'T triumph and Honesty DOESN'T pay! And the worst people turn out to be the kindest—and the best ones are the meanest in a pinch! And tiny, weak women often have more courage, and sometimes more cruelty, than great, big two hundred pound men! And men who look like gorillas are apt to be ten times as tender-hearted as ladies who look like madonnas.

In short, you never can tell. Nothing happens as you thought it would. You can't believe a word you were taught! Everything's a mess—and you haven't an ideal left!

Is that how you feel, now that you've put school books away and are facing the World-As-Is? Probably. Most of us do feel that way. And most of us go through life feeling that way; trying to make People and Affairs fit into pretty patterns; flying into tantrums when they won't. And so our dreams are spoiled and our energies wasted, and Life fizzles out in a fit of sulks!

It needn't! Life was meant to be a grand adventure for each one of us. And Life can be an adventure if we'll take it as it comes, in its infinite variety, and not try to make it fit our own standardized notions.

Things don't turn out as you thought they would? People don't act as you believe they should? Well, what of it? Life is like that.

LIFE ISN'T A PICTURE PUZZLE, WITH NEAT BITS WHICH YOU CAN FIT INTO THEIR PLACES IF YOU'LL KEEP TRYING. LIFE IS A GOING CONCERN. ALWAYS CHANGING, ALWAYS UPSETTING OLD ORDERS AND CREATING NEW ONES. YOU WILL NEVER BE ABLE TO UNDERSTAND LIFE OR MANAGE OR MEASURE IT. YOU WILL NEVER BE ABLE TO PUT THE PIECES ALL TOGETHER.

THEN STOP TRYING!

TAKE LIFE AS IT COMES!

Will it come topsy-turvy? Will it raise Cain with your pretty plans and your neat notions? Undoubtedly it will—and thereby deal your laziness and stupidity and complacent conceit many a mean jolt.

But what if it does? You can't grow unless you're jolted. And if things always happened the way you wanted them to happen, what adventure would there be in living?

SO TAKE LIFE AS IT COMES, WITH ALL ITS SURPRISES, ITS SHOCKS, ITS ADVENTURES!

Stop thinking that you must judge, must punish, must "take a stand about things" because they don't suit you. Accept Life as it IS, and People as they ARE, though they be a million miles from what you expected them to be.

And what will happen? Do this for one week, and discover what will happen!

For one week, take as your philosophy these words: "LIFE IS LIKE THAT."

Say those words. Believe them. Act on them. Meet every unpleasant and upsetting experience with those words.

Do your duty, of course; but, having done it, don't try to run the rest of the show. Just let the show proceed, while you watch it, enjoy it or profit by it. Then take a check on yourself. See what those three words have done to your life in one week.

YOU'LL BE SURPRISED!

Disturbing News: 'A Small Group of Men'

By Claude G. Bowers

However depressing the existing conditions no one can complain that nothing of interest is going on in the world. That was a very interesting proposal of Sir John Simon, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs, for an arms and ammunition embargo on China and Japan. It will not be accepted by the American Congress, according to reports, on the ground that such an embargo would be wholly in the interests of Britain's old ally, Japan.

For Japan has long been preparing for war in the Far East and has stocked with arms and ammunition, and she is better prepared than her unfortunate antagonist to manufacture both.

The more one thinks upon this proposal of the British minister the stranger it seems. Let us see just what it means and does not mean:

Britain is a member of the League of Nations.

The League, including Britain, has declared Japan in the wrong, waging a war of aggression, in violation of more than one solemn treaty.

Under the covenant of the League one method provided, short of war, to cripple an aggressor forcing a war, is to put an embargo on arms and ammunition intended for her.

It would be easy to understand how Britain, loyal to the League, might propose an embargo on arms and ammunition to Japan—but she proposes an equally drastic measure against the victim of the aggression.

Were the two warring nations on equal terms this would merely mean neutrality; but when the aggressor is in better position to withstand an embargo than is the victim, the proposal is distinctly in favor of the aggressor.

That is the reason George Lansbury, leader of the Opposition in the Commons, opposes the Simon plan. He is willing to place an embargo on Japan—the aggressor; he is not willing to become an inactive ally of Japan by placing the same embargo against China, the victim.

The One Thing the League Hoped to Prevent

An Italian newspaper has just published some secret military treaties which are creating a war psychology. The existence of these treaties means the formation of alliances, offensive and defensive.

And that is one thing the League hoped to prevent.

Sooner or later, offensive and defensive alliances mean war.

And friends of the League have understood that secret treaties were prohibited; that all treaties were to be made public and filed at Geneva.

It is discouraging to the friends of the League to find nations belonging to it violating its rules.

Who and Where Are These Super-Men?

Prof. Philip Cabot of the Harvard School of Business Administration tells the Economic Forum that all might be well in the economic field were it not for that dreadful thing democracy—which means the rule based upon the theory that "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed." He is quite sure that all would be well were the righting of the world to be left to a "small group" of competent men.

This would be more convincing, more easily appraised had he given us his list of competent men. Would he name a small group of economists? It would have to be very small if it did not develop into a Kilkenny cat-fight. The economists do not agree.

Would it be the big financiers? In view of the conspicuous part they played in bringing us where we are this would only amuse the vulgar in the street.

Would it be the great industrialists? They have done their full share of blundering and seem incapable of grappling with the problems they ought to solve without interference by the Government.

Who and where are these supermen?—and super-men, we assume, are confined to those who despise the rule of the people.

The Small Groups Of Men

We do not understand that under democracy it is impossible to summon the best minds and the best experts to the formulation of a policy. We need the advice of these experts, these economists, but we do not need their lash. We have had small groups of men devising and enforcing by force a system of living on the masses all through the centuries, and we dot not recall, from our reading of history, that mankind was any the more prosperous or happy on that account. We seem to remember that so bitter was the lot of the great mass of the people under the domination of small groups of men that the masses finally rose in revolt and determined to have something to say about the government under which they lived.

Small groups of men are all right provided their plans are passed upon by the people.

Senate Exposed the Oil Scandals

It all depends on who the small group is.

Now take that small group in the United States Senate which is anathema to our intelligentsia—whatever that is. It represents the people. We have just had some revelations about high finance, long overdue, on which great and necessary reforms will be built.

The economists? The financiers? Big business? The intelligentsia?

No—it was the Senate.

It was the same Senate that exposed the oil scandals, the power trust conspiracy to degrade the schools and debauch the professors.

Honor bright!—can it be possible that too good service to the people by the Senate is responsible for the hate directed at that body by the "wise and the good?" We wonder.

At Mercy of Small Groups Of Men Too Long

Samuel Untermyer, in an address at Los Angeles, has charged that "small groups of men" have stubbornly stood in the way of the solution of the railroad and other problems pressing for the right solution.

Many years ago a small group of men who were brilliant and able, calling themselves Federalists, undertook to direct the destinies of the American people. They did some great things—things that would be of benefit to small groups of men. Some of these great things were beneficial to everyone, but that was only incidental. Had their program not been upset in the peaceable democratic revolution of 1800 the economic destinies of the whole people would have been determined by a small group. To blind the people to what was going on they passed a "sedition" law and set to work with the aid of a vicious federal judiciary composed of their allies to throw editorial critics of their proceedings into jail.

Small groups of men in power have never been distinguished by their toleration of the masses of the people, and always they have been indifferent to their liberties.

Small groups of men to advise? Yes, by all means, but let the people hire them and then pass upon their acts.

If there is any one thing that explains our present plight more than any other it is that too long have all the people been at the mercy of small groups of men.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Names

Elizabeth has history's aid
To lend it dignity.
Blithe Phyllis suits a rustic maid
While Peg is wild and free.
Patricia has a queenly sound,
Song dwells with Marguerite.
A Judith must with pride be crowned;
But Lissa is so sweet!

Avis is quick and quaint.
Celia should have a swan-like throat
And Faith must be a saint.
Elaine and Beatrice are cool
As some flower-strewn retreat;
Shirley is like a mountain pool,
But Lissa is so sweet!
